

CHAMPION GOTCH MAY MEET "HACK"

FRANK GOTCH

There is a bare possibility after all that Frank Gotch, retired wrestling champion of the world, may reconsider his intentions and sign articles to meet Hackenschmidt in a finish bout for the world's title.

WOLGAST WILL FIGHT MORAN

Declares Englishman Will Be His First Opponent When He Returns Early in the Spring.

In the following article, published by the Chicago Tribune, Ad Wolgast, the most criticized pugilistic champion in the ring today, attempts to answer his critics and incidentally tells what his intentions are in regard to Owen Moran and the rest of the lightweights who are clamoring at the championship door for recognition:

I am a fighter, not a press agent, but I have been attacked so much and roasted so generously that I believe it is up to me to tell the public a few facts. All this talk about my alleged loading does not bother me a bit, for when I get in shape I'll step out and make all my critics take off their hats to me.

And right here let me say that Moran will get the first chance. I held him to a draw in New York when I had never fought anybody but dubs, and had only been in the business a year, so does it stand to reason that I fear him now, when I have improved 1,000 per cent. and he is the same scrapper he was three years ago?

I have had two fights since I won the title from Nelson last February, and there has been an awful yell because I have not boxed oftener. If my "panning" friends would take time to remember they would probably re-
