Where Ciphers Count.

A peculiar and perplexing problem is offered by the Kirkland Enterprise in the following: A friend asks us to multiply $5 by $5. We do so, and aunounce the result of $25. Now multiply 500 cents by 500 cents, give the answer in cents pure and simple, not as fractional parts of a dollar We do so, and are surprised to see the figures climb up to 250,000 cents which is $2,500. As $5 and 50 cents are equivalent, the result is puzzling. It cannot be argued the decimal marks should be used. cent, as such, is as distinct a unit a a dollar, and as the result is to b announced in cents, the decimal can-not be pleaded in extenuation of the rather surprising result. But there is clearly something wrong. Can any reader explain it?

It is very easy of explanation, says
"The Dallas News." When you have $5 and multiply it by 5 you have $25 in real money. When you accumulate 500 pennies and multiply them by 500 you have $2,500 worth of subsidiary coinage. The reason it is so much better to have 500 times 500 cents than five times $5 in the same ha because one is more fortunate in having a lot of money than a little.— Washington Herald.

Diplomacy And Lying.

Sir Henry Wotton's definition of an ambassador as "an honest man sent to lie abroad for the good of his country"—which was quoted by Professor Pollard in his address on "Polities and Character"-was destined to cost its author dear. It was written in a friend's albumn at Augsburg in 1604. Eight years afterward Gasper Scioppius, a Jesuit controversialist, used it as an argument against the honor and integrity of James I. in a Latin attack on the King.

James was very angry and demanded an apology from Wotton. This was promptly forthcoming, but the offense does not appear to have been overlooked, and, according to Mr. L. Pearshall Smith, Wotton's latest biographer, it was not till nearly a year later that the ex-Ambassador "had hopes of public employment." It should be borne in mind that the epigram in its English form-it was originally written in Latin—is really a pun, the verb "to lie" having in those times the same meaning as to sleep."-London Daily News.

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are atraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition is working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed.
