NEEDMORE.

After several days of very pleasant weather, we are now having more snow.

Aaron Lanehart moved the Wink Bros' well machine to Gilbert Mellett's near Mt. Ary, last Friday.

Thos. Wink left here last Saturday evening for Republic, O., where he has secured employment for the year.

Cross Roads school has been closed since last Tuesday, owing to the illness of the teacher, Miss Bedford.

Grandma Hart is slowly improving and is able to go down stairs part of the time.

John McClellan has been suffering from an abscess on his face.

Eld. Funk will preach here next Sunday evening; and at Antioch the third Sunday at eleven o'clock, instead of at Tonoiloway.

Our village blacksmith shop has been enlarged, thus doubling its capacity. Billy is a hustler and needs plenty of room for his growing patronage.

We feel that we should congratulate ourselves on having the first wireless telephone in the world.

When your Watch Stops

You cannot make it go by shaking it. When the bowels are constipated you can disturb them with cathartics but, like the watch, they will not be able to do their allotted work until they are put into proper condition to do it.

One cannot mend a delicate piece of mechanism by violent methods, and no machine made by man is as fine as the human body.

Lane's Family Medicine is the method adopted by intelligent people. Headache, backache, indigestion, constipation, skin diseases—all are benefited immediately by the use of this medicine.

NEW GRENADA.

If the groundhog does not furnish any colder weather during the next five weeks than he has during the one just past, there will not be much ice cream next summer.

There is a lot of gripe in this community just now.

Miss Grace Lodge who had to be absent for ten days on account of illness, was able to return to her school Monday morning.

Hon. James A. McDonough, a notice of whose return from Harrisburg on account of illness was made in the News last week, is still confined to his bed.

The hemorrhages which he had when he came home, have almost disappeared, and his friends hope to see him on his feet soon again.

Harry M. Sample, a popular shoe salesman for a York house, was married a few days ago in York, Pa., to Mrs. Louise F. Walker, and are now away on their wedding trip. After their return they will take up their residence at York. Harry's many New Grenada friends extend congratulations.

Owen Ritchey has his saw mill in motion again.

The talk now-a-days is Moseby's railroad, Schenck's coal mine and Hann's home. We hope for the railroad and the coal, but the lime is all right. We wish you all success, boys.

Can Whoop Now.

John Kieffer, an aged mail carrier, near here, has inherited about $80,000 from a relative in Illinois. Mr. Kieffer has been a star route mail carrier here as far back as the oldest inhabitants can remember. He is about one hundred years old and as active as a boy of twelve.

Reading is so determined to get into the rank of second class cities at the next census, that she is going to have a police count of the people to see how many short of the necessary 100,000 there may be, so that the number need not be got into town in time. This is enterprise, but probably Reading will find that she is pretty well up to, if not over the 100,000 mark already, and she still has another year in which to grow before the national census is taken.

LINCOLN'S FAVORITE.

One evening in December, 1863, Mr. Lincoln repeated some verses to Colonel J. G. Wilson, then in Washington.

"Mr. President" remarked his guest, "you have omitted a portion of the poem."

"What! Is there more of it," exclaimed Mr. Lincoln, with eager astonishment.

Yes, sir; two more stanzas." Colonel Wilson repeated them, to the delight of the President.

"Can you tell me who wrote the poem? Mr. Lincoln inquired. "I can't find out. Some of the newspapers have attributed its authorship to me."

"It was written," Colonel Wilson replied, "by William Knox, a Scottish poet of considerable talent, who died in Edinburgh in 1825. He published several volumes of poems, and was well known to Sir Walter Scott; 'Christopher North,' of glorious memory, and to many others among the literary leaders of the day."

To those who appreciate meritorious verse, the same pleasure can be enjoyed here, in the reading of the poem in its completeness, as was vouchsafed Lincoln on that night of rare peace and talk of beauty amid the tumult of war and stress of his people's peril. This is the poem in full:

OH, WHY SHOULD THE SPIRIT OF MORTAL BE PROUD?

BY WILLIAM KNOX.

Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud? Like a swift-fleeting meteor, a fast-flying cloud, A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave, Man passes from life to his rest in the grave.

The leaves of the oak and the willow shall fade, Be scattered around and together be laid; And the young and the old, and the low and the high, Shall molder to dust, and together shall lie.

The infant a mother attended and loved, The mother that infant's affection who proved; The husband that mother and infant who blessed, Each, all, are away to their dwellings of rest.

The maid on whose cheek, on whose brow, in whose eye, Shone beauty and pleasure—her triumphs are by; And the memory of those who loved her and praised, Are alike from the minds of the living erased.

The hand of the king that the sceptre hath borne, The brow of the priest that the mitre hath worn, The eye of the sage and the heart of the brave, Are hidden and lost in the depth of the grave.

The peasant, whose lot was to sow and to reap; The herdsman, who climbed with his goats up the steep; The beggar, who wandered in search of his bread, Have faded away like the grass that we tread.

The saint who enjoyed the communion of Heaven, The sinner who dared to remain unforgiven, The wise and the foolish, the guilty and just, Have quietly mingled their bones in the dust.

So the multitude goes, like the flowers of the weed That withers away to let others succeed; So the multitude comes, even those we behold, To repeat every tale that has often been told.

For we are the same our fathers have been; We see the same sights our fathers have seen,— We drink the same stream and view the same sun, And run the same course our fathers have run.

The thoughts we are thinking our fathers would think, From the death we are shrinking our fathers would shrink, To the life we are clinging they also would cling; But it speeds for us all, like a bird on the wing.

They loved, but the story we cannot unfold; They scorned, but the heart of the haughty is cold; They grieved, but no wall from their slumbers will come; They joyed, but the tongue of their gladness is dumb.

They died, ay! they died; and we things that are now, Who walk on the turf that lies over their brow, Who make in their dwellings a transient abode, Meet the things that they met on their pilgrimage road.

Yea! hope and despondency, pleasure and pain, We mingle together in sunshine and rain; And the smiles and the tears, the song and the dirge Still follow each other, like surge upon surge.

'Tis the wink of an eye, 'tis the draught of a breath; From the blossom of health to the paleness of death, From the gilded saloon to the bier and the shroud,— Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?

O, CAPTAIN! MY CAPTAIN!

BY WALT WHITMAN.

(Abraham Lincoln, 1865.)

O Captain! my Captain! our fearful trip is done, The ship has weather'd every rack, the prize we sought is won; The port is near, the bells I hear, the people all exulting; While follow eyes, the steady heart, the vessel grim and daring:

But! O heart, heart! heart! O the bleeding drops of red, Where on the deck my Captain lies, Fallen cold and dead.

O Captain! my Captain! rise up and hear the bells; Rise up—for you the flag is flung—for you the bugle trills— For you bouquets and ribbon'd wreaths—for you the shores a-crowding;

For you they call, the swaying mass, their eager faces turning; Hear, Captain! dear father! This arm beneath your head! It is some dream that on the deck You've fallen cold and dead!

My Captain does not answer, his lips are pale and still; My father does not feel my arm, he has no pulse nor will; The ship is anchored safe and sound, its voyage closed and done;

From fearful trip the victor ship comes in with object won! Exult, O shores! and ring, O bells! But I with mournful tread Walk the deck where my Captain lies Fallen cold and dead.

Useful to Know. Bits of old velvet are a very good substitute for chamois in polishing articles and are more easily washed.

Not one woman in a hundred drinks enough water to keep her system in a healthy condition. Three pints a day is not a drop too much.

If you accidentally spill ice cream on a silk waist try using alcohol to remove the greasy blemish. It also removes a candy or gum blemish.

When boiling milk put two tablespoonfuls of water in the pan first and let it boil. Milk boiled in this way will never burn to the bottom of the saucepan.
