

Health Completely Restored After Case Was Pronounced Incurable.

Mrs. J. Tilghman Wright, 519 Goldborough St., Easton, Md., says: "I cannot begin to describe my suffering from Bright's disease. I constantly felt as if I were dying. My back pained me intensely and was so weak that for weeks I could not walk across the floor. My condition became critical and physicians pronounced me incurable. I started taking Doan's Kidney Pills as a last resort and soon received relief. When I began with them I weighed only 64 pounds. I now weigh 109 pounds and feel like a new woman."

Looking After the Eggs. A lady thirty who is four years old and never misses a trick, was taken the other evening to a restaurant for her supper, and with all the importance and sprightly dignity of her years calmly ordered poached eggs on toast. While the little family group was awaiting its service the "kiddie" amused herself by looking out of the window, pressing against a screen to get a closer view of something below. She was warned by her mother that the screen might give way and let her fall to the sidewalk, perhaps injuring her terribly. She drew away, thought a minute, and then said naively: "Would I fall if the screen went out?" "You certainly would," was her mother's reply. "And would I get awful hurt?" "Very likely." "Then what would the man do with the eggs?"

Somewhat Indignant. The two extra-specialists had pounded and sounded him, and felt of his pulse and tapped his frame till he could only lie in a cold perspiration of fear. "Undoubtedly it's a case of appendicitis," said specialist No. 1, gravely. "Undoubtedly!" assented specialist No. 2. "But would he be able to stand an operation?" pondered No. 1. "Ah, would he?" echoed No. 2. They dug him in the ribs again, and he squealed. "Ah," remarked No. 1, "I think we ought to let him get a bit stronger before we cut into him." "Confound your palaver!" gasped the patient, starting up. "What do you take me for—a cheese?"

An Exciting Town. Los Angeles is a truly exciting town to live in. To say nothing of its heavenly climate and its bombs, there is always something stimulating in the occult life going on. Just the other day a widow of the angelic city began to long for a sight of one of her schoolmates whom she had not seen for 45 years. The longing brought its fulfillment. A spirit told her to look for him in Brooklyn. She obeyed, met him on the street a few hours after she arrived, and promptly married him. It is worth while to live in a city where things like this happen, even at the risk of being blown up now and then.

Easy Marks. "Talk about yore easy marks," said Uncle Silas Gechaw, who had been passing a week in the city, "us rubes ain't in it with them air teowus cheap." "Did yew sell 'em enny gold bricks, Silas?" queried old Daddy Squash-neck. "Now, I didn't," answered Uncle Silas. "But I seld a feller peddin' artificial lee—hed th' sinner right on his wagon—an' blamed ef th' chumpas didn't buy it fer th' real thing, by grass!"

Not Even Mother. Little Bob was much distressed because the birthdays of his sister Adelaide and his baby brother were going to arrive before his did. "All the birthdays before mine," he mourned. "Couldn't you make mine come first, mawver?" "No," interposed Adelaide, decisively. "Nobody can change your birthday—not even mother!"

The mind ought sometimes to be diverted, that it may return the better to thinking—Phaedrus.

DRINK WATER TO CURE KIDNEYS AND RHEUMATISM. The People Do Not Drink Enough Water to Keep Healthy. Says Well-Known Authority.

The numerous cases of kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism are mainly due to the fact that the drinking of water, nature's greatest medicine, has been neglected. Stop loading your system with medicines and cure-alls; but get on the water wagon. If you are really sick, why, of course, take the proper medicine—plain, common vegetable treatment, which will not shatter the nerves or ruin the stomach. To cure Rheumatism you must make the kidneys do their work; they are the filters of the blood. They must be made to strain out of the blood the waste matter and acids that cause rheumatism; the urine must be neutralized so it will no longer be a source of irritation to the bladder, and, most of all, you must keep these acids from forming in the stomach. This is the cause of stomach trouble and poor digestion. For these conditions you can do no better than take the following prescription: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in bottle and take in copiousful doses after each meal and at bedtime, but don't forget the water. Drink plenty and often. This valuable information posted up in each household and used at the first sign of an attack of rheumatism, backache or urinary trouble, no matter how slight.

NEWS OF PENNSYLVANIA

Altoona.—In the interests of good roads, J. C. Dysart, the wealthy Hollidaysburg, informed the Altoona Motor Club that he intended to renew his offer of $400 in cash prizes to the township supervisors, showing the greatest improvement in the roads under their charge. He hung up this amount last fall, and there has been activity in road building all year. In a few days the judges will make their second inspection of the 862 miles of highways and award the prizes. All the townships in the county save four have signs at cross-roads and Dysart has promised to supply these. In addition to giving prizes he has also performed personal work for good roads.

Pittsburg.—Mrs. Rose Fireman, an Erin street grocery proprietress, is one woman who can throw straight. She surprised a negro burglar at the cash register, and, seizing a two-pound weight from the counter, she hurled it at the robber, striking him in the forehead and felling him. The negro had first begun to throw small-er weights at the woman, and for a few moments there was a veritable duel. The police came and took him away.

Lancaster.—Returning to her home after a dance, shortly before 12 o'clock, Miss Viola M. Spicher, 13 years, who had formerly lived at Thompston, Juniata county, discarded her ball dress, which she threw on the floor before retiring to bed. A piece of lace struck the gas jet and turned on the burner full head. In the morning the girl's body was found by members of her family, asphyxiation having occurred during the night.

Tamaqua.—Martin Starick, of Ligonier, employed as a miner in No. 4 Colliery, walked to his death in the No. 5 Shaft. He fell 485 feet to the bottom, landing upon Alex Samenski, a miner, awaiting to be hoisted, who was also instantly killed. Caught in the rising of the shaft at No. 6 Colliery, Clinton West-er, aged 16, of Summit Hill, was whirled to his death.

Williamsport.—Dr. F. L. Moyer, of this city, was arrested here on the charge of being implicated with Arthur A. Dunphy in the alleged theft of $50,000 from the Anglo-South American Bank, 69 Wall street, New York. Dunphy was arrested in Philadelphia on November 4 on a warrant from New York.

Altoona.—Captain Ephraim Gerst, aged 75, died at his home here. He served during the War of the Rebellion in the 125th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, and since then was always interested in military affairs, being for some years captain of Company C, Fifth Regiment, N. G. P.

Shenandoah.—According to the prices that coal sold at tidewater points, United States Commissioner of Labor Neill notified anthracite operators that the wages to be paid miners for November would be 4 per cent. above the basis, an increase of 1 per cent. over October.

South Bethlehem.—While John George, Joseph and Alexander Kallama, brothers, were hurrying home from work at the Bethlehem Steel Works along the railroad, a shifting engine dashed into them. John was struck and killed but his brothers escaped.

Williamsport.—When Charles Keener, a former policeman, refused to leave the office of Alderman Batzle the alderman fired a shot from a pistol at him. The bullet missed Keener and passed through a street door. Following the shot the former policeman made a hasty exit from the office.

York, Pa.—B. Frank Eaton, who was injured in the accident on the Maryland & Pennsylvania Railroad near Laurel, was brought here and died at 10.30 o'clock from his injuries. When the accident occurred it was thought he was only slightly hurt. He was 38 years old.

Reading.—Mrs. Mary J. Hanley, a visitor from Shamokin, stopped here while on her way home from Philadelphia. She dropped over uncon-scious and died in a few minutes. Her age was 42 years. Her husband is Fiske Hanley, of Shamokin.

Reading.—Jacob Hoffert, aged 68 years, a leading resident of Shilling-ton, this county, was found unconscious in a gravel pit a short distance from his home and died before medical aid could be summoned. Heart disease was the cause of death.

Mahanoy City.—William H. Davis, prominently identified with the State Blacksmiths' Association, died here, aged 55 years, following a lingering illness.

Shamokin.—Marr Klingerman, a well known resident of Shamokin township, was hurled from a conveyance by his team running away and falling under the animals was trampled on and terribly crushed. He will likely die from the injuries.

Consul Harry Conant writes that the Michigan Central tunnel from Windsor, Ontario, Canada, under the Detroit River to Detroit, Mich., was opened on September 19. Electric locomotives furnish the motive power.

The population of the country within 20 miles of New York's city hall, from the last official figures obtainable, was 5,332,000, equivalent to that of Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Boston, Baltimore and Columbus combined, or over half that of the combined States of New York and New Jersey.

MINNESOTA'S FOOTBALL STAR

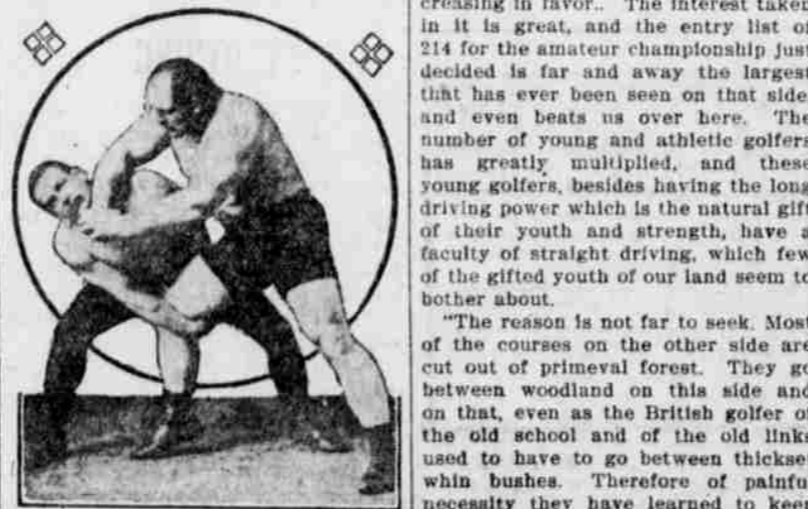

Johnny McGovern, Crack Quarterback.

To eulogize the work of any Minnesotan in particular in the recent game between the Gophers and Maroons, in which the latter team met defeat, would be only an injustice to the others, for the eleven in every department is so thoroughly and powerfully organized that it is equally irresistible on offense and defense. The 1,400-pound line ripped the lighter Maroon battle front into shreds or shoved it far out of the way and then turned and restated as a stone wall when attacked by the futile Maroon offense. The back field, led by the agile and alert little McGovern, was set for the Polish Wrestling Champion Here to Secure Another Bout With Gotch—Shows Improvement.

Stanislaus Zbyszko, champion wrestler of Poland, has returned to America. Zbyszko's object is to secure another match with Frank Gotch for the championship of the world. Gotch says he has retired, but with Hackenschmidt and Zbyszko after him he may come back. Zbyszko thinks Gotch tricked him into defeat and he is of the opinion he can stand off the world's champion now, especially since the disparity in age is greater than formerly. Zbyszko says Gotch promised him another chance after his defeat last winter. The Polish champion took three American wrestlers home with him and has been in constant training ever since. He has shown great improvement, his friends say, and is confident he will be able to send Gotch into permanent retirement. Although this has a strange familiarity sound, it must be admitted Gotch is growing old and Zbyszko is still young for a wrestler. Zbyszko has forwarded $1,000 to his manager, Jack Herman of Buffalo, who has posted that amount to bind the match.

NEW AND OLD LIGHTWEIGHTS

Present-Day Fighters Make Poor Comparison With Those of Olden Days, Says Roche.

"When you look over the present-day lightweights and remember those of ten or a dozen years ago, you can't help seeing the difference," said Billy Roche, the referee. "Here we have Wolgast, the champion; McFarland, Goodman, Tommy Murphy, Nelson, Baldwin and others, who are far below the old standard. Just look back and ask yourself what those fellows would have done with such great fighters as Kid Lavigne, George McFadden, Dal Hawkins, Frank Erne, Kid McParland and Spike Sullivan. Why, Lavigne would have stopped Wolgast, Nelson or McFarland in less than ten rounds; Hawkins, a harder hitter than Lavigne, would have done the trick. Joe Gans, who was in his prime when he stopped Hawkins, Erne, Sullivan, McFarland and others, was an old man when Nelson beat him for the title. Nelson never knew how to box. He was just a game fellow, who could take a beating until he had the other fellow tired out. He was suffering from weak kidneys when he was trimmed by Wolgast and the latter was a good, safe bet. Wolgast can't hit, but he can box and is a stayer. He's not a representative champion, though, because he doesn't want to fight and at the same time take a chance with his title."

SPORTING FACTS AND FANCIES

London has two municipal golf courses; Brighton and Nottingham, one each; Edinburgh, ten, and Glasgow, three. If the University of Chicago baseball team opened the eyes of Japan fans what will Jimmy McAleer's All-Star nine do in 1911? Major DeMar (1:59%) and George G. (2:05%) are earning their board and needed exercises as errand boys at Ardmar farm, the home of Dingen. William Fife, the English yacht designer, has accepted a contract to build a racing schooner, capable of defeating the American-built yawl Westward, which won at Kiel and Cowes. The prospective owner's name would not be divulged by Fife. Pitcher Cole has been signed up for three years at an increased salary. The fact should inspire the youth of the land to emulation. But while it is true that every American boy cannot become a great baseball pitcher some may fall just short of the mark and be presidents.—Chicago Daily News.

NEVER FORGOT HIS START

"Chick" Fraser, Veteran Pitcher, Tells of Early Career—Took Great Care of Arm.

BY "CHICK" FRASER. (Copyright, 1910, by Joseph B. Bowles.) It has been so long ago that I scarcely remember when I started, but I never shall forget how I got my start. I had not the least idea of pitching baseball professionally but had mapped out a career for myself as an expert accountant.

At that time there existed in Chicago an organization called the Boys' league. I was small and not strong, but I wanted to be a pitcher. The bigger boys didn't want me to play on the team even. I saw I hadn't a chance against them in strength, so determined to beat them some way and I sat down and studied the work of every pitcher I saw work. I went to the National league grounds every week to a famous little pitcher worked and saw how he did it. Then I went with my own crowd of boys and tried out all the things I had seen. One day I braced the manager of the Ogdena in the Boys' League and demanded a chance to pitch. I told him I could pitch better than any pitcher he had and made it so strong I guess he decided I must be as good as I said I was. He put me in a game a few days later and I won, but imitating the pitching I had been studying I realized then that there were two things for me to do; first to take good care of my arm, and second to keep on studying the game.

I do not want to place myself in the position of criticizing young players who are coming into the game but it seems to me that half of those I have seen tried and sent back as failures, failed merely because they thought they knew it all as soon as they got into the big leagues, and stopped progressing just at the time they ought to have been working hardest to learn more.

I jumped from the Boys' League into fast company and soon was known as a "smart" pitcher. They called me smart chiefly because I studied and worked hard and was willing to learn anything anyone would show me. The care of my arm and body was always first in my mind. I worked as hard as anyone, but never neglected the salary arm. Mostly I used light massage, never a hard one, and light vibrations. Then too, I pitched in heavy flannels and guarded the arm and shoulder from cold. When I warmed up hard before a game I always changed to dry warm flannels before sitting on the bench and in that way avoided catching cold or having the arm stiffen up on me. Having made the start successfully I worked harder than ever and when my arm finally began to weaken a bit I studied out a new system of slants and used that. I adopted everything new that came into the game and applied it to my style of pitching. I think this constant study of the game, and constant care of the arm added many years to my active service.

MADE INSANE BY ATHLETICS

College Boy of Noted Ancestry Suffers Through Ambition to Become Famous as Athlete.

Samuel J. Randall Lancaster, son of Charles C. Lancaster, a prominent lawyer who practices in the supreme court at Washington, is suffering from dementia in the Hood Yacht hospital, New York. He is a member of the Pennsylvania university football team. Associates say he was made insane by athletics. It was Lancaster's ambition to become a great runner, to lower running records, and do many other things that would win him fame. An entry in his diary read: "Got in good condition on track team so that you can win a medalion." The young man is a grandson of the famous Samuel J. Randall.

ATTACK RACING IN MARYLAND

Baltimore Presbyterian Synod Demands Legislation Prohibiting Bookmaking at Tracks.

Legislation prohibiting bookmaking at race tracks in Maryland is demanded in a resolution adopted unanimously by the Baltimore Presbyterian synod at its annual meeting the other day. The synod is made up of clergymen of that denomination in Maryland and the District of Columbia. The legislature is also called upon to enact a law making illegal the publication of betting odds in advance of the races by the newspapers of the state. No legislative action can be had, however, for more than a year, as the Maryland general assembly does not meet until January, 1912.

MADE HIS APOLOGY AMPLE WANTED 'EM BACK.

Irish Legislator Even Withdrew the Words That He Was About to Utter. There is in congress a western representative of Celtic origin who has more than once "stirred up the animals" by his propensity to bait the opposition. On one occasion he rose to denounce the statements made in a speech that had been delivered by a member of the other party. His impetuosity led him to phrase his remarks rather strongly. "Order, order!" exclaimed the speaker, pointing with his gavel. Again, in a minute or two, did the son of Erin return to his charge of wilful misstatement. Again was he called to "order." It was a critical moment. His colleagues, for motives of policy, did not wish him to be put out of the debate, so they hinted so by tugging vigorously at his coat tails. Now, it's a very dangerous matter to triffl with the tails of an Irishman's coat save in the cause of friendship. Nevertheless, the indignant yet good-natured member recognized the command of his party and sat down after delivering this Parthian dart: "I obey the ruling of the house, and I beg to retract what I was about to observe!" That one touch of Irish oratory took the whole house by storm.—Lippincott's.

Back to the Wild. There was a time when all dogs were wild and when what we call wolves were different from other dogs only as a collie now is different from a Newfoundland, for instance. From time to time you will hear of dogs that have returned to the life of their ancestors and have run wild with the wolves of the prairie or of the woods. In the town of Sandy in Oregon a greyhound one night made the acquaintance of a coyote, which is a kind of wolf, and ever since he has lived away from the town, running with the coyotes and approaching human dwelling-places only to steal a hen or two when he has been more than usually hungry.

A Touch of Family Life. When the country youth proposed to the city girl, he received the conventional assurance that she would be his sister. It happened that this youth had sisters at home and knew exactly his privileges. So he kissed her. At this juncture she availed herself of the sisterly right to call out to father that brother was teasing her. Father responded in good, muscular earnest. Then the new brother-and-sister relation was dissolved by mutual consent.—Judge.

What's in a Name? "See here, waiter," said Mr. Grouch, growling deeply over his plate. "I ordered turtle soup. There is not even a morsel of turtle flavor in this." "Of course not, sir," returned the waiter. "What do you expect? Shakespeare said there was nothing in a name. If you ordered college pudding would you expect a college in it? In Manchester pudding would you look for a ship canal or a cotton exchange? And tea, sir?"—Tit-Bits.

MORE THAN EVER increased Capacity for Mental Labor Since Leaving ON Coffee.

Many former coffee drinkers who have mental work to perform, day after day, have found a better capacity and greater endurance by using Postum instead of ordinary coffee. An Illinois woman writes: "I had drank coffee for about twenty years, and finally had what the doctor called 'coffee heart.' I was nervous and extremely despondent; had little mental or physical strength left, had kidney trouble and constipation.

"The first noticeable benefit derived from the change from coffee to Postum was the natural action of the kidneys and bowels. In two weeks my heart action was greatly improved and my nerves steady. "Then I became less despondent, and the desire to be active again showed proof of renewed physical and mental strength. "I am steadily gaining in physical strength and brain power. I formerly did mental work and had to give it up on account of coffee, but since using Postum I am doing hard mental labor with less fatigue than ever before."
