Measuring a Stream.

Two men standing on the bank of a broad stream, across which they could not cast their fishing lines, could not agree as to its width. A bet on the point was offered and accepted, and the question was presently decided for them by an ingenious friend who came along without any particular appliances for measurement.

He stood on the edge of the bank, steadied his chin with one hand and with the other tilted his cap on his head till its peak just cut the top of the opposite bank.

Then, turning round, he noted exactly where the peak cut the level ground behind him, and by stepping to that spot was able to measure a distance equal to the width of the stream.

There is a difference between a hoodoo and a who don't.

The level-headed man avoids many ups and downs in life.

No, the milky way was not caused by the cow jumping over the moon.

Many stories are like ashes; when thoroughly sifted there is not much left.

There is this to be said for the apple tree—it never hides any fruit in its trunk.

Sheep are most persistent gamblers, though they are constantly being fleeced.

The man who stutters does not need to be told to think twice before he speaks once.

The chanticleer hat proves that not only most city folks look to the farmyard for their living, but also for their styles.

WHIPS COVE.

When May took her place at the head of the calendar last Sunday morning, she found old Mother Earth all dressed in green, with long fringes as the predominating trimming. While green is the regulation color at this season, the new month was not prepared to see the old lady togged out quite so extensively.

Mrs. Nancy Layton visited friends across Sideling Hill last week.

Emory A. Diehl and wife made a flying trip to Breezewood last Wednesday evening.

Flossie Plessinger had been quite ill, but she is reported better.

Asa Mellott is on the sick list. Emma Winter is reported very ill.

Ben Mellott, of Bedford county, was in the Cove selling books last week.

George Layton is getting ready to build a new kitchen.

B. W. Morris, who has been sawing up in Honey Hollow, has about completed his job, and will saw some wood now.

While hauling logs a few days ago, Albert Plessinger had the misfortune to get one of his fingers badly crushed.

Last week was Frolic Week in the Cove: Tuesday, the Whips Cove church was scrubbed; Wednesday, posts were cut for the graveyard fence; Thursday, the old Diehl graveyard up in "Canada," was cleaned, and on Friday, the posts were hauled to the mill and partly sawed for the fence.

Frank Plessinger is kept busy surveying this spring—here to establish a new line; there, to settle a dispute, and, everywhere, for business.

In some way our telephone line got out of commission last week, and, in consequence of which, we had no service from Tuesday until Thursday.

Yes, get right after those demons possessed ghouls that stick fire to the mountains. Put them in the chain gang for life; put a rope around their necks and swing them off from the highest rock on the mountain top, and let their carcasses drop into that place where they can see the fire burn and the smoke roll to their heart's content—where it has not rained since the Flood, and is likely to be dry for a long time to come.

Rev. J. M. Kauffman will preach at the Whips Cove church next Sunday evening. Subject: Eternity. Everybody welcome to this service.

Miss Jean Johnston who had been in Philadelphia five weeks, during which she underwent a surgical operation for auricular trouble, returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Johnston, Monday.

FOR STATE SENATOR.

Amos W. Knepper of Somerset, Pa. Local Option Republican, Opposed to Boss Rule.

In view of the recent developments in the political field I give the following for the information of the voters of the 36th Senatorial district in order that my position may be understood.

I am a candidate who will remain in the field until the campaign is closed by the Primary election, June 4.

On the Local option question I maintain the position established by my record during the past two sessions of the Legislature. I worked and voted for the Local Option Bills, and if elected to the Senate I will work and vote for all temporal legislation.

2. That I am not allied with or controlled by any bosses, who would dictate by what laws a free people shall be governed, is proven by the fact that I refused to vote for U. S. Senator Boies Penrose in the session of 1909. Voters, assert your right to a voice in the government of this Commonwealth by casting your votes for me at the Primary election, June 4, 1910.

Bronchitis.

Bronchitis is the name given to any inflammation of the mucous membrane of the bronchial tubes. In a fairly healthy adult an attack of acute bronchitis is not a very terrifying thing, although it is most distressing and disagreeable.

It is as if an unusually severe cold and cough, instead of confining itself to the head and throat, wandered on down the chest. The irritation of the tubes results in a constant cough and sense of breathlessness. The temperature rises, the patient feels sick, the more so that the incessant coughing does not result in the throwing off of any secretion to speak of.

In a day or two the inflammation in the tubes subsides, the temperature goes down, there is less and less sense of oppression, and the secretion gradually becomes freer.

From this point there is gradual recovery, as from an ordinary bad cold.

On the other hand, in the very old or the very young, or with those whose powers of resistance are lessened from any cause whatever, bronchitis is a dangerous disease. It has a tendency to run from the acute into the chronic form, in which the sufferer may be perfectly well during the summer months, or while in a warm climate, but at the least chill or exposure must expect and will get his inevitable attack of bronchitis with symptoms persisting until the return of warm weather.

The moral of this is that it is most essential to give proper treatment during the acute stage. The need of watchful care during a bronchial attack will be the more appreciated when it is understood that such an attack may be the beginning, sign and warning of a tuberculous trouble; and furthermore that whooping-cough and measles sometimes begin that way.

In any case, whether the attack be simple bronchitis or a warning of some other trouble, the first rule should be, "straight to bed." In fact, this good old-fashioned rule at the onset of any type of so called "cold" cannot be bettered.

Miss Jennie Lodge, who had been visiting at Frederick, Md., returned to her home last week.

Elsie Whitfield, of Breezewood, spent the latter part of the week with her parents, B. F. Whitfield and wife.

Sadie and Lida Barton spent Sunday afternoon with Frances Whitfield.

Frank Hixson and family spent Sunday afternoon at G. W. Hixson's.

Clara and Lena Whitfield spent Sunday afternoon with their cousin Celia Barton.

A delightful surprise was given Miss Elsie Whitfield at her home last Saturday evening, when about fifty of her friends gathered to spend the evening.

The time was spent in playing games, which were enjoyed by all. She received a number of pretty and useful presents.

Missed His Lesson.

"What state do we live in?" asked the teacher in the primary geography class.
