When Friendship Counts.
The doors of the deformed man are always locked, and the key is on the outside. He may have treasures of charm inside, but they will never be revealed unless the person outside cooperates with him in unlocking the door. A friend becomes, to a much greater degree than with the ordinary man, the indispensable means of discovering one's own personality. One only exists, so to speak, with friends. It is easy to see how hopelessly such a sensitiveness incapacitates a man for business, professional or social life, where the hasty and superficial impression is everything, and disaster is the fate of the man who has not all the treasures of his personality in the front window where they can be readily inspected and appreciated.—From the September Atlantic.

PUNTING HAS INCREASED IN IMPORTANCE

Otto Seller of Illinois.

Nearly all the western conference teams have men of more or less ability in the punting line this season. Capt. Andy Gill of Indiana is probably the best in the west, his work not only being of the long distance variety, but extremely accurate. Minnesota has a man of great ability in Capron, who is said to be better than Johnny McGovern in the drop kicking line and far his superior in punts.

Illinois has Seller, who won three games from his team mates last year merely through his ability to kick goals and who was hailed as one of the stars of the west on this account, although his work in other departments of the game was no better than ordinary.

Chicago has not a man of ability and Coach Stagg has been working night and day trying to find a player who will be able to cope with the stars of his three great western adversaries.

With the uncertainties of ground gaining in the open game, punting has increased tremendously in importance. Forward passes are at best unreliable ground gainers, while it is almost impossible to gain consistently on line or end plays. The days when a heavy or strong team could sweep irresistibly down the field toward an opponent's goal have passed, for even the weakest eleven is able to check a heavier team if its defense is worked out properly. With the uncertainties of ground gaining under the new rules it has become almost habitual for a team to kick on its third down in case it has more than a yard or two to gain.

There is nothing more discouraging than for a team to lose the gain of ten minutes of fierce play simply through the ability of a player of the opposition to send the oval twisting and turning high in the air back to the place from which the march began. A fair team may make such a march twice, a good one twice, but it takes the exceptionally well coached and strong hearted eleven to try time after time, realizing that the slightest slip on the part of their offense leaves an opening for the opposing team to put the ball back to the starting line.

Sporting Gossip.

The tail end of the season was more of a joke this year than usual. Bat Nelson wants one more chance. They always want "one more." Now Governor Dix is shouting for the repeal of the new boxing law. It is now the season for a resumption of the winter baseball yarns. Kicking probably will be more effective in football than in baseball. Reports from Michigan indicate that the team will be better than ever this year.

Italy ought to hire Gotch to threaten the terrible ones with the toe hold. Apparently Yale is not going to rely upon one game for a reputation this season. Yale probably will remember how much her goring last year amounted to, however.

Bill Bass of Richmond, Va., and naturally one of the old families, has become a "hope." In baseball as well as in everything else everything depends upon whose ox is being gored. According to reports, Northwestern lacks ginger in its football, while the Maroons have a Paine. Evidently Hughie Jennings is tired of managing a team composed principally of individual stars. After a prize fighter has gone by the thing to do is to learn how to lose gracefully and naturally. Kutina, the first baseman for the Browns, is a wrestling partner of Frank Gotch in the winter months. In Venezuela our national sport has taken firm root and the natives are playing it almost as well as we are. It's almost as hard to understand the interpretations of the football rules as it is to understand the rules themselves. Speaking of proselyting, what about this Yale professor walking off with Battling Nelson's brother from Leland Stanford? Bob Dunbar, Boston's sporting expert, says Martin Sheridan undoubtedly will make the Olympic team, but he will have to go some to win any medals.

MISTAKEN DIAGNOSIS-DOCTORS GUESS WRONG AGAIN.

About five years ago I wrote to you that I had been a terrible sufferer from kidney and bladder troubles, and that my physician informed me that my left kidney was in such condition that there was no hope for my recovery. I was advised to try your Swamp-Root as a last resort, and after taking four fifty-cent size bottles, I passed a gravel stone which weighed ten grains. I afterwards forwarded you this gravel stone. Have had no return of any trouble since that time and cannot say too much in favor of your wonderful preparation, Swamp-Root, which cures, after physicians fail.

Very truly yours,

ASK EARLY FOOTBALL

Coaches Impress on Beginners Importance of Practice.

Preparatory School Men Have Opportunity to Show Grit Under Adverse Circumstances—First Year Tells Tale.

Early season work in football is coming to be regarded as more and more important by middle western football coaches since the rule of the conference was established prohibiting mentors from teaching their charges before Sept. 20.

In the years before the stringent regulations of the conference, when it was possible to start training in the middle of the summer, it was not until almost October 1 that practice really began, but since the time has been set for September 20 coaches, captains and veterans have impressed upon candidates for gridiron honors the absolute necessity of appearing on the field the first day and staying there throughout the season if they expect to be picked as "regulars."

Only half-hearted efforts were made to coach the veterans before October under the old regime, the early work being principally a tryout for inexperienced material. Now there is not time for try-outs and the greater part of the material which reports for practice at the big western schools is thoroughly seasoned and those men who lack experience must be content to work on the "scrub" until such time as they may show they have gained the required knowledge of the game. The freshman and scrub teams are the preparatory schools for varsity football education and a man who has not gone through a course of sprouts on one of those two elevens has as little chance of "making" the varsity as has a man getting into college without a preparatory school training.

There are some exceptional men who may make good with the school elevens without this preparatory work, but these are the exceptions that prove the rule. More than one high school or academy star has gone to college and refrained from playing on the freshman team, thinking the grind of daily scrimmages without the incentive of a game not worth the candle. These men have relished much upon the reputations they have established as preparatory school players and find, too late, that college football and preparatory school football are as different as professional and amateur baseball.

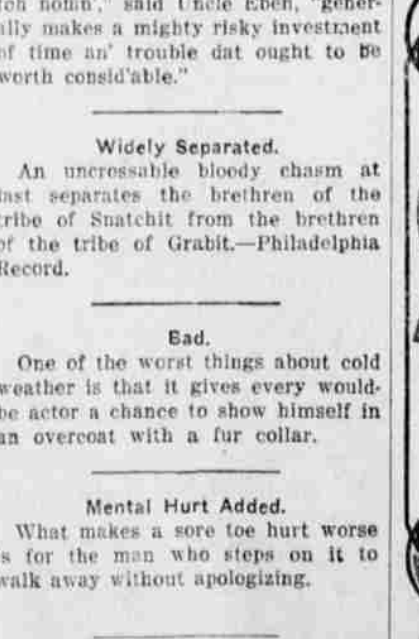

The system of coaching is entirely different and the man who has had his name shouted by thousands of admirers in Keokuk, Iowa, or Ispeming, Mich., finds it rather annoying to be booted around and "hawled out" by men whom he regards as having only a tithe of his own ability.

Early season work for the most part is devoted to learning rudimentary formations. Every school that has had a coach for more than a year or two has some sort of "system" of plays and formations and this groundwork is drilled into the men in the first work. At the end of this time they are expected to have the general plan of the coaches well in mind and are considered capable of putting into execution their slightest command.

Formerly there was a season of conditioning when the men, returning from their summer vacations, often fat, were trained down to something approaching fit physical condition. Now the man who reports for practice in anything but condition has little chance of receiving attention from the tutors. The coaches wisely decide that a man who does not care enough about the game to fit himself for the early work is persona non grata on the gridiron and the only way in which he may re-establish himself in their estimation is by working alone, getting the fat off and incidentally keeping pace with his more foresighted brothers who have not 'his handicap to overcome.

Effective greenery for the dining room table may be made by planting the seeds of grapefruit. Sow them thickly, and in two weeks, if the earth is good and has been kept moist in a warm place, the little snoots appear.
