Modern Finance.

In condemning that sort of modern finance that consists in getting something for nothing, the late Bishop Potter said: "I once knew a boy who would have made a splendid financier. This boy, strolling idly through the streets—he never had anything to do—met another.

The Origin Of "Hurrah."

The word is pure Slavonian, and commonly heard from the coast of Dalmatia to Behring's Straits, when any of the population living within these limits is called on to give proof of courage and valor. The origin of the word belongs to the primitive iden that every man that dies heroically for his country, goes straight to heaven-Hu-ray (to paradise), and in the shock and order of battle the combatants utter that cry, as the Turks do that of "Allah!" each animating himself by the certitude of mmediate recompense to forget earth, and to condemn death.

COMMERCIAL COLUMN

Weekly Review of Trade and Latest Market Reports.

Bradstreet's says: "Expansion continues in trade and industrial lines, shipments over the railways are increasing, idleness is being diminished. Prices in numerous lines are higher, collections are better and sentiment is brighter than it has been for 12 months past. In many sections retailers' stocks are badly broken, owing to conservative purchases heretofore made, and as a result requests for immediate shipments are quite the rule. On this account and because of more seasonable weather sorting-up orders in wholesale and jobbing lines are of larger volume. Spring business is also developing quite freely, al-though widespread improvement in this direction is not looked for until after the turn of the new year.

"Demand for holiday goods is in-creasing. On the whole, the situation is becoming more invorable though it must be recognized that outdoor operations tend to contrac-tion with the coming of winter, that some recent expansion has been tinged with a certain degree of apecula-tion based on anticipations of what is to come and that the improvement may be slow in reaching the less important centers."

Feresting Abandoned Farms.

The abandoned farms of New England have been taken advantage of to a considerable extent for forestry work. During the past year about 2,500 acres have been planted with trees, and in the course of a few years these will prove profitable in-vestments. In addition to this, sev-eral of the water companies have adopted the tree-planting policy as a means of fostering the water supply. The redemption of these farms is a very important thing to this section, for the increasing number of abandoned farms has been a matter of serious alarm for a long time, and this step seems to offer a solution to the problem of utilizing the land which has been lying idle. In Massachusetts this area of waste has been computed as 10 per cent of the total acreage, while in Rhode Island alone there are no less than 228 of these abandoned farms.— New York Press.
