EXCUSE FOR HIS BLUNDERING

Ideal Waiter, True to the End, Had Been Working Under Pretty Heavy Handicap.

He was an immaculate servant. To watch him serve a salad was to watch an artist at work. To hear his subdued accents was a lesson in the art of voice production. He never slipped he never smiled, and his mutton-chor whiskers marked him as one of the old and faithful stock. But one even ing, to the surprise of his master, he showed unaccountable signs of nerv cusness. When the chicken came on he confused it with the pheasant. He served everything in the wrong or der, made blunder after blunder, and but a final touch to his shame by up setting the salt over the only superstitious member of the party. Then at last, when the ladies had retired to the drawing room, he touched his mas ter on the shoulder. "I beg your pardon, sir," he said in a respectful un derione, "but could you manage to spare me now? My house is on fire."

Simultaneously two voices reached the chauffeur's ears; a feminine voice on the right side and a masculine one from the left.

The chauffeur looked from one to the other applicant. "Guess you will have to toss for it," he said good naturedly. "There can be no tossing," put in the girl hurriedly. "I absolutely must catch the 6:14 train." "And I am equally in a hurry," said the man.

"Well, there's rom inside for two," uggested the chauffeur as he began o take his seat.

The girl and the man looked across the machine at each other with expressionless faces.

"Since there is no other way--it will have to do." Harmony Weller stepped into the taxi. "I suppose it will," said David Green as he entered from the other side. He seated himself without apparently seeing the wicker suit case

Seat. The short trip to the station was made in absolute silence. The girl sat straight and looked out the cab window so that all Green saw of her face was the firm line of her profile. When the taxi whirled into the station, David Green watched the girl lean forward and examine the register of fares. Then he saw her extract a half dollar. The face registered 60 cents and Green realized that his companion intended to pay half the amount. Under the circumstances, he felt that she was taking

The first smile which had dawned in Harmony Weller's eyes was when she looking man?" turned from the amused glance of the chauffeur.

She went hurriedly into the huge station and was lost in the crowd. David Green walked briskly toward the train which he boarded only after having seen his companion ' the taxl step into the same train. He followed her and took a seat behind her. From his point of vantage he watched every movement of Harmony

Weller. The girl was making a frantic effort to keep her mind as well as her eyes upon the magazine that she held. There was a woeful droop to the corners of her mouth but her proud little head gave an occasional toss as if it fain would proclaim an undaunted spirit. She cast many glances about the train and after each it seemed to Greet that her disappointment deepened. He drew nearer the window so that she might not by any chance know of his nearness.

The train moved swiftly on and darkness crept into the outer world. David Green watched the girl rise and make her way toward the dining car. He followed a moment later. As he entered his heart gave a quick jump. The only vacant seat was the one op posite the girl. When he seated himself he watched a tinge of color sweep into Harmony's face. But through the long meal she scarcely raised her eyes above the level of his

Green watched Harmony Weller while she questioned the porter. A moment later she to k her light bag and left the train. Green questioned the porter in his turn and learned that the one hotel of which the village boasted was within easy walking distance.

Green sprang swiftly for his suit case and went out into the night. He waiked quickly until he was only a few steps behind the girl. A few moments later they entered the small inn from opposite sides of the veranda.

"Give it to me, please!" He got the key none too soon. The small office was crowding with passengers from the train. David went out the door by which he had seen Harmony Weller make her exit. His own nerves were perhaps no more steady than the girl's. He stood looking out over the village streets but there was no sign of her.

He went down the steps and looked to right and left. Distracted, he sive not attempting in any way to started slowly one way and then an-

How Cloves Grow.

Clover are the unexpanded flower buds of a beautiful evergreen trea which grows only in tropical countries. The buds are at first a pale color and gradually become green, after which they develop into a bright red, when they are ready for collecting.

During the drying process they are exposed to the smoke of a wood fire and then to the action of the sun, which accounts for their dark brown color when ready for the market,

The clove tree, which attains a height of 30 feet, is a native of a small group of islands in the Indian archipeligo called the Spice Islands, but in the last four centuries it has been carried to all the warmer parts of the world.

Cloves were one of the principal oriental spices which early excited the cupidity of western commerce communities, having been the basis of a rich and lucrative trade since the early part of the Christian era.

Wildly Curious. "You asked me if I would have tes or coffee." ventured the new boarder.

A Right Judgment

By REV. A. E. ANDRE astor of Elim Covenant Church, Minneapolis, Minn.

TEXT-And we know that we are of God, and that the whole world lieth in wickedness .- John 5, 19,

Christ himself appeals to us, as he did to the Jews of old when he says: "Judge not according to the appearance, but judge the righteous judgment."

And well we need to heed the appeal. To judge by appearance is a most common weakness. Of all historical characters who have been subjected to the misjudgment of his fellow men does not Christ stand emphatically marked as the Misjudged One? Misjudged by his townsmen, misjudged by the spiritual leaders of his time, whose duty it was to have watched the signs of their times predicted by the prophets and so clearly fulfilled before their own eyes that he that runneth might read, and yet the majority failed to recognize the Anointed One.

Misjudged by scribes, Pharisees, the Sanhedrim with two notable exceptions, he did not even escape the total misjudgment of his own disciples and his own kin.

Not only did Christ's contemporaries fail to judge the righteous judgment. Others of other times, yea, even of our own, have shown the same lack of judgment. With the Jews as a nation and within the church, among the gentiles, though on different lines, misjudgment of Christ, that somber specter of unbelief, has tacitly adhered throughout the ages as a doleful heirloom.

Mary, in her lack of appreciation of the divinity of her child, fails to judge a righteous judgment when she found him in the temple questioning and hearing, and receives as a rebuke: "Wist ye not that I must be

The scribes saw in him only the carpenter's son and, arrogant in their classical pride, asked with super-

The Parisees, blinded by their selfrighteousness which amounted to self-worship and created around themselves an air of exclusive sanctity in nothing second to the caste feeling of the Brahman, seeing Jesus "receiving sinners and eating with them," and judging by appearances, saw in him only one of the puebel aspiring to a thing beyond his reach and ken and said: "Praise God, we know that this man is a sinner!"-John 10:24.

The priesthood, who, with the upon the people, without siding them with their smallest finger, as well as the Sanhedrim as a whole, looked all, as one playing to the galleries for ulterior purposes; a usurper and an interloper within.

The Jew of today judges most harshly of him who has done most to exalt the nation whose only excuse for existence is that he, the despised on , should come through it, for the despising of whom they are today despised, but through whom they shall see him whom they have pierced and acknowledged him the Messiah. The Mohammedan judges of him as

The Unitarian, the Theosophist, the Brahma Sumaj, Reformed Buddhist and others of a similar stamp, agree in assigning to Christ a place in their systems as a good man, the best man, a teacher, a model, a prophet, yea, even a God, lacking in judgment and failing to judge the righteous judg-

And why? For, says Jesus, "Ye judge after the flesh,"-John 8:15, Spiritual things must be spiritually discerned. God is a spirit and those that worship him must worship him in spirit and truth. Only those who have been spiritually regenerated, thus having received the spirit of God, can judge a righteous judgment of the person and divinity of Jesus Christ. No man can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Spirit."-1 Cor. 12:3. "Who is a liar but he that denieth that Jesus is the Christ? He is anti-Christ who denieth the Father and the Son."-1 John,

Is then Christ misjudged by all? No. blessed be God, he has yet a remnant preserved unto himself, "7,000 knees who have not bowed unto Baal."

Then asked Jesus of them, "Whom say ye that I am?" And Simon Peter answered and said, "Thou are the Messiah, the Son of the living God." And Jesus answered and said unto him, "Blessed are thou, Simon Barjona, for flesh and blood hath not revealed it into thee but my father

The man who was born blind, healed by Jesus, driven out of the synagogue by the blinded priests and Pharisees, judged a righteous judgment and acknowledged and worshipped Jesus as the Son of God .-

Jesus himself said (John 10), "I am the Son of God, and furthermore the Father and I are one, he who seeth me seeth the Father."

At his baptism and at the transfiguration God himself by a voice out of Heaven bore him witness. This is a sure saying worthy of all acceptance. Let us ask of him and he will give you the spirit who will lead us into all the truth as it is in Christ
