Best Men and Best Roads.

There is httle likelihood that the bill known as the Stuart State Highway bul which passed the will meet serious opposition in the Senate.

The value of such an improvement as this bill contemplatesthe construction of a fine, broad, durable highway across the State from Philadelphia by way of Harrisburg and Pittsburg to the Ohio State line-is beyond calculation.

It will not be, as some of the opponents of the bill have claim ed, merely a road for through travel or for the benefit of motor ists. It will be really the starter on the head or pulling his ears. of a great systematic plan of road improvement throughout the State to be intersected by fine local highways in every county through which it passes.

But simultaneously with the enactment of this bill should be another to increase the salaries of the head of the Highway Department and his principal assistant to such figures that the State could command in those po sitions the services of men in evmen as well fitted for their duty by ability, knowledge, and exper ience as the men are who are entrusted with the construction and operation of great railroads. Experience has shown that un less there is such a reorganization of the State Highway Department a large percentage of the money voted for good roads will be wast ed in the future as it has been in

A Birthday Party.

On Thursday, March 25, 1909, Mrs. J. S. Shapiro gave a party at her home in Broadtop City, in honor of her son Joseph's fourth birthday. The little folks, of which there were 18 in number, engaged in playing games, after which they were invited to the dining room where a sumptuous supper awaited them. Refreshments were also served.

Those present were, Chester Dell, Winifred Heath, Flora Mears, Margaret, Katherine, Edward, and Claire Lomen;-Wilmer Swope, Clyde and Harry Rinehart, Helen and Hazel Grissinger, Mrs. Carl Grissinger - all of Unwritable English.

"Did you know that there is at least one sentence in English that can be spoken, but that it is im possible to write?" asked a University of Pennsyl ania senior. "Yes, its correct English, I suppose, and then again it isn't. Here is the sentence, although I swear I don't know how you are going to write it: 'There are three twos in the English language.' You see, if you spell it t-w-o the sentence is incorrect, as it is if you spell it either t-c-o or t-o. Catch the point? Really, t is incorrect to say it, although t certainly should be possible to has got me going, and it simply goes to show what a mess the English language is. There certainly is a word 'two' and a word 'too' and another 'to,' and they

Easter Facts.

The observance of Eister was not instituted until some 300 years after the death of Christ, spring, Ostern, or Eastre, whose festival was celebrated about the time of the Christian Easter. No celebration was arranged by the Jewish Christians at all, but on the 14th day of the month, immediately following the vernal equinox, which was the day on which the old Jewish feast of the Pass over was celebrated the death of Christ, to them the paschal lamb,

Christ having died according to their chronology, on the date of the celebration of the Jewish Passover. The celebration of the Jewish Christians was there fore for the death and not the resurrection of Christ. The Gentile Christians, however, were not bound by any of the Jewish traditions. Sunday being the Lord's day to them, they therefore celebrated the resurrection of Christ on the Sunday following the 14th day of the moon of March, the day on which Christ died. The Jewish Christians thus celebrated the 14th day of the month, irrespective of the day of the week, and the Gentile Christians celebrated a Sunday irrespective of the day of the month. If this confusion had not been resolved by the proper ecclesiastical authorities, we might have been celebrating the day at the present time according to our individual religious predilections. The early church was torn with otter dissensions regarding this conflict of custom as to the cele bration of Easter. Various at tempts were made to fix a stable day which would be observed by the church as a whole, but they all failed. Finally, at the council of Nice, A. D. 325, the question was settled once for all, and the date now observed throughout the Coristian world was established. Easter day was then fixed as the first Sunday after the express the thought. This thing full moon which happens on or next after March 21. FAMILIES GROW SMALLER.

Average Now 4.6, as Against 5.8 a Century Ago.

The size of the average family in the United States has decreased from 5.8 persons in 1790, the area in 1900, according to a volume now being published by the Census Bureau.

Of especial interest from a sociological point of view are these statistics in the book which deal Kemp's Balsam, the best cough with family life. In 1790 famil- cure. At druggists' and dealers' ies composed of no more than 25c. three persons represented but one fourth of the entire number of families, while in 1900 families of similar size made up nearly 40 per cent. of all families. Families composed of six or more persons represented in 1790 more than one half, but in 1900 scarcely more than one fourth of the tamilies enumerated.

On the basis of the proportion shown in 1790 there would have been in continental United States in 1900, 39,500,000 children, whereas there were less than 24,000,000.

The number of children under 16 years of age to each white family was 28 in 1790, as compared with 1.5 in 1900. The ratio in 1700 of two children under sixteen years of age to each white female 16 years of age and over declined to one in 1900.

Of 3,171,000 white persons enumerated in 1790 approximately 2,000,000 survived 30 years later 11,500 in 1880, while in 1900 there were 23 persons who reported their ages as 110 years and over, so that at the census of 1900 it is possible that there are still living persons enumerated in the first census, taken 110 years before.
