Animals Valued at $147,371,000.

Domestic animals, poultry and bees increased $38,923,000 in value, or from $102,439,000 to $141,371,000 during the ten years from 1900 to 1910 in Pennsylvania. The increase was a growth of 38 per cent.

The total value of the domestic animals was reported as $133,219,000 in 1910, as against $97,424,000 in 1900, the increase amounting to $35,795,000, or 36.7 per cent.

The poultry were valued at $7,674,000 in 1910, as compared with $4,483,000 in 1900, the gain being $3,191,000, or 71.2 per cent.

The bees were valued at $478,000 in 1910, and $532,000 in 1900, a decrease of $54,000, or 10 per cent.

These figures are gleaned from the statistics relative to domestic animals, poultry and bees on farms in the State in the thirteenth decennial census, just issued by Acting Director Falkner.

The report is based on summaries prepared under the direction of Dr. Le Grand Powers, chief statistician for agriculture in the Bureau of Census. The figures are preliminary and subject to slight revision later, when a few other farms, whose returns, now incomplete, are included in the final tables. It is not expected that these additions will materially modify the amounts or rates stated herein. Special attention is called to the fact that the present statement relates only to live stock on farms and ranges and does not give the figures for the cities and towns of the State.

Lancaster Road Survey.

Surveys of roads in Lancaster county, which will form part of the main highway system of the State and connect Harrisburg with Philadelphia by way of Lancaster city, were ordered by State Highway Commissioner E. M. Bigelow. The commissioner has made an inspection of the road between this city and Lancaster and this week a corps of engineers under the direction of John T. Gephart, Lancaster, one of the assistant engineers of the department, will start work. The survey will be preliminary to taking over the roads and will embrace most of the routes in the county. Later on surveys will be made in Chester and Berks counties. The commissioner also directed that work on the surveys of the road connecting this city and Gettysburg and on Adams county roads be inaugurated immediately. The highway commissioner sent word to all the engineers to have their corps ready to take up road surveys this week. In all fourteen corps will begin surveys and every section of the State will be covered.

State Forestry Commissioner Robert S. Conklin states that the chestnut tree blight had been found on State forestry reservations in Pike, Franklin and Perry counties. Immediate steps to eradicate the pest will be taken by the State Forestry and the students at the State Forestry Academy will study the methods.

REAP WITH CRADLES

Old-Time Farmers Show Revolution of Farm Machinery.

Veteran Swings Scythe at Ninety and Explains How He Harvested Grain Seventy-Five Years Ago at DeKalb.

Chicago.—From the shadows of the past came reapers of 50 and 70 years ago to the Henry Whitmore farm the other day, near DeKalb, and in the role of harvesters pitted themselves against the marvelous machinery of modern times.

More than 1,000, many of whom came in automobiles, watched the men harvesting grain in as many ways as have been contrived since agricultural pursuits have been followed on the American continent. There was the old-fashioned cradle, the sickle and scythe, the early-day reaper and the modern binder. It was a panoramic history of one of the most important phases of the industrial life of America.

White-haired, patriarchal in appearance, his shoulders bent with the weight of years, "Uncle" William Allen of Sycamore, swung his cradle for five minutes as he was wont to do three-quarters of a century ago. And as he cut his last swath, he leaned on the handle of his cradle and laughed at the incongruity of the picture presented.

"Looks silly, doesn't it?" he asked of the cheering spectators. "Times have certainly changed since I began harvesting. And his old eyes followed a modern binding machine cutting a wide swath, gathering up the fallen grain and tying it in bundles.

"I am 91 years old," said the veteran harvester as the binder turned a corner, "but if I could live 20 years more I would see even greater changes in the world than since I first began swinging a cradle in a harvest field."

Among the reapers were C. W. and W. W. Marsh, two brothers, who have lived more than the allotted three-score years and ten, and who are credited with being the first to have conceived the idea of the reaper. Their first machine was brought forth and cut swath around the ten-acre field. As cradle as it seemed to the throng of spectators, it was a marvel compared to the cradle which they had used for years before they brought the reaper into being.

"I am glad to have lived to see this day," said the elder of the Marsh brothers. "Farming today is not what it was when we were boys. Look at that binder. See how the driver fairly sails through that ocean of grain. Isn't it worth living to see?"

Following the exhibition in the field, bundles of wheat and oats were brought to the lawn of the Whitmore home and spread on the grass, where it was thrashed by old-fashioned falls by men who had swung falls long before the thrashing machine was ever dreamed of.

Speechmaking and music concluded the day's program and refreshments were served in old-fashioned style to the hungry harvesters.

WANTED TO SHOW THE JUDGE

Magistrate Calls Halt When Girl Starts to Bare Form in Court—Case Was Dismissed.

New York.—William McMeenan of 228 Avenue A was so little anxious to see his wife outside the Yorkville court the other day that he waited until a policeman went along with him.

McMeenan was a complainant against his comely stepdaughter, Mary Miller, a pocket edition maiden, charged with presenting a large black eye to her foster parent.

"She is all the time beating me," the man told the court.

"He hit her first," said the tiny woman.

"Where?" asked Magistrate Stein.

SEND RATTLESNAKE BY MAIL

California Made Custodian of Innumerable Collection of Spiders, Bugs and Strange Things.

Los Angeles, Cal.—A live rattlesnake held captive in a large oil can which in turn was reinforced with a wooden box arrived at the Hollenbeck consigned to Charles Mead.

Since his receipt of the rare Latroctonus manatus, or red spotted snake, the most poisonous insect of its kind, Smead has been made the custodian of an innumerable collection of spiders, bugs and curious living things that crawl, creep and fly, the latest being the rattlesnake.

A friend residing in Calsona having read of the fact that the hotel man had received the spider decided on a more peculiar gift and as a result set out to catch the snake, of which species there are many in that section of the country. In a letter accompanying the gift, the donor mentions the manner of its capture and hopes that Smead will be able to add to the collection which he has or is making for the southwest museum. As yet Smead has not been able to decide whether the serpent shall be killed and his skin tanned and stuffed or whether to turn it over to some of the Main street side show fakers.

From Don Cabezas, on the Mexican border, Smead several days ago received one of the most perfect specimens of a scorpion ever seen here. It is five and one-half inches in length with not a vertebra or a claw displaced in the horrible land crab. In addition two splendid specimens of the centipede were enclosed.

A mining man residing in Lower California undertook to show his esteem for the hotel man by shipping him a pair of bats captured in a great guano cave along the west shore. They were both dead, but preserved in such a manner that they will keep for a long time. In the letter accompanying the bats the mining man tells a wonderful tale of the millions of these night flyers that at about seven o'clock in the evening begin to leave the caves.

"They pour forth in one steady stream for a period of more than three hours, all going out over the ocean in their flight. At about three o'clock in the morning they begin to return, flying from the land side, having evidently completed a big circle in their flight. Again it takes them several hours to get inside. The caves are so full of them that they are black that they have never been fully explored."

BONE ON HIS BRAIN

Removal May Restore Victim to His Right Mind.

New York Man Recovers Speech After Operation and Surgeons Believe Frequent Attacks of Insanity Will Now Cease.

New Haven, Conn.—Removal of a piece of a patient's skull which had come in contact with the brain brought back the power of speech to Harry Wiltse of 154 Plymouth street.

For six months Mr. Wiltse had been unable to utter a word, but when Dr. Morris D. Slattery, who performed the operation in the presence of a dozen or more prominent surgeons in the city, came into the operating room again after leaving it to see another patient, Mr. Wiltse raised his head from the pillow, and in a distinct but low tone said: "Hello, Doc."

There was great surprise at the moment and the news quickly circulated to the physicians who had been interested in the case. They proclaimed the belief that when Mr. Wiltse fully recovers his strength, his speech would be as good as ever. They also believe that frequent attacks of insanity, the result of injury to Mr. Wiltse's head 21 years ago, will cease. The operation was performed in the hospital of St. Raphael.

The injury to Mr. Wiltse, who is 35 years old, came to him when he was 15. He was playing ball near his home in Forty-fifth street, New York city, one afternoon, when he was run over by a team, the horse stepping on the boy's head. He was taken unconscious to a hospital, where it was found that his skull was fractured. He remained in the hospital about six months, but as a result of the injury insanity developed.

He was later sent to the insane asylum in Middletown, N. Y., and after a few years there he was released as cured. Three years ago, however, he became insane again, and was once more removed to the asylum. While at the institution he had lucid intervals, followed by clouded reason. After treatment for about a year he was released and came to this city. He made his home with his brother, John Wiltse, an electrical worker. Last summer his condition again compelled his removal to the state asylum in Norwich for a few months.

Last December Mr. Wiltse was again taken to the Norwich asylum. After a month there his condition became such that he could not utter a sound and remained in that state until the other day, when the operation was performed. Now he talks rationally to his nurse, and the attending physicians believe that he will be cured of all insanity before long.

Amateur Makes Mistake When He Seeks to Make Money in Such an Avocation.

Police Commissioner Waldo of New York was talking about blackmailers. "They are, as a rule, stupid," he said. "Their threatening letters are as ludicrous in their stupidity as a letter a friend of mine received the other day."

And Commissioner Waldo, with a laugh, produced the letter. Written in a large, boyish hand, it said: "Dear sir—Your winder was broken by a bad bot wat throo it throo four thee piprus. The ball beeloned two mee, but an eneme of mine sneaked it and did the deed to put the blame on mee.  The Ontario government has recently abolished the system of prison labor contracts in that province. In future the majority of the prisoners in the penal institutions of Ontario will be employed upon farms and the making of roads in the newly opened districts. There will, however, be a percentage of the prisoners whose health or other circumstances prevent them from joining in this open air work. These men will manufacture hospital supplies—beds, blankets and so forth.
