FOOD IN SERMONS Feed the Dominie Right and the Sermons Are Brilliant.

A conscientious, hard-working and successful clergyman writes: "I am glad to hear testimony to the pleasure and increased measure of efficiency and health that have come to me from adopting Grape-Nuts food as one of my articles of diet.

"For several years I was much distressed during the early part of each day by indigestion. My breakfast seemed to turn sour and failed to digest. After dinner the headache and other symptoms following the breakfast would wear away, only to return, however, next morning. "Having heard of Grape-Nuts food, I finally concluded to give it a trial. I made my breakfasts of Grape-Nuts with cream, toast and Postum. DOINGS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

Grief Mention of Matters as They Occur at the State Capital Official and Otherwise.

The surprise of the week in the lower branch of the Legislature was the defeat of a measure carrying Administration indorsement and urged for passage by not only Organization leaders, but by Representative Dearden, the official mouthpiece of the independent forces. The bill, which suffered defeat on account of a constitutional majority, was the insursince tax bill providing for a tax upon the gross receipts of fire insurance companies, the proceeds of which were intended to maintain the anti-ipated fire marshal's department. It was an open fight on the floor between the mutual and standard companies. The chief point of contention between the opposing factions was that the standard companies were conducting their business for a profit, while the mutual companies confined themselves to local risks and gained no profit from their business. The purpose of the bill, as explained by Mr. Dearden, was to provide a fund that would establish a system which would eventually lessen insurance risks and result in a lower insurance rate for the insured.

The mutual forces, however, were better organized and stood by their guns regardless of the assurance that gladly quoted and orders filled by the measure had administration support. The bill fell by a vote of 95 to 79. The floor leaders will endeavor to have the bill reconsidered at a later date and have been promised support from sources that were allied with the mutual interests.

Close Vote On Referendum.

When the bill providing for a Councilmanic body to nine members In Pittsburg and Scranton came up on second reading, an attempt was made to insert the initiative, referendum and recall in the measure but the efforts were defeated. Mr. Welngartner, of Lawrence, offered the inifative and referendum taken from the Pittaburg charter plan, introduced earlier in the session and the vote resulted 20 noes and 17 ayes.

The recall amendment, also taken from the Pittsburg plan was presented by Mr. Jarrett, of Mercer, and the vote was, noes, 27; yeas, 12. The bill then passed second reading. The Pittsburg plan bill is still in one of the House committees.

Seek Simpler Recording System.

Senator Vare introduced in the Senate a concurrent resolution directing the Legislative Reference Bureau to inquire into the system of recording mortgages and deeds in other States, with the view of adopting an up-to-date system in Pennsylvania to take the place of the present method, which is 200 years old. It was immediately reported out and passed.

The Senate adopted the House resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of seven to cooperate with the National Committee in the work of preparing a celebration on the one hundredth anniversary of the conclusion of peace between America and England. The treaty was signed at Ghent, on Decomber 24, 1814.

Toll Bridge Bill Passes House.

The bill for a commission to investigate cost of freeing all toll bridges passed in the House finally by 129 to 16.

Among bills reported from committees were: Permitting employment of criminals on public works; Senate bill regulating life Insurance companies doing business in Pennsylvania and authorizing boroughs to condemn land for wharves.

ALCOHOL LEADS TO DISEASE

Most Potent Factor in Propagation of Tuberculosis, Declares Prof. P. Brouardel of Paris.

It has long been known that the use of alcohol induced in man a condition which makes his system liable to disease of various kinds, and also made he cure of disease even more difficult.

At a recent medical congress of tuberculosis in London, a number of declarations were made concerning the effect of alcohol drinking in producing the disease, which were practically ignored by the general press, and received very scant treatment in scientific papers.

At that gathering of medical scien tists Prof. P. Brouardel, dean of the Faculty of Medicine of Paris, read a paper on tuberculosis in which he stated that, in some countries, it was "accountable for a sixth, a fifth, and sometimes a fourth of the total mortallty from all causes." He further stated that "the public house is the purveyor of tuberculosis," and that 'alcoholism is the most potent factor in its propagation."

Tuberculosis is one of the most deadly of all the physical diseases which scour humanity, and we have it on very high authority that most of it is due to drink. It is a startling statement, and ought to have received wide publicity. But anything which would hinder the consumption of alcohol, that "pleasant poison" to which so many are passionately devoted, is carefully concealed.

The following is the salient portion of Professor Brouardel's important declaration:

"In fact, alcoholism is the most potent factor in propagating tuberculois. The strongest man, who has once taken to drink, is powerless against it. Time is too short for me now to draw comparisons between the laws in force in different countries, those which are proposed, private efforts, associated efforts, and temperance so cieties. But I can say, that a universal cry of desnair rises from the whole universe at the sight of the disaster caused by alcoholism."

"Any measures, state or individual, tending to limit the ravages of alcohol ism, will be our most precious auxillaries in the crusade against tuberculosis, but the question is too large a one to deal with here. Still, I should like to draw attention to a mistake made too easily in the different countries by ministers who have charge of the financial department of the State. They like to calculate the sum the state gets from the duty on alcohol, but they should deduct from it the cost to the community of the family of the ruined drunkard, his degenerates, infirm, scrofulous and epileptic children, who must have shelter."

"This invasion of alcoholism ought to be regarded by every one as a public danger, and the principle, the truth which is incontestable, should be inculcated into the masses, that the future of the world will be in the hands of temperance."

The dean of the Faculty of Medicine in Paris was not alone in his contention. At the same congress Dr. A. T. Kelynack of Manchester, in the course of a paper on the same subject, said:

"Alcoholism and tuberculosis stand foremost amongst the conditions hampering human progress and limiting man's happiness. Through them the evolution of the race has long been impeded, and, unfortunately, in spite of numerous restraining and restricting efforts, their baneful influence is still accountable for a high degree of mortality and an immense amount of sickness and suffering. "With two such morbid influences barring human advance, it was but natural that eager minds studying the one should have been compelled to recognize the presence and action of the other'

Home Cooking Improves. "If a man goes to work from a breakfast of baker's bread and poor coffee," inquired a cooking teacher, recently, "how is he to resist the temptation of the 'free clam chowder' or the 'hot free lunch' so conspicuously displayed at the saloon?" The same teacher knows several men who have been won from intemperate habits by an improvement in the home cooking. One of these men recently came to her door with a plate of corn muffins to show. On being assured that they were perfect, he said that he made them himself from the directions of his wife, who was III in bed, but who had passed on to him her carefully learned lesson of the week be-

Drunkenness Among Women. Among the incurable drunkards of London, that is, among persons charged with the offense of drunkenness who have been convicted more than ten times, 8,900 are women and 4,300 are men. So there are more than twice as many incurable women drunkards in London as there are men. This sounds appalling. It is appalling. Add to this the fact that in the last twenty years the deaths of women from chronic alcoholism-or, in plain words, from drink-have increased 145 per cent, and there is all too evident a position of things that may well shock the English people, and cause them to look very seriously into the situation.

In a late issue of the Scientific Magazine, published in Leipsic, an article on alcohol states that the Germans in America are largely ruined mentally and physically, by liquor. On the foundation of long experience in the United States the author says that much more beer is consumed by the Germans in America than in the home counutry, and that this has greatly increased the mortality sweng them.
