The Hair in Sickness.

The hair needs especial attention during an illness, and much can be done by daily care to preserve it. When one is seriously ill in bed, the hair should be carefully combed every day. It should be parted down the back, the parting of the middle carried straight down to the nape of the neck.

President Helps Orphans.

Hundreds of orphans have been helped by the President of the Industrial and Orphan's Home at Macon, Ga., who writes: "We have used Electric Bitters in this institution for nine years. It has proved a most excellent medicine for stomach, liver and kidney troubles."

Every man who engages in business has to decide for himself whether he shall be its slave or its master. The slave subordinates to his business God, his family and his fellow men.

We were pained to learn of the death of Rosalyn, the bright little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stouffer, of Waynesboro, Mrs. Stouffer was formerly Miss Sue Mort daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Mort near this place.

Someone has said that in proportion as a man labors so he becomes brutified. If that is true then the converse implies that the man who does not labor must be very refined. Judging from the inveterate hatred to work which some people show, the results in their case ought to be angelic.

The "man higher up" involved in the Sugar Trust and other business frauds still moves about as free as the air. But the man lower down, who is an employee of the man higher up, occasionally gets a prison sentence and is exhibited as a horrible case of moral depravity.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of The First National Bank of McConnellsburg, Pa., held in the Directors' room on Monday evening, February 14, 1910 the following action was taken by the Board:

WHEREAS, It is with feeling of sorrow and regret that we are called upon to record the death of Mr. R. M. Kendall, a member of the Board of Directors of this Bank; and

WHEREAS, In the death of Mr. Kendall, the Board of Directors has lost a faithful, active, careful, conscientious and obliging member; and

WHEREAS, The community has lost a member possessed of the highest personal attributes, one esteemed for his fidelity to justice and truth, and one who used his untiring efforts for the advancement of everything tending to promote the best interests of his fellow men; Therefore be it

Resolved, That as representatives of the Bank, and as members of this community, it is proper and appropriate to record the loss of one of its members, and to testify to the qualities of heart and mind that made his private life exemplary, his conviction of duty the highest purpose that governed and marked him so strongly in his official capacity; and be it further

Resolved, That as a testimonial to his memory, a copy of these proceedings be transmitted to the bereaved family of the deceased.

JNO. P. SIPES, GEO. A. HARRIS, J. W. MOSSER.

No Wonder She's Cross.

The woman who has a thousand petty cares and annoyances which she suffers with headache or side ache must not be blamed if she cannot always be angelically amiable. What she needs is thoughtfulness from her family and such a simple and natural remedy as Lane's Family Medicine, the herb tea that makes weak women strong and well. Why Such Marriages Fail.

When Miss Anita Stewart of New York married Prince Miguel of Braganza, in a little Scotch highland church a few months ago, there was a brilliant scene. Scotch pipers in highland dress made a brave show and discoursed music as only pipers can discourse it; soldiers lent a martial air to the proceedings and villagers gazed upon the scene with delight and wonder. Surely it was a novel and romantic wedding, but the sequel seems to have taken much of the romance out of it. The princess is finding that an empty title and a characterless husband are a poor exchange for the Stewart millions. Like most of such marriages, it seems to be a failure. The Prince, who was a notorious spendthrift, accumulated ante wedding debts to the amount of over $1,000,000 which the Stewart money was expected to pay. Now, apparently, the money is not forthcoming and the Prince's furniture is seized by angry creditors and will be sold to pay his debts.

In the nature of things a marriage that is not based on affection or moral grounds, but which is simply a barter of good American dollars for a foreign title and an impecunious spendthrift, is almost surely doomed to failure and consequent bitterness and disappointment. And yet we suppose that to the end of time some heiresses will be caught by the glamor even as a moth is caught by a lighted candle.

One great reason why mail order houses flourish and cut into the business of local merchants anywhere is their lavish expenditure for advertising. The amount they spend for such a purpose is well nigh fabulous. But it is true economy for the resultant returns fully justify the outlay, large as it may be. The lesson it teaches is that most home merchants, if they want to successfully meet the competition of mail order houses, must take a leaf out of their book and meet them on their own ground by a proportionate amount of advertising. The whole secret is acquainting the public in the most catching way with the quality and variety of goods one has to offer.
