

Not Sisters

Now and again you see two women passing down the street who look like sisters. You are astonished to learn that they are mother and daughter, and you realize that a woman at forty or forty-five ought to be as her best and fairest. Why isn't it so? The general health of woman is so intimately associated with the local health of the essentially feminine organs that there can be no red cheeks and round form where there is female weakness.

Women who have suffered from this trouble have found prompt relief and cure in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives vigor and vitality to the organs of womanhood. It clears the complexion, brightens the eyes and reddens the cheeks.

No alcohol, or habit-forming drugs is contained in "Favorite Prescription." Any sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. Every letter is held as sacredly confidential, and answered in a plain envelope. Address: World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

Why the Dominie Lost.

A newly appointed Scottish minister on his first Sunday of office had reason to complain of the poorness of the collection.

"Mon," replied one of the elders, "they are close, vera close; but" confidentially—"the au' minister, he put three of four saxe pence into the plate hissel', just to gie them a start. Of course, he took the saxe pence awa' with him afterward."

The new minister tried the same plan, but the next Sunday again had to report the dismal failure. The total collection was not only small, but he was grieving to find that his own saxe pence were missing.

"Ye may be a better preacher than the auld minister," exclaimed the elder, "but if ye had had the knowledge of the world, an' o' yer ain flock in particular, ye'd ha'e done what he did"—London Globe.

Loving One's Work.

If a man doesn't love his work, he had better get something else to do. But the trouble is that such people will hardly love any kind of work. The trouble is in them. They lack intelligence. If they knew enough to know good work they would soon learn to love it. The manual training scheme has this in view—to surround the job a man is doing with such intelligence and taste as will make it attractive to him.

"The man who is in love with his job gets more contentment out of life than any other," says Brander Matthews; and he gets a great part of his contentment in doing his work right. No man can love his work who shirks. No man can be contented who is dishonest about his work. This is shirking or doing it negligently. So these things always go together—honest work, contentment and love of the job.

Plenty Of Experience.

The attractive young lady who had written "Urgent" on her card was shown into the consulting room of Sir Chopham Fyne, head of a famous hospital.

"I wish," she said, "to become a nurse in this institution."

"Have you had any previous experience?"

"Experience?" she cried. "I should just think so. Two of my brothers play football, another has tried to cross the Channel in an aeroplane of his own make, mother is a suffragette, and father keeps a motor car."—Tit-Bits.

MUST BELIEVE IT.

Every Reader Will Concede the Truth of This Statement.

One who suffers with backache or any form of kidney trouble wants a cure, not merely temporary benefit. Rev. Maxwell S. Rowland, of Tom's River, N. J., makes a statement in this connection that is worth attention. Says he: "I was suddenly taken with an attack of kidney trouble, had severe pains in my back and loins and was generally run down. Doctors were not helping me, so I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They brought me prompt relief, and as I continued taking them the pains in my back disappeared and the kidneys were restored to normal condition."

The Polite Conductor.

A lady, the wife of an eminent surgeon, happened to be the sole occupant of a horse bus that was slowly climbing the Piccadilly hill. A motor bus passed, and the conductor of it saw fit to indulge in pointed and ill-timed pleasantries. The conductor of the horse bus made no effort to reply, and the lady, to assuage his feelings as he rather savagely punched her ticket, said:

"He seems to have the gift of gab."

"The reply was: 'Yes, ma'am, as you vulgarly puts it, he do.'"—Manchester Guardian.

The first process of making soda on an extensive scale was discovered by Nicholas Leblanc, a French chemist, in 1791.

Weekly Review of Trade and Market Reports.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

"Further progress is making in trade expansion and financial conditions are more settled. The reports from the leading trade circles are uniformly favorable as to leave no question of doubt as to the widespread character of the revival. It is probably within due bounds to say that at no previous period of its history has the wealth of the United States made a better showing of growth than it is making at the present time.

The maintained high costs of wool and cotton add complications to the merchandising of textiles and tend to force irregular production, yet merchants agree that the demand is broadening in distributing channels, just as it has been expanding in primary centers for some weeks. Stocks in retailers' hands are reduced and order for fall have been so conservatively placed that the rush of immediate delivery of seasonable merchandise forces higher prices and jobbers are asking that orders for deliveries in the fall market. Premiums are being offered for quick delivery of several kinds of knit goods. Prices are marked up daily and are already at a high level, although not up to 1907.

Improved conditions are still reported in the footwear market, but some lines continue neglected. Heavy staples are selling well. Heavy trading characterizes the packer hide market, with branded hides for sole leather purposes particularly active. Trading in sole leather has improved appreciably.

Shall We Soon Starve?

One might look upon J. J. Hill as something of a Jeremiah or Cato, the elder, were it not that he usually has a way of proving the things he says by figures. Just now he tells us that it is quite possible that many persons now living will feel the pinch of hunger. He considers that if things go on as at present by the middle of this century there will be a population of 290,000,000 souls, and nearly enough food for them. He is particularly pessimistic on the wheat situation. He insists that unless radical steps are taken soon, 40 years hence we shall have to import 400,000,000 bushels of wheat annually at a cost of $600,000,000 and for it we shall not have the money to pay for it even if it can be secured at any price. Of course, we may eat a lot of corn bread, but that will mean that the meat supply will be cut down.

There is a way out of this difficulty, but Mr. Hill isn't supine as to our taking it. He wants the farmers to educate their boys to be farmers and to better farmers than any now living. He wants the people to take an immediate interest in the matter of food supply, because if the matter is postponed much longer it will be too late to obviate an immense amount of suffering.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Tree Tells of a Thriller.

Beerbohm Tree is always interesting and entertaining, epigrammatic in conversation and delightfully outspoken.

When Miss Constance Collier was playing Roma in "The Eternal City," Hall Caine was anxious to get a powerful effect in certain scenes she was taking with the late Robert Tabor, and the former was himself in a vein of reminiscence.

"I once saw," said Mr. Caine, "a very striking bit of business. The man picked up the woman and threw her over his shoulder. I was in the audience, and I saw the man pick up the woman and throw her over his shoulder."

Miss Collier looked at him in consternation, for she would be rather a heavy person to throw about. However, they did their best, but their futile efforts were interrupted by Mr. Tree.

"That reminds me," said the actor-manager, "I saw a play in Italy once in which the hero caught hold of the heroine by the legs and banged her head on the floor."

"Splendid. A magnificent idea!" interpolated the enthusiastic author.

"What was the play?"

"Punch and Judy," replied Mr. Tree.—Strand.

They Never Learn.

"So William Watson, the British poet, has married an Irish girl! Watson, to be sure, has a government position of $10 a week. Still—"

The speaker, a leading member of the Franklin Inn, of Philadelphia, shook his head indignantly.

"In the present depression of the poetry market poets shouldn't marry," he said. But Watson has always been proud, unreasonably proud, and self-confident.

Watson walked into the sanctum of an English magazine editor one day and laid down a long ode on the desk and said:

"Here's that 32-stanza ode I offered you three years ago."

"But I refused it three years ago," said the editor, turning the pages of the manuscript disdainfully.

"Yes," Watson agreed, "that is true."

"Then, if I refused it, why do you bring it back to me now?"

"You have had three years' experience since then," said Watson, and I thought you might have learned by this time to tell literature from trash."—Washington Post.

SOME HARD KNOCKS

Woman Gets Rid of "Coffee Heart."

The injurious action of Coffee on the heart of many persons is well known by physicians to be caused by caffeine. This is a drug found by chemists in coffee and tea.

A woman suffered a long time with severe heart trouble and finally her doctor told her she must give up coffee, as that was the principal cause of the trouble. She writes:

"My heart was so weak it could not do its work properly. My husband would sometimes have to carry me from the table, and it would seem that I would never breathe again. The doctor told me that coffee was causing the weakness of my heart. He said I must stop it, but it seemed I could not give it up until I was down in bed with nervous prostration.

"For eleven weeks I lay there and suffered. Finally my husband brought home some Postum and I quit coffee and started new and right. Slowly I got well. Now I do not have any headaches, nor those spells with weak heart. We know it is Postum that helped me. The Dr. said the other day, 'I never thought you to weigh 93 pounds and now I weigh 158.'"

"Postum has done much for me and I would not go back to coffee again for any money, for I believe it would kill me if I kept at it. Postum must be well boiled according to directions on pkg., then it has a rich flavor and with cream is fine."

Drinking At Meals.

One by one old and cherished ideas are giving way before the simple appliances of practical test. Perhaps no other one, with reference to eating habits has been more widespread and more persistent than that it is injurious to drink water at meals. The old medical rule against eating before going to bed has been discontinued by the medical profession itself for a long time now, and it has been repeatedly shown that a reasonably amount of food taken before retiring is beneficial to many nervous people and is not infrequently a cure for insomnia.

The rule against drinking at meals has been more persistent, but it appears to be doomed, now that the professors in the physiological chemistry department of the University of Illinois have set about making experiments to prove the digestive value of copious draughts of water taken while eating. One quart of water at each meal was the prescription followed, and it was found that the subject actually thrived on it. The theory is that the water, diluting the saliva, "causes the digestive fluid to assume greater digestive activity."—Manchester Union.

Not a Business Obligation.

"Thanks," replied Senator Sorghum, "the only objection to a debt of gratitude is that it is never secured by tangible assets on which a man can realize in an emergency."—Washington Star.

I could not sleep day or night because of that dreadful itching; when I did sleep it was from sheer exhaustion. I was one mass of irritation; it was even in my scalp. The doctor's medicine seemed to make me worse and I was almost out of my mind. I got a set of the Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent. I used them persistently for twenty-four hours. good health, with its blessings, must understand, quite clearly, that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to living aright. Then the use of medicines may be dispensed with to advantage, but under ordinary conditions in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time and the California Fig Syrup Co. holds that it is all important to present the subject truthfully and to supply the one perfect laxative to those desiring it.
