BIG NAVY TUG LOST

Rockport, Mass. (Special) .- The cargo of anchors on board the naval tug Nezinscot, Captain Ned Evans, proved too great a burden as she rolled down the coast from Ports-mouth to Boston, before a northerly gale, and after the seas had flooded the engine-room, the tug rolled over and sank off Cape Ann Four of the crew lost their lives, while nine others, including the cap-tain's wife and boy, reached land after a hard struggle Captain Evans and Machinists' Mate A. Belfric, were taken from an oak grating by a life-saving crew, after they had been in the water nearly five hours and had seen Dr. Trotter washed off into the sea. Chief Boatswain's Mate F. R. Bit-ter struggled an hour with Mrs. Evans and the boy on a narrow plank. Engineer Pratt and three seamen managed to gain the ship's boat after the sinking of the tug and righting her, hauled Bitter, Mrs. Evans and the boy on board and then rowed ashore. The Nezinscot left Portsmouth at 3 A. M. with a cargo of anchors, anchor chains and scearchlights for the battleship Missouri. The tug was a boat of low freeboard, and insane the court gives first impor-tance to his family and childhood her cargo brought her down until history. His determination that the prisoner has not yet recovered is was manned by five officers and a was manned by five officers and a crew of about ten men. Captain Evans, who was in command, halls from Quincy, Mass., and has been in charge of many battleships for the Fore River Shipbuilding Com-pany during their trials on the New England Const.

The westerly gale was blowing when the Nezinscot left Portsmouth, so Captain Evans hugged the shore so far as Ipswich. Then he headed across for Cape Ann. As the tug went off shore she met rising seas and began to roll. Off Halibut Point a big sea hore the little boat over until the water flooded her engine-room and she became helpless. Captain Evans ordered the single boat carried to be lowered and put in it the second officer and the captain's wife and little boy. Scarcely had the boat touched the water when the Nezinscot lurched and plunged men had gone down.
