"HULLO"

When you see a man to wit, Walk right up an' say "Hullo!" Say "Hullo!" an' "How d'ye do!" How's the world a using you? Slip the fellow on the back; Hing your hand down with a whack; Walk right up an' say "Hullo!" Gripe an' shake, an' say "Hullo!"

When big vessels meet, they say They saloot an' sail away. Jest the same are you an' me, Lonesome ships upon a sea; Each one sailin' his own log, For a port behind the fore; Let your speakin' trumpet blow; Lift your horn an' cry "Hullo!"

An Appeal For "The Bread Line."

The Bowersy Mission "Bread Line," at which 1,000 men who are out in the streets for the night are given a breakfast of hot coffee and rolls every morning at one o'clock, is one of the most pathetic sights in all the wide world. Long before the hour of opening, these poor, starving men stand in a single line that sometimes extends for blocks in length, waiting for the coffee and rolls. During the winter, this breakfast is given to an aggregate of 210,000 homeless men and boys, and up to date over half a million of the homeless have had their weary tramp restfully interrupted by this unique ministrations. The first of these breakfasts is given on Thanksgiving morning, and the last on the following Easter morning. Altogether the Mission supplied, this year, over 312,000 meals and 57,072 lodgings to homeless men and boys.

It is for this grand, philanthropic work that we ask your kind and practical co-operation. The homeless, friendless, disheartened and despairing men and boys of the Bowersy are not native New Yorkers, but men and boys who, until within a year, lived happily at the old homestead with father and mother, and perhaps wife. They are stranded here, and in despair appeal to the Old Bowersy Mission, which, for over thirty years, has been to the unfortunate, as the rescue cities of old, a haven of encouragement, rest and protection. Shall we turn them away? It rests with the good people of this country to decide this question, and may God graciously help you to decide it aright. JOHN C. EARL, Financial Secretary, 92 Bible House, New York City.

Local Institute.

The second Institute of Brush Creek township was held at Buffalo school Friday evening Oct. 30th. The meeting was called to order by the teacher A. W. Spade, after which the President, S. E. Walters took charge. The following questions were discussed: 1. Neatness and Politeness. Educational meetings their purpose and importance. 2. The recitation; manner of conducting, etc.

All the teachers were present except one from the township, and three teachers from Bedford county were present. A very interesting program was well rendered by the school. The institute adjourned to meet at Locust Grove in three weeks. Ada Barton, Secretary.

Little Known Facts About Counties.

The county is a territorial division that the United States derived from Great Britain, where the counties correspond to the provinces or departments of other European countries, and in a limited sense to the States of the American Union. An Englishman addresses a letter to "Parkinton, Hants," as we address a letter to "Columbus, Ohio," or "Elmira, New York."

One State, which derives its usages from French and not from English originals, has no counties at all. In Louisiana these sub divisions of the State are still called parishes, both officially and in ordinary speech, though they are now divided into many real parishes of the church.

There are about three thousand counties in the Union, with an average size of about one thousand square miles but this average is enormously exceeded in many instances, and is also frequently fallen below. Leaving out certain great unsettled counties in the west, the average county would be about five hundred miles square in extent.

In much of the western part of the country the size of the county is regulated mathematically. It consists of sixteen townships, each composed of thirty-six square miles, making five hundred and seventy-six square miles in all. In other words, each township is six miles square and each county twenty-four miles square.

In Iowa there are thirty-nine counties that were formed in this way, each one of which has exactly five hundred and seventy-five square miles, such divisions were possible in the older parts of the country the territorial arrangements were largely accidental.

The largest county in the United States is Yavapai county, Arizona, which has an area of almost thirty thousand square miles. Nine States of the Union are each smaller than this county. It is larger than the whole of West Virginia, and almost as large as South Carolina.

The sixteen counties of Montana average a greater size than the State of Massachusetts. Among the other great counties of the Union are San Bernardino and San Diego, in California, which are not only vast regions, but contain a great productive territory; Humboldt and Lincoln counties, in Nevada, which are only sparsely populated; and Lincoln county, New Mexico, which bids fair in time to have a large population.

Although the New England States are small, the average size of the counties is greater than in most of the Middle, Western, and Southern States. Worcester county, in Massachusetts, is an example of an Eastern county that is at the same time large in area and very populous. It is larger than the adjoining State of Rhode Island.

The smallest State in the Union has the smallest county as well. Bristol county, Rhode Island, has only twenty-five square miles. At one place it is not more than two miles in breadth.

Men Past Sixty in Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Remedy should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Barnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 91 years old." BUILT HER OWN HOUSE.

Plucky Woman Has Amassed Competency Fighting Against Many Misfortunes.

Mrs. Nellie J. Campbell, who owns and works a 320-acre ranch within three miles of the village of Elizabeth, in the State of Colorado, on the Colorado & Southern Railroad, on which stands a comfortable seven-roomed house, with barns and sheds, all the work of her own hands, is made of the stuff that knows no failure.

Twelve years ago Mrs. Campbell started with a capital of $5. To day she has a clear title to her hundreds of acres, with stock and machinery to run the place. Her bank account is not an enormously large one, to be sure, but she has means sufficient to pay as she goes. And what is more, she owes no man a farthing. Her 320 acres alone are worth the neat little sum of $5000.

As soon as this energetic, ambitious little woman, who weighs less than 115 pounds, homesteaded 160 acres of rich Colorado land she moved onto it with her son, who was only a boy in his teens. They had just $5 between them. She obtained enough dry goods boxes to fix up a home, which they occupied for a whole year. Then they managed to procure lumber enough to build a small room, which they moved into. But her first year's work went for nothing. For the crop they planted was entirely destroyed by hail. So Mrs. Campbell and her son both went out to work by the month, thus earning enough to carry them along.

For three years they kept at this kind of employment, becoming at the end of that time so prosperous that it was thought best for her son, who, having by this time grown considerably larger, to buy a relinquishment, with a small house on it, adjoining his mother's land.

The young man was delighted with his prospects. To fulfill the requirements of the law he lived in his own house and worked on both places. There came a morning, however, when the son, who was always prompt, was late to breakfast. His mother waited and finally, becoming uneasy, went over to see what was keeping him so late. She found him in bed, shot through the heart while he slept.

After that her neighbors all said she must not live there alone. Something might happen to her, as it had to her son. But what was she to do? She had striven too hard to go away and leave it all, so she toiled on all by herself, sowing and reaping and doing whatever there was to be done about the place.

It was just seven years since she and her only boy had come there, when, one night while she was at milking, her house took fire and burned to the ground. Was she cast down? Naturally. But she was not discouraged, which is as different as can be. There is no telling what some men might have done under these circumstances. What Mrs. Campbell actually did do was to sell some of her cows and get herself into shape to build her new seven-room house and the rest of the buildings on her place.

The barns and sheds are all the work of her own hands. She also did practically all the work on the house, too, having only some little assistance in carrying out the more minute details. Notwithstanding all she has gone through, Mrs. Campbell keeps herself fresh and young.

Don't Braid the Little Girl's Hair at Night.

At night a little girl's hair should never be tightly curled or plaited if you want it to grow thick and long, but be very loosely done in two plaits, so that in the morning there are practically no tangles to be combed out.

What does it matter if she doesn't look particularly pretty? So long as children are healthy and happy—that is the great point; and it is far better for a girl to have straight hair in nursery days than to have no hair at all, or only very skimpy locks when she grows to womanhood—a quite possible result of overmuch crimping and curling.

Do all you can to make it grow, and don't bother about kinks, and you will earn your child's gratitude, not only while she is in the nursery, but all her life long.—"Home Chat."

ELECTION WAGER.

Charlie Martin lost But Took His Medicine Like a Man. Cool Bath in the Creek.

Charlie Martin, proprietor of the tonsorial parlor east of the Fulton House was an ardent Bryan man, and ready to take up the cudgel when any one cast any reflections on his favorite candidate. Bill Jones who comes here from the eastern part of the state every year for a hunt is an equally loyal supporter of Taft. Several evenings ago, while in the barber shop, Martin and Jones were discussing the chances of election, each of his favorite candidate, when they agreed upon the following wager: If Bryan won, Jones was to go down to the Old Dam at 3 o'clock in the afternoon following the election, and take a dive into the water—going clear under. If Taft should be elected, Martin would perform the stunt. To show that they meant business they deposited $25 or its equivalent in the hands of Harry Hamill as a forfeit.

Three o'clock Wednesday afternoon came and it was up to Charlie to take the bath. He didn't squeal, but took the necessary witnesses along. A chilly breeze was blowing when he arrived at the bank of the dam, and the mercury was hovering around the freezing point. Charlie didn't stop to shiver, for in a moment there was a big splash—under the water he disappeared, but as quickly reappeared, and hastened to get dry clothes on.

TO GROW STRONG.

One Has Only to Sing and Shout, Voice or No Voice.

As a rule singers are strong. Ergo, you want to be really strong you must sing and shout. It does not matter in the least if you have what is called "a voice" but sing you must, for at least an hour daily as loudly as possible, and, for preference, in a room with an open window.

From a hygienic point of view one can hardly doubt the value of this procedure, but regarding it as a neighbor, it fills one with terror. Imagine all one's neighbors taking to shouting—or so called singing—exercises one after the other from early morn to dewy eve; imagine the babel of throaty tenors, growling bassi, desperate soprano, and shrill trebles, all murdering different songs.

It is true one could retaliate in the same fashion, only unfortunately some of us would want to be otherwise engaged and the satisfaction derived, therefore, would be but small.
