To Pray for the Rich.
Two women prominent in St. Louis have started a movement to induce 200,000 of their sex in the south to pray every day for the rich. They explain they hope by organizing system-atically groups of women who will pray often and well for the more afflu-ent, wealthy persons will be led to contribute to a fund for the evangeliza-tion of the world. Belle H. Ben-nett, president of the woman's mis-sionary council of the Methodist Epis-copal church south and Mrs. R. W. McDonnell are the originators of the plan.

Ready for Duty

Personal Exploits in the Great Civil War, Told by Veterans

AMOUS examples of courage under arms are usually those displayed in some desperate sortie or some very spirited, if brief, action. The courage demanded to face imminent danger for days or weeks without faltering, though less celebrated, is certainly of as high an order. It was courage such as this which made possible the long, tedious siege of Petersburg, perhaps the most trying campaign in its way of the entire war. The life behind the bombproofs is vividly recalled by J. H. Campbell.

"We were for three months under continuous fire. Our position was well within range of the enemy, who kept up their fire almost without cessation.

"There are a number of bombproofs and a series of sheltered roads connecting them, so that we could pass from one to another. It is one thing to make a charge or meet one, but quite another to work day after day,

On the Mississippi

THE most continuous fighting in the navy during the war was probably encountered by the smaller boats engaged in keeping the lower Mississippi open to Union expedi-tions. The river was of course well supplied with forts, many of them very powerful ones, but the banks were in addition lined almost continuously with small guns, cannon and sharpshooters. Charles Just, com-mander of Rowles Post, New York, who spent the greater part of the war in this region, in recalling these days,

"We didn't so much mind the forts, although they were bad enough, as the bushwhackers. Any southerner with a gun or a pistol could fire at us with comparative safety from the shore trees and bushes. As a result there was a continuous peppering of shots from off shore day and night. One was never safe for an instant. The bullets raked our decks from several quarters at once, no matter what our position. They used minie balls and occasionally they would bring up

"Bloody Angle"

THE most deadly battle of the en-tire war, Pickett's famous charge, is recalled by scores of soldiers. One of these veterans, who was wounded on the third day at Gettysburg, J. H. Block, of the Sumner Post, New York, carried the bullet he received until very recently.

"We stood behind Pickett's charge," said he. "It is a matter of history, of course, how frightful the loss was. Later, when we came to count the cost, we found, as all the world knows, that some of our regiments had lost 75 per cent. of all the men who went into the fight. I am told that there is no such loss recorded elsewhere in military history.

"The fighting at 'Bloody Angle' be-gars description. In any ordinary bat-tle, even a lively one, you may see a man drop from time to time, and in a desperate charge the ground may be, as the saying is, covered with the dead and wounded. But that is an exaggeration. After a hard battle I have seen bodies scattered pretty thickly, but the ground was not lit-night after night, and not know what instant will be your last. One gets accustomed to anything, and curiously enough one of the greatest dangers was that we would grow so familiar with our danger that we would ignore it. Familiarity breeds contempt for bursting shells and sharpshooters, as for anything else, but to relax for a moment and step for an instant be-yond the shelter might cost one his life."

AT the battle of Lookout Mountain a New York regiment was in the front rank and contributed greatly in determining the issue. The work of the 215th New York in this famous engagement is by no means as familiar as it should be. James Schmiding, who fought in this reg-iment, now the commander of J. L. Riker Post, and who incidentally fought in seventeen pitched battles, in recalling the fight above the clouds,

"Our regiment was early on the scene, and this promptness had an important effect on the fortunes of the day. The battle, it will be remem-bered, was fought above the clouds. Now, in fighting, the position of the troops at the beginning often decides the battle in advance. Since this bat-tle was fought practically on a moun-tain top, on very high ground, the troops holding an elevated position naturally had an immense advantage. Our regiment held an important van-tage point, but we were ahead of the main army and faced a force vastly superior in numbers. It was a ques-tion of hours before our reinforce-ments could come in. I think every man realized what depended upon us. We lost heavily, but we held our ground until the main army arrived, a nine-pound howitzer. When they got too hot we would try to dislodge them with our cannon and, failing this, we would go ashore and chase them, but they always came back.

"In our patrol we had of course to pass the forts, when we would be raked by their heavier guns. We seemed to be always in trouble. With both sides of the river against us, we would sometimes be raked by a cross fire from two or more forts at the same time. Even on the quietest day one was afraid to show himself on deck, for the minie balls would cut us down when we least expected them. I was a soldier before the war, having served in the Crimea. I had been cap-tured by the British and spent six months in a tread mill jail in London, but those minie balls were the most insidious danger I have ever met."

As Galsworthy Saw Life.
The wisdom of John Galsworthy: Like dies caught among the im-palpable and smoky threads of cobwebs, so men struggle in the webs of their own natures, giving here a start, there a pitiful small jerking, long sustained, and falling into stillness.

erally covered. But after Bloody An-gle it would have been impossible to exaggerate the awful loss. Some regi-ments were reduced to a mere hand-ful of men. Many of the companies were practically wiped out of exist-ence. Imagine the most fatal rail-road wreck, when scarcely any one succeeds in escaping from the cars, and you will have some idea of the appearance of our regiments. I went through the three days unharmed, but on the last of the third day a bullet caught me in the leg. I carried that bullet for 40 years until a bad fall made it necessary to extract it."

Indian Tribes Amalgamate.
Students of the Indian tale us that while the numbers of the red men are diminishing there is a slow amal-gamation of the tribes wherever their geographical location makes this pos-sible. It is supposed that there were 1,000,000 Indians on this continent when the Europeans settled here. In 1885 a government report showed an Indian population of 350,000, and it is estimated that the present population is 50,000 less.

FOR ADVERTISING PURPOSES

"Sleeping cars are expensive to the railway companies, but we run them for the advertising they give us."—Railway Official.

They say they will make the rate cheaper for us who at night on the train Attempt to find rest on the sleeper, And find all our efforts in vain, O ye who bumps heads while undress-ing, O ye who use language that's bad, Ye've done it these years without guess-ing: The sleeper is run as an ad.

Each of us—the empty or full man, The actor, the drummer, and all Who clamber aboard of the Pullman— We ride on an ad. that they haul. 'Tis not a news story or item In which we are sending our way, And passing out tips infinitum When leaving the car the next day.

Ab, no! In the classified section, "Help Wanted," or maybe "For Sale," We scoot in the chosen direction And bark to the effect of the rail. And sometimes, in truth, in the morning We trudge down the aisle in array, That all the conventions is scorned— "The then that we ran as "Display."

O, let us be soberly solemn, And ask why we cannot appear Once in the society column, And not in an ad. at the rear? Some day when the trains are more speedy, Perhaps much less time we will lose, Be cause we are then—yes, indeed!— Sent on with the telegraph news.

But now when you crawl to the upper, Or lower, whichever you take, And sigh that your dining car supper Will keep you forever awake, Be humble, and don't feel inflated, Because you are given such place— Remember you only are rated, As filing so much ad. space.

COMMENDABLE ASPIRATIONS.

"Young man," asked Papa Richly, "may I ask if your intentions toward Louise are honorable?"
"They are, sir," said the trembling beau.
"Well, don't you think it would be best if you devoted your time and thought to acquiring some little for-tune before you think of getting mar-ried to any one?"
"O, sir, I am combining the two am-bitions. If I marry your daughter I will have solved the financial prob-lem."

Good Work.
"You will become the wife of a fa-mous man," says the fortune teller.
"But I don't want to be the wife of a notable, and be unheard of all the time for that reason."
"Ah, miss," explains the soothsayer, "your husband will be famous only because he has such a beautiful wife."
With a pretty smile of deprecation, the damsel inadvertently pays the for-tune teller twice his usual fee.

More Requisites.
"Ah," said the sentimental girl, "a man should be happy if he feels that he can have his wife's trust."
"Yes, he should," agreed the prac-tical young man.
"If he knows that she trusts him all the time, he—"
"That's right, but he'll feel a whole lot better if he knows that the gro-cer and the coal man and all the others will trust him, too."

In the Gloom.
"Who was Mingo?" asks the man with the disconcerted whiskers.
"Mingo?" repeats the man with the cantilever nose. "Mingo? Seems to me I've heard the name before, but I can't place it at this moment. Why do you ask?"
"Went to a concert last night, and some one sang a song about 'In the Gloom, Mingo, My Darling.'"

Interested the Judge.
"Your honor," said the plaintiff in the divorce proceedings, "I charge cruel and inhuman treatment. My husband hypnotized me into thinking that my last season's bonnet was just the thing for this spring."
"He did?" asked the judge, looking sternly at the defendant. "My man, come here. The court will speak to you privately."
Wonderingly the defendant came to the bench, when the judge said:
"Say, old fellow, put me next. I've got a wife and four daughters."

How Chronic Kidney Trouble Was Fi-nally Checked.

Mrs. C. L. Wolfe, Anita, Pa., says: "The terrible pains across the small of my back caused me greater mis-ery than I can describe. Often I felt as sore as a boil all over my body. I grew worse and worse until finally I became so bad I could not do the least work. I was so dizzy I feared I would fall and my head was constantly racked with pain. Nervousness prevented my sleeping and in the morning I arose more tired than ever. Seeing that I was not improving un-der the physician's treatment, I be-gan taking Doan's Kidney Pills. They made me the strong, well woman I am today."

CURED ITCHING AND BURNING

"I was taken with the Itch in April, 1904, and used most everything. I had a friend pay me a visit from Cumberland, and he advised me to use Cuticura Remedies which I did. The cure was certainly quick, and I use them to this day. I had it terri-bly under my knees. I only used one box of pills, but two boxes of Cuti-cura Ointment, and I use the Cuti-cura Soap all the time. I hope this will benefit others, as it has me, after Dr. — and others could do nothing for me." (Signed) Miss Lu John-son, 1523 Ninth St., N. W., Wash-ington, D. C., April 3, 1910.

In a later letter Miss Johnson adds: "The trouble began with an eruption under my knees, and extended up-wards toward my waist, until I was not able to sit down. It kept a con-stant itching and burning all the time, night and day. I went to my doctor, but he could do me no good after I do not know how many medicines he gave me, and then told me I would be compelled to go to a skin special-ist, which I positively refused to do. I cried all the time. Finally I made up my mind to try Cuticura Rem-edies, and tried Cuticura Pills, Oint-ment and Soap, and was entirely cured of the itching three days after I started using them. The healing took about eight days. I consider Cuticura Remedies marvelous, and would recommend them everywhere." Cuticura Remedies are sold through-out the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, for free book on skin afflictions.

Anxiously Waiting.

"Do you think I am really your af-finity?" Solomon's nine hundred and eighty-fifth wife asked, coquettishly.
"My dear," the Wisest Guy said, "you are one in a thousand!"

IF YOU HAVE A SICKLY YOUNGSTER TRY THIS FREE

The family with young children that is without sickness in the house now and then is rare, and so it is important that the head of the house should know what to do in the little emergencies that arise. A child with a serious ailment needs a doctor, it is true, but in the majority of instances, as any doctor knows, the child suffers from some intestinal trouble, usually constipation.

There is no sense in giving it a pill or a remedy containing an opiate, nor is flushing of the bowels to be always recommended. Rather give it a small dose of a mild, gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which, by clean-ing out the bowels and strengthening the little stomach muscles, will immedi-ately correct the trouble.

This is not alone our opinion but that of Mrs. N. H. Mead of Freeport, Kans., whose granddaughter has been taking it successfully, and of Mrs. J. R. Whit-ting of Lena, Wis., who gives it to her children and takes it herself. It is sold in fifty-cent and one dollar bottles at every drug store, but if you want to test it in your family before you buy it send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will for-ward a supply free of charge.

PLEDGE POLICIES FOR LOANS
Imprudent Act That Really Means Man is Borrowing From His Widow.

Many men, pressed for money, go to the life insurance company, de-posit their policy as security and bor-row as much as the company is will-ing to lend. That the practice is com-mon is proved by the fact that most companies have loaned from a fourth to a third of the aggregate face value of their policies in this way. "Very few of these loans," says the annual report of the Connecticut Mutual—and this company's experience is typical—"are ever repaid to the company. The moneys . . . are swallowed up in business enterprises, in specula-tions . . . and the total result means embarrassment and distress in a great many cases, and poverty in the place of competence, when the claims mature, and there is nothing left above the loans but a mere mar-gin in cash on the policies for the protection of families or estates." Men who borrow on their policies are taking away protection from their families. It ought not to be done.—Collier's.

Politician and Preacher.
A politician in a western state, long suspected of crookedness and noted for his shifty ways, was finally in-dicted and tried. The jury was out a long time, but eventually acquitted him. After the verdict was in and the politician was leaving the court-room, a minister who had been in part responsible for the indictment and trial approached the politician and said: "Well, my friend, you have escaped; but you had a close shave. I trust this will be a warning to you to lead a better life and deal more fairly with your fellow men."
"That may be," the politician re-plied. "That may be; but I ain't pledged to any one."—Saturday Even-ing Post.

SHE SUFFERED FIVE YEARS

Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pink-ham's Vegetable Compound.

Erie, Pa. — "I suffered for five years from female troubles and at last was almost helpless. I went to three doc-tors and they did me no good, so my sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pink-ham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken only two bottles I could see a big change, so I took six bottles and I am now strong and well again. I don't know how to express my thanks for the good it has done me and I hope all suffering women will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It was worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. ENDLICH, R. F. D. No. 7, Erie, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com-pound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harm-ful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, such as inflamma-tion, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pink-ham's Vegetable Compound a trial.
