EDNA FERRENBURG.

Details of Terrible Accident at Gibsonburg, Ohio, On 5th Instant.

The NEWS last week told of the shocking death of Edna Ferrenberg, wife of Mr. A. H. Miller, at Gibsonburg, Ohio. From a Gibsonburg newspaper we get a more detailed account of the affair. Mrs. Miller's mother and children formerly resided in McConnellsburg and moved to Ohio in 1884.

Mrs. A. H. Miller, wife of A. H. Miller, proprietor of the Gibsonburg Coal & Ice Co., and one of Gibsonburg's foremost women, met instant death last Friday afternoon, [May 5] about 3 o'clock, and Ray Zorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Zorn, sustained severe injuries, when an automobile in which they were driving was struck at the Main street crossing by passenger train due at Gibsonburg at 3 p. m.

That Ray Zorn, nephew of the victim and the only other occupant of the car, did not meet a like fate, is miraculous. That he escaped with his life may be attributed to the fact that he clung with wonderful desperation to the steering wheel and was, consequently, not thrown from the machine with as much force as his companion. He sustained a severe cut on the left shoulder, several scalp wounds were inflicted, his back and both hands were cut and bruised, and the back of his left hand badly cut.

The fatality occurred while Ray and his aunt were on their way home from Tinney, to which place they had gone for Mrs. Miller's daughter, Faye, who has been teaching school in that village. Friday was the last day of school, and they had gone to bring her home. The closing of the schools was celebrated with an old-fashioned picnic, teachers, pupils and many citizens joining in the pleasures of the day. They had been accompanied on the trip to the picnic grounds by Miss Garnet Smith. When the scene of the festivities was reached, Faye was loath to leave, and decided to remain until later in the day. She persuaded Miss Smith to remain and take in the picnic. Shortly after Ray and Mrs. Miller started on their return trip. Ray was driving the machine, while his aunt occupied the seat by his side.

That neither of the occupants of the auto saw or heard the approaching train until it was too late is evident. The engine crashed into the tonneau of the car, hurling it into the air and throwing it about sixty feet down South Main street. The machine, a five passenger touring car, belonging to F. W. Zorn, (husband of Nora Ferrenberg) was completely demolished. One of the tires, from which all the spokes had been torn, was found on the ground formerly occupied by the Hughes Machine Shop. Mrs. Miller was thrown from the auto with such force that the momentum of her body carried her over the pavement for a distance equal to that of which the car was thrown, and she struck her face against the curbing of the pavements on the east side of the street. When picked up her head was hanging over the curbing, while her body rested on the lawn.

Whether Zorn was thrown from his seat or not is not known. It is generally believed, however, that he clung to the wheel until the car finally landed, when the sudden stopping pitched him out on the ground. He was the first to reach the side of his aunt, to whom he rushed as soon as he regained his feet. The automobile landed beside the curbing on the west side of the street, almost opposite the spot where the body of Mr. Miller was found. The awful impact of the engine and the auto threw the latter with such force that it was completely turned around and faced the opposite direction to which it had been going. Parts of the machine were scattered along the pavement, while pieces of the wind shield, which was completely shattered, were strewn all along the course of the machine after being hit.

Mrs. Miller returned home less than three weeks ago from Upland, Cal., where she had spent several months, having been called there by the death of a brother-in-law, Perry Smith.

Mrs. Miller is survived by her mother, Mrs. Catherine Ferrenberg, her husband, two daughters, Miss Faye, who taught school this year at Tinney, and Miss Leah, who is studying to be a trained nurse at a Toledo hospital. There are also three sisters, Mrs. F. W. Zorn, Miss Olive Ferrenberg, of Gibsonburg, and Mrs. Perry Smith, of Upland, Cal.

LOCAL HISTORY.

ing the day. I remember well many of the copies I used to try to imitate. "Comparisons are odious." "Many men of many minds, many birds of many kinds." "Procrastination is the thief of time" and "Evil communications corrupt good manners," were some of them. However, not all copies were of this character. Some of the more progressive teachers would write, as a copy, a sentence expressing a scientific truth, a fact of history or something about some one whose name was famous. Goose quill pens went out of use in Wells Valley schools about 1854 or 1855.

The difficulty, in the matter of classification, in the schools, owing to the use of too many different text books was got rid of in 1854. At a meeting of the board of school directors, held on Oct. 20th, of that year, a series of text books, to be used in all the schools, was adopted. Five directors were present at that meeting and their action was unanimous. It seems to me that it is due to the memory of those faithful directors, every one of whom had seen years of service as a director, who made this long stride in advance, the first action of kind in Wells Valley and no doubt the first in Fulton county, that I should here record their names. They were Joshua Edwards, David Osborne, Henry Keith, John Sharrer and John S. Houck. At that time the school law authorized directors to adopt text books but did not make it obligatory upon them to do so. This in connection with the fact that they knew their action would arouse bitter criticism and opposition, serves to show in plainest light, that they were men, who had at heart, the best interests of the schools and that there was not a self seeker or time server among them.

To show that these old directors knew just what they were doing, I give a list of the books they adopted. They were McGuffey's readers and spellers, Davie's series of mathematics, Bullion's grammar, Mitchell's geography, Olmstead's philosophy, Olney's astronomy, Webster's dictionary and the Bible. Many changes in text books, for use in Wells Valley schools, have been made since that day, nearly 60 years ago, but has there any improvement ever been made since that time?

In 1853, there was a blackboard suspended on the wall in the old Gibson house—or two of them, rather; they contained about 15 feet of surface and hung on leather straps. When they were first placed there I do not know but it was prior to 1851. There was no blackboard in any other school house until 1855. At that time a blackboard was placed in No. 2 school house and another in No. 4. There were no crayons in use before 1855. Chalk was used. It came in large hemispherical blocks. Up to 1875, teacher or pupils or both paid for chalk, crayons, brooms and water pails. No wash basin could be seen in any Wells Valley school house in those days. They were not needed. Gibson's Run was very close to the old Gibson house, Roaring Run right by the Biven house and a beautiful little stream murmured within a few feet of the Camp spring house, then why buy wash basins? How they got along at No. 2 where there was neither spring nor stream I know it. There were no towels but what of that? Did not every country boy and girl carry a good serviceable cotton handkerchief at all times and one that could be depended upon in any emergency?

Globes, outline maps, counting frames, reading charts, and Ellsworth's writing books were placed in all the schools in 1867. The action of the school board in doing this resulted in the permanent retirement at end of his term, of every member who voted in favor of expense necessary to introduce them. Among these, was that veteran director J. G. Cunningham, than whom no more faithful, true and conscientious school director ever served any people. He was held responsible, by a certain class of people, for having most influenced the members of the school board in their action. That class of people were not yet ready to endorse such costly foolishness as furnishing schools with globes, maps, reading cards, counting frames, etc.

Many Features in N. A. Baseball Supplement.

With more features than have ever before appeared in one edition, the annual baseball supplement of The North American will appear Sunday, May 21.

For years this special baseball number has been regarded as the greatest work of its kind ever published, and this spring's edition will far surpass all previous ones.

Color pages, illustrating the speed that is required in the national game and group pictures of the Athletics and Phillies are only a few of the features.

The Tristate page contains pictures of all the players in the league, and a special story on the batting, fielding and other figures of the men in the circuit.

"Diplomatic Strokes of Our Baseball Jeffersons," an illustrated story, gives the fans a good idea of the inside workings of a big league team, and contains many humorous incidents about stars of the past and present.

All the minor leagues, independent and amateur teams from all parts of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware are given special mention in the big supplement. Pictures of the managers and captains of 100 of these teams are included.

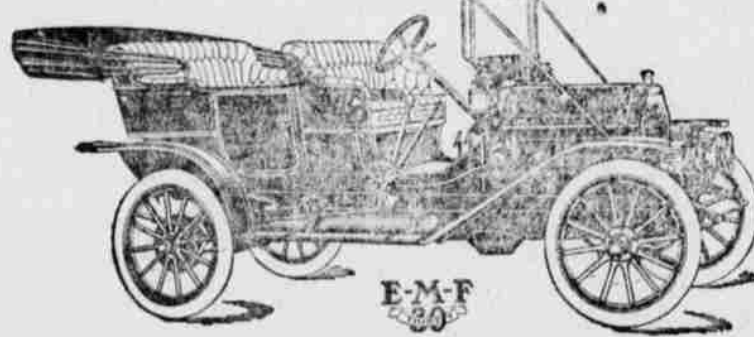

On the school and college pages all the leaders are shown, and there are stories on the progress of the various nines.

A page is devoted to the New York State, Main Line, Columbia County and Tricounty Leagues, with interesting stories and pictures. The Bucks county, North Penn and Delaware county circuits are also featured.

A complete directory and personnel of the Philadelphia and nearby semiprofessional and amateur teams occupy two pages, with pictures of the captains and managers. The supplement shows the marked strides baseball has made, and is well worth purchasing.

A Welcome Change

Smoke curling up from the farmhouse chimney as the men are coming in from the fields, gives a pretty suggestion of a good supper and a comfortable home. But it also means a hot, tired woman, working hard over a blazing fire.

Your wife can escape this with a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

A New Perfection keeps a kitchen many degrees cooler than any other range, yet it does all a coal or wood range can do. It saves time, labor and fuel. No wood to cut; no coal to carry; no ashes; no soot. With the New Perfection oven it is the best cooking device you can find anywhere.

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys. Hand-simply finished throughout. The 2- and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with drop shelves, towel racks, etc. Dealers everywhere; or write for descriptive circular to the nearest agency of The Atlantic Refining Company (Incorporated)
