Fight Over Lake.

In the Reel Foot Lake region the lake itself is the source of contention which brought forth the activity of the night rider organization. It was contended by these living near the lake that it was their right to protection as fishermen in its waters without molestation, while the owner of the land on the shores of the lake took an opposite view. In the courts the latter, the Western Tennessee Land Company, of which Cap-tain Rankin and Col. R. Z. Taylor, of Trenton, were the organizers, was Then followed night rider warnings, threatening death to those who opposed the wishes of the members of the band. It was on the first visit in many months to the lake region that Captain Rankin was killed. Men connected with or sup-porting the land-owners have been forced to leave their homes, and others, who refused to obey the warn-ings, were punished corporally. Notwithstanding the efforts of the local officers, the depredations continued for a year, the situation be-came more and more serious, until, with the killing of Captain Rankin. it proved necessary for State officers to act. From Nashville two companies of State troops were hurried forward the day following the lynching, and Governor Patterson, aban-doning his campaign for re-election, went to the scene to direct the work of ferreting out the members of the
