How to Brush Your Teeth.

There are harmful as well as beneficial ways of brushing teeth. A too vigorous application of the brush crosswise of the teeth may result in forcing the gums away from the necks of the teeth, leaving the roots more or less exposed. The gums require the friction of the brush as well as the teeth out this friction should be applied in such a way as to force the gum down over the tooth instead of pressing it away. To accomplish this the brush should be given a rotary motion, letting the bristles impinge against the upper ones on the downward trip and against the lower ones on the upward trip. This will also tend to throw the bristles in between the teeth and force out any particles of food which may be lodged between them.

If the gums show a tendency to bleed in brushing, the brush should be continued in this way with cold water till the bleeding stops, and this means the gums will be hardened and become normal. If this does not cure the gums the case should be referred to a dentist to learn if there are not some hard deposits forming under the gums in the way of tartar.

The teeth should be brushed at least twice a day, but particularly at night just before retiring. During the hours of the night, when the fluids of the elements which produce decay have a better opportunity to work than at any other time, and if food material or foreign matter is allowed to remain between the teeth all night the teeth are almost certain to decay.

With painstaking care during childhood and ordinary care subsequently the teeth of the average individual may be preserved through life, and this would mean much for the betterment of the race.—The Designer for August.

The Nation's Drink Bill.

The reliable authority, the American Grocer, has compiled some very instructive statistics showing the production and consumption of liquor in the United States during the last two years. It is a showing that should be gratifying to every one who is opposed to the drink traffic, as it shows a reduction in the total spent for alcoholic beverages of all kinds during that period of $110,185,000. In 1907, the total expended on liquors was $1,064,191,463 as against $1,654,005,803 last year. During the same period, population increased about 2,750,000. The per capita consumption of spirits in 1909 was the smallest in any year of the decade, and that of beer the smallest in five years. On the other hand, the use of tea, coffee and cocoa has increased in proportion as strong drink has decreased. In 1908 there was a noted reduction of something like half a gallon per capita in consumption; in 1909 there is a further decline of 1.17 gallons. Beer and distilled spirits both shared in this decline. Thus, the whole situation logically points to the fact that these changes are the result of the general temperance wave which has spread over the country and whose principal object of attack was the saloon. It has been a successful campaign of moral education. We have a long road yet to travel, however, for the United States Treasury last year derived from all liquors approximately $199,069,684—a fabulous amount to come, in an enlightened age, from the one thing which, above all others, is the worst foe of health, morals, and good government, and the strongest ally of crime, poverty and suffering, and premature death. By and by, as we grow more civilized and sensible, this strange anomaly of a nation deriving revenue from its own degradation will disappear. We protect our saloons, although we know that they are simply drunkard factories, where the finished article is turned out by tens of thousands yearly—where our young men, the flower of American youth, are officially sacrificed that the public treasury may be kept well filled. Our decreasing Drink Bill affords a gleam of hope that some day we may come to regard these young lives as our most precious asset. We spend seven millions yearly to find out the best methods of raising and protecting our cattle sheep and hogs; but not one dollar to protect our youth from the drink molooh which thrives and flourishes and drags down its victims unhindered, wrecking homes, breaking hearts, blasting lives and bringing crime, sorrow, poverty and desolation into almost every community in the land.—The Christian Herald.

Repairing Sheets and Towels.

Sheets, as they begin to wear, should be turned sides to middle. Sew the selvages neatly, not drawing the thread too tight, or there will be a half seam. In this way the middle part, which has had all the wear, will come to the side. Where economy is studied it is advisable to treat towels in the same way.

Flaring Up.

Some people are given to flaring up. They hear of something which a friend has said at which they are greatly offended, and immediately "flare up" and begin to say all manner of unkind and uncourteous things, and nourish and cherish a very unhappy and unchristian spirit until, upon explanation, it turns out that they have been misinformed, and that their friend has said no such thing as they suppose, and consequently their flaring up, with all the trouble which it may have made has been for nothing.

A man feels himself slighted or neglected, he flares up and makes himself ridiculous, only to learn at last that the whole grievance over which he has made himself so uncomfortable, was a simple over sight, or existed only in his own jealous imagination. An employer flares up at the disobedience or neglect of an employee, and after having exhibited his petulance, impatience and unreasonableness, learns at last that his reproaches have been misplaced, and that no blame whatever attaches to the persons on whom he has visited his wrath, and that if he intends to be an upright and Christian man he owes a most humble apology to those he has grieved and wronged. The employee flares up at some fancied oversight, or neglect, or apparent injustice on the part of the employer; he growls in secret and grumbles in public, looks sour and cross, neglects his duties, is impatient and perverse, and frequently utters loud complaints, spreading discontent and making trouble; and at length when he comes to state his grievance to his employer as he should have done at first, often finds himself misinformed, and learns that circumstances are entirely different from his understanding of them, and that the man whom he has so grievously abused in thought and in word, is quite as anxious to do justice as he is to have it done; that some of his grievances were imaginary, and that others would have been gladly redressed, had the employer been informed of them. Christians flare up at each other; ministers find fault with people, and people find fault with preachers; bitter thoughts are cherished and bitter words are said, when a few moments plain-hearted talk and honest dealing would end the whole and save all trouble.

Our advice is, Do not flare up. Keep cool, quiet and patient. If thy brother trespass against thee go and tell him his fault; right all wrongs as far as practicable, but whatever you do, do not flare up.—Selected.

AMARANTH.

J. C. Hixson and daughter, Mrs. E. J. Bennett, were visiting friends in Brush Creek valley. An infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Palett died after a brief illness, and was buried last Thursday.

Peter Mellott and wife visited in the home of Geo. Carson last Sunday.

The Amaranth base ball team are contemplating a picnic, to be held in the grove near Dr. Wm. L. McKibbin's, on September 3d. Edward G. McCray spent Saturday night at Frank Diehl's, and Sunday with his friend Roy Rice.

Michael Fischer was visiting friends in the Cove last Saturday evening.

Among the most successful poultry raisers in this neighborhood is Michael F. Black, of east Walnut street. While Mr. Black is a good carpenter, he enjoys the poultry business, and takes much interest in the hatching of chickens by means of incubators. He has this season hatched out over eight hundred peeps, and has been putting his young broilers into market during the past four weeks, receiving as much as 35 cents a pound for chicks hatched the first of March. He has several Plymouth Rock pullets that came out about the first of March that now weigh five and six pounds.

Iddo.

Those who have threshed their grain around here report a good yield.

William Mellott's were visiting Amos Barber's lately.

Job Plessinger had the misfortune to lose a valuable horse last week.

James Layton made a flying trip to Whips Cove.

We are glad to note that Sarah Plessinger who had been quite poorly is visiting among friends here at present.

We wish to inform the Whips Cove scribe in last week's News that Mrs. Samuel Trux, of Iddo, was the first to bring new cabbage from her garden this season for the harvest hands. Don't you think we have as good ground in Fulton county as in Maryland.

Amos Plessinger purchased a horse lately.

Job Trux made a business trip to Hancock last week. Although he is no boozier, if it had not been for the presence of mind of some of the kind-hearted merchants Tobie would have had to plod his way home on foot. Better tie your horse next time.

Don't you long for the good old days of the small boy when the sum total of his garments consisted of a hickory shirt, a pair of pants cut down from father's and a broad rimmed straw hat? The beauty of it all was that you could loff the whole outfit while racing to the creek in the effort to be the "first one in."

The H. C. Heckerman peanut factory, which was recently destroyed by fire at Bedford, has been replaced with machinery for peanut roasting and with its own electric light plant. The factory has a capacity of 800 bushels of roasted peanuts and 1,000 lbs. of salted peanuts a day. Employment is given to about 100. The fuel by which the steam is generated is the hulls from the peanuts, no coal being used. The exhaust steam is conveyed to the drying rooms of the factory. This is the largest industry of its kind in the United States.

While prize fighting is brutish in its tendency and is so revolting as to be now prohibited in every state of the Union except one, Johnson, the victor in the fight on the Fourth, has shown that he has grateful and generous impulses, even though he is fierce as a tiger while fighting. After his success which made for him about $120,000, one of his first acts was to remember a few friends in Texas who in his boyhood had done him special favors. To one who had rescued him from the water at Houston, when he was in danger of being drowned, he sent a check for $500, to another who had given him his first lessons in boxing he sent $750 and to one or two others he sent sums of from $250 upwards for kindly acts he had received.

Three Texas "Tightwads."

It is said that three of the stingiest men in the State were in town yesterday. One of them will not drink as much water as he wants unless it is from another man's well. The second forbids any of his family from writing anything but a "small hand," as it is a waste of ink to make large letters. The third stops his clock at night in order to save wear and tear on the machinery. All of them decline to take their country paper, on the ground that it is a terrible strain on their spectacles to read newspapers even in the daytime.

"Parker and his wife have separated." "What are the terms?" "They each get their cook for six months."

Many Women who are Splendid Cooks

dread having to prepare an elaborate dinner because they are not sufficiently strong to stand over an intensely hot coal range. This is especially true in summer. Every woman takes pride in the table sets, but often it is done at tremendous cost to her own vitality through the weakening effect of cooking on a coal range in a hot kitchen.

It is no longer necessary to wear yourself out preparing a fine dinner. Even in the heat of summer you can cook a large dinner without being worn out.

New Perfection Oil Cook-stove

Gives no outside heat, no small, no smoke. It will cook the biggest dinner without heating the kitchen or the cook. It is immediately lighted and immediately extinguished. It can be changed from a slow to a quick fire by turning a handle. There's no drudgery connected with it, no coal to carry, no wood to chop. You don't have to wait fifteen or twenty minutes till its fire gets going. Apply a light and it's ready. By simply turning the wick up or down you get a slow or a fast fire on the bottom of the pot, pan, kettle or oven, and nowhere else. It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot, drop shelves for coffee, teapot or saucepan, and even a rack for towels. It saves time, worry, health and temper. It does all a woman needs and more than she expects. Made with 1, 2, and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner sizes can be had with or without Cabinet.
