UNBUSINESSLIKE BUSINESS.

The New York state employers' liability commission has submitted a carefully prepared report showing a fearful waste of human fife in industrial pursuits. Some loss of life in modern industry may be reckoned as unavoidable, but the far greater proportion of the loss which is sustained is the result of unnecessary conditions. It is the direct result of a lack of safety appliances and of overworking employes to the point of physical exhaustion. It is a result of unjust liability laws and legislative negligence. says the Kansas City Times. If sentiment has no place in business-an untenable proposition in itself-at least business ought to be businesslike. It is demonstrably not good business to permit avoidable killing of industrial workers and then spend vast sums in caring for families bereft of natural support. It is not good pact. business, even though the children are not neglected, with the chances in favor of their becoming vicious or idle citizens. Stricter employers' liability, an automatically applied workmen's compensation for injury or death, and direct industrial insurance are all insurance measures. They provide funds for the support of injured workmen or of their wives and children. They also encourage safety provisions. Such insurance costs would be diffused among all the people-as taxes and fire insurance or diffused-by being added to the cost of the business. That diffused cost would be a practical impalpable burden upon society.

Birds have an excellent time in Japan and our own agriculturists would do well to emulate the treatment meted out by their eastern confreres to such birds as the swallow and martin, says the Wide World. With a skilled appreciation of the part these feathered friends play in relation to their crops by keeping down the insect pests, they exert every effort to protect them and to encourage them to propagate their kind. Is it to be wondered at that this sentimental but withal eminently practical nation reverences the swallows as messen gers to the gods and invites them to build their nests not only under eaves and rafters, but in every and any room of the house? In the hotel dining room were several nests, where the happy parents reared their families in complete safety.

There has been much talk regarding the selection of a national flower. Has it all been wasted? The Brooklyn Eagle remarks upon the indisputable fact that there is no authority in the Constitution for the selection of a national flower. However, a great many thority. There is, for instance, a national bird, the American eagle. There is "Uncle Sam" and there is "Miss Columbia," with no authority for either, except the self-assured authority of the cartoonists. But these are things upon which everybody is agreed. There is not likely to be a national it In the meantime, fortunately, the country can afford to wait.

"I am glad to say," said the President, "that today we have reached such a point in the negotiations for a treaty of universal arbitration with one of the great European powers that we can confidently predict the signing of a satisfactory treaty. The arbitration treaty heretofore with Great Britain and other countries has excepted from the causes which may be arbitrated those which involved the vital interests of either party or its honor. The treaty which we are now closing with Great Britain eliminates, these exceptions and provides that all questions of international concern of a justifiable character shall be submitted to the arbitration of an impartial tribunal."

The President expressed the hope that eventually half a dozen European countries may make similar treaties. Such action, he said, will not abolish war, but would furnish a forcible instrument in preventing it.

The President left Washington amid the closing freaks of a severe thunderstorm. His private car was 20 degrees cooler than it was early the week when he journeyed through Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania, with a temperature indoors of 100 degrees. COMMISSION FOR TRUSTS "GOLDEN RULE" TO Bil I troduced By Senstor New lands---interstate rade Commission.

Washington, -An interstate trade commission of five members to control industrial corporations, as the Inter-State Commerce Commission controls the railroads, was advocated in a bill introduced by Mr. Newlands, of Nevada. Mr. Newlands in a statement accompanying that measure contended that the Standard Oil and Tobacco decisions and the recent government report on the steel industry demonstrated the need of "an independent, quasi-judicial and administrative tribunal of great character and dignity as far removed from partisan control as are the courts." The plan is to apply only to industrial corporations engaged in inter-state trade whose annual receipts exceed $5,000,000.

FRANCIS G. NEWLANDS. United States Senator from Nevada

Mr. Newlands' statement was by way of urging the passage of a bill which he introduced providing for customers, how long would it be bethis commission. His measure would fore the producer would be in bankseparate the Bureau of Corporations ruptcy? from the Department of Commerce and Labor and merge the bureau into a commission of inter-state trade, with the Commissioner of Corporations a member of the new commission. It would require all the industrial corporations having receipts exceeding $5,000,000 to make satisfactory statements as to capitalization, finances and operations, such corporations to be known as "United States registered" companies. It proposes to make lack of such registration an "indication of something wrong."

Mr. Newlands declared that if such legislation had replaced or aided the Sherman Anti-trust act over 20 years ago this country would have advanced as far in the regulation of industrial organizations as it has in recent expressions of Mr. Gary, of the Steel Corporation, and others as indicating that the great corporation managers recognize that public regu-

They had planned to get up early and visit the scene of the display, in the hope of finding anything of value that might have been dropped by the large number of persons who had been present.

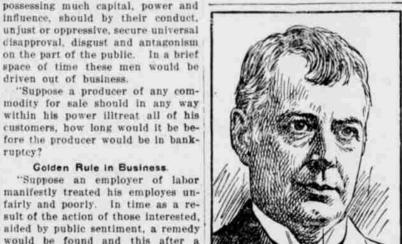

The Grecco boys were up before 7 'clock, and after calling for Senrelli, started for the public school. The only articles of value found were two neatly wrapped packages. They looked very much like small-sized cans of vegetables. They were wrapped in tissue paper and tied with heavy cord.

Report Says, Back in Venezuela Planning Revolution.

ARMY ALLEGED TO TOTAL 1,000

Eludes International Watchers, Including the United States, Which Have Been Trying to Prevent His Return.

Caracas.-Cipriano Castro, selfstyled man of destiny, who once set out with an army of 23 ranchmen and overturned the government, is in Venezuela and seems practically assured of regaining the presidency. Even many of the military authorities here assert that the present regime is tottering and that only foreign intervention can save it. Castro already has an army of more than 1,000 men. These troops are equipped with modern army rifles, using steel packeted bullets.

In the Credit Lyonnaise of France Castro has on deposit 35,000,000 francs. He is said to have had the additional backing of Banker Silvera, who asserted that unlimited means would be at the disposal of the exited

From all sides Castro's former friends are rallying to him. Revolution has been in the air for months Newspapers here have been devoured for news of the exile's wanderings and of the success of attempted fill busters from the United States gulf ports. Even with prison staring them in the face, soldiers and civilians have declared they wanted but one word to fight for their former chief. There is every indication that the arms and ammunition for the rebels were sent out of Cuba.

Castro means fight, and fight to a finish. How large his army may have swelled by tomorrow is matter of conjecture based upon how long it will take recruits to sail to Castilletas.

Castro landed at Castilletas, on Gejira Peninsula, the territory which was in dispute between Colombia and Venezuela. This territory is inaccessible except by ship, and a comparatively small force could hold it against all comers. Castro is safe so long as he remains here, but the government knows he will not do that and it is likely that the first trouble will occur in Falcon Province.

In the meantime the Castro forces have everything to hope for from their allies in Cuba. With a revolution on that island probable, if not iniminent, and the whole country excited, plans are progressing steadily to ship out ammunition to this state. How Castro landed is yet a mystery Whence he came cannot be stated.

Caracas, Venezuela.-The government has not yet been able to confirm that Cipriano Castro has landed in Venezuela, or in neighboring ter ritory. It is not considered possible that the ex-President, even if he has secured a foothold in Venezuela, has been able to get any considerable number of men behind him. Nevertheless, troops have already been dispatched to the Gulf of Maracaibo. Castro is reported to have made his landing on the Goajira Peninsula, Colombia, which forms the western headland of the Gulf of Maracaibo.

TO KEEP DRY STATES PARCHED

Congressman Would Hamper Inter-State Comm re.

Washington.-Two bills aimed at the traffic in intoxicants into "dry" States from other States were introduced by Representative Roddenberry, of Georgia.

One of them would prohibit the use of the mails for the purpose of advertising, soliciting or offering for sale intoxicating liquors in communities where State or local laws forbid the sale of such liquors. The other bill would make it unlawful to collect or receipt for a special tax for carrying on a wholesale or retail liquor business in States where the laws forbid the sale of intoxicants.

ALL OVER THE STATE TOLD IN SHORT ORDER

Allentown.-John Nauroth and his son were breaking in a broncho fresh from the West the other night. The horse became frightened as Joseph S. Mack, came along with his touring car, his entire family being on board. It was the first auto the mustang had ever seen and the animal jumped into it. There was an extraordinary mixup of persons, mustang, auto and driving cart. The harness breaking, the horse jumped out of the motor dar. The sharp end of a shaft was rammed into J. Harper Mack, son of the owner of the machine. Several ribs were fractured and he is in a serious state at the hospital. The broncho's hoofs struck Miss Dorothy Mack on the head and she is in the hospital. The Nauroths were pitched on their heads and hurt.

Pittsburg .- Miners throughout the Irwin-Greensburg coal fields in Westmoreland county held meetings of their locals to take a vote on ending the strike that has been on for sixteen months. In every instance the miners voted to give up the struggle, as the international Executive Board of the United Mine Workers, in seasion at Indianapolis, voted to discontinue paying strike benefits. The board further directed Francis Feehan, of the Pittsburg district, to call the strike leaders together and terminate the strike without recognition or concession. Eighteen lives have been lost in the strike, more than a million dollars has been expended. beside large donations from sympathizers.

Hollidaysburg .- Intense heat produced an explosion at the Standard Powder Works, at Horrell, on the Petersburgh branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad, resulting in the death of four employees, and the complete destruction of the works. The storage house, containing tons of dynamite, nitro-glycerine and powder, was the only building saved. The terrific poise of the explosion was heard in a score of towns and shattered window glass and destroyed properties within a radius of five miles of the works.

Reading.-Ground was broken here for the handsome new $100,000 free public library building at Fifth and Franklin streets, the cost of which was donated by Andrew Carnegie. Mayor Rick had the privilege of digging and throwing out the first shovelful of earth. He made a few appropriate remarks thanking the donor and all others who had worked for the success of the library.
