"These colors are as near absolutely fast as can be produced," says the American Wool and Cotton Reporter, "and have been adopted by the United States Government to be used in army uniforms after being submitted to very severe tests.

"The dyeing of these colors on cotton yarn is very simple, especially when you use the Scotch tub system of dyeing. The proper way to dye those colors is to use the vacuum type of dye machine, as the dyestuff experts say that all air ought to be got out of the cotton before the dyestuff is put to it, and this type of machine is best suited for that purpose because in this system the cotton is stationary and the dye liquor is forced through the cotton by means of

Tossing in the Blanket.

Tossing in the blanket, which has been forbidden to the troops of the Aldershot division as the sequel to a fatal accident, is a very old sport or punishment. "Blanketing," Ben Jonson called it, and in Hollinshed (1577) we find a denunciation of "jesting, placing, blanketing, and such other filthie and dishonourable exercises." The French have a special verb, "berner," for it, "berne" being the name given to the sheet or blanket used. Sancho Panza's tossing is certainly the most famous in literature, and the question arises whether the practice came to France via Spain from Morocco. For the verb "berner" is also used for the Moorish punishment, in which four men hold the victim by his ankles and wrists and send him as high as they can-presumably with no blanket to catch him.-London

Tree Planting on English Waste Land. Coke of Holkham, so we learn from Mr. W. H. R. Curtler's short "History of English Agriculture," began his great agricultural work about 1776 on an estate where, as old Lady Townshend said, "all you will see will be one blade of grass, and two rabbits fighting for that"; in fact it was little better than a rabbit warren. He transformed the bleak, bare countryside by planting fifty acres of trees every year until he had 3,000 acres well covered, and in 1832 had probably the unique experience of embarking in a ship which was built of oak grown from the acorns he had himself planted. Between 1776 and 1842 (the date of his death) he is said to have spent £536,992 on improving his estate.-London Globe,

Dog and Horse.

As compared with the dog the horse is a stupid animal. The animal trainer will tell you that in intelligence it is "nip and tuck" between the dog and the elephant, and that in comparison with either of these animals the horse is nowhere. It is only in his docility and affection that the horse is the "anims next to man," and even in these respects the dog is a worthy competitor with him. When comes to "knowing things" faithful friend the horse is left far behind by our other friend and companion, the dog.

Spectacles.

The invention of spectacles is variously attributed to Alessandro di Spina, who died at Pisa in 1313; to Al Hazen the Arabian (eleventh century), and to Roger Bacon (1214-92). It is quite safe to suppose that the invention was not earlier than the beginning of the eleventh century.
