SHE IS "SOME CHICKEN"

When Judge Ben Lindsey of the Denver juvenile court took his young bride home the other day, the couple were welcomed by a great throng of newsboys and street arabs. "What do you think of her?" the judge asked the cheering lads. "She's some chicken," was the enthusiastic reply, and the judge, looking at the pretty, blushing girl, said "I guess you're right."

The forest service maintains nine experiment stations for studies in reforestation and similar subjects.

SHIP THAT CARRIED SHRINERS TO MANILA

Three hundred candidates were admitted to the order of the Mystic Shrine at Nile Temple, Manila, P. I., the other day, and among those who took part in the ceremonial were 230 nobles from all parts of the United States. These men, with members of their families, are making the greatest pilgrimage in the history of the order. They sailed from Seattle December 30 on the Great Northern steamship Minnesota, and on their way home they will stop at several Oriental ports.

AMERICAN CONSULATE THAT NEEDED PROTECTION

The American consulate at Acapulco, Mexico, has been converted into a safe depository for the Americans in the vicinity, who turned over to Consul C. S. Edwards about $250,000. As the region is infested by bands of marauders, the consul cabled to the state department for protection and Rear Admiral Cowles sent a warship there.

SIMEON D. FESS

Simeon D. Fess, who is serving his first term in congress as the representative of Ohio's Sixth district, started out in life as a farmer boy. After graduating from college he was retained by his alma mater, Ohio Northern university, as its professor of American history. After this he held several college positions and finally became president of Antioch college. Later he was the editor of a magazine.

MRS. ROBERT GOELET SUES FOR DIVORCE

Society folk were interested though not surprised when Mrs. Robert Goelet of New York began suit for divorce from her millionaire husband. Our illustration shows Mrs. Goelet with one of her children, and, inset, Mr. Goelet.

THREE BROTHERS SAVED FIFTEEN

Williamsons, in Brooklyn, Tell of Horror.

DESPERATE FIGHT FOR LIFE

Face Of One Cut By Nails Of Woman He Was Trying To Rescue—Thrown Overboard By Lurch Of Ill-Fated Ship.

New York.—The story of their desperate fight for life after the collision between the steamships Monroe and Nantucket was told by the three Williamson brothers, of Brooklyn, who were among the few survivors to arrive here from Norfolk. The brothers are Henry, aged 21; George E., 23, and John, 25. They are all seafaring men. George had his face covered with lacerations. "I got the scratches from a woman who fought me while I was trying to pull her into our boat," he said. "She had been driven crazy by the shock and exposure in the cold water."

"After the crash," said John, "we all three jumped out of our bunks and pulled on our trousers. That was all the clothes we could get. We rushed out on deck and there we lost Henry. Without thinking, I got into the boat near us, but the officer told us that it was for women, and I got out right away."

"George and myself then sat on the rail near another boat, waiting for our time. While we sat there a big colored man came up and sat next to us. He said to me: 'You're a white man and I'm a nigger. I guess it's all up with us. If we don't get out of here I hope we will meet in heaven.' He then began to pray. That was the last we saw of him."

"Just then the ship reeled right over and we were both thrown into the sea. The boat was hanging free in its davits, with the falls loose. When he came up the boat was floating, so George and I unhooked the tackle and got into it."

"We then rowed around and managed to pick up about 15 people. One of them was our young brother, Henry. We were mighty glad to see him again, I can tell you."

"As soon as Henry got in he helped to pull the other people on board, while we rowed."

Henry said that he had been separated from his other brothers on the boat deck. He then walked around and a woman came up to him. She had a baby in her arms. "For pity's sake, save my baby," she cried, as she handed the child to him.

"I held the baby tight," said Henry. "It was crying. I patted it on the back and tried to stop it, but I guess I'm not much good in handling kids."

"When the ship went over I was thrown off the deck into the sea. I was so surprised that I lost my grip on the baby and it fell ahead of me. I struck out for a long time trying to find it, but I couldn't. You don't know how bad I feel about it. Gee, I would gladly go back there again if I could only have saved it."

FORTUNE FOR HORSES.

Austrian Says One Animal Is Worth Ten Men—Leaves $60,000.

Vienna.—"One horse is worth 10 men," according to the will of a deceased land owner named Bizony, who bequeathed his entire fortune of $60,000 to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, on condition that it build an asylum for decrepit horses. Bizony's next of kin will contest the will Friday. Only King Ludwig III of Bavaria officially disapproved of aristocratic women of his court devoting their attention and fortunes to homes for sick cats, dogs and horses.

LIGHTNING AS AN EXPLOSIVE.

Sends Off Nitroglycerin As Sistersville, W. Va.; Loss $10,000.

Sistersville, W. Va.—The plant of the Young Torpedo Company was wrecked and damage estimated at $10,000 was done to property within a radius of 10 miles when lightning exploded 500 quarts of nitroglycerin in one of the torpedo company's magazines. C. C. Curtis, standing a quarter of a mile away, was "ered unconscious and scores of windows were broken."

NATIONAL CAPITOL PAINTINGS.

Want Civil War and Canal Represented On Frieze.

Washington.—The frieze in the rotunda of the Capitol representing scenes in the history of North America from 1492 to 1848 would be finished with scenes of the Civil War and the Panama Canal, according to a bill introduced by Representative Smith, of Idaho. No work has been done on the frieze for more than 25 years.

LESSON FROM THAW CASE.

New York Bar Association Would Amend Criminal Insane Law.

New York.—Possible efforts to prevent future repetitions of the legal tangle resulting from Harry K. Thaw's escape from Matteawan were seen in the report submitted to the New York State Bar Association at its closing session here by the committee on the commitment and discharge of criminal insane. The feature of the report was the recommendation for the repeal of the statute providing that insane persons cannot commit crime.

Good Business Reason.
"But why," asked the observer of the itinerant musician, "why do you play an accordion? Nobody likes the accordion any more."
"Ah, signor, I have da reason. De peep, who no lika da accord pay me da big mon to stoppa ma noise."—Judge.

How He Did It.
"How do you always keep the office clock right?" the foreman was asked.
"I set it in the morning by the time the boss arrives and set it again at noon and night by the time the help quits."

On the Go.
"My husband isn't home two nights a month."
"You should get the minister to see him."
"He is the minister. Always being called away to see people."

Dangerous Ground.
"The idea that a sick man always falls in love with his pretty nurse is arrant nonsense."
"Shhh! old man. That's how I met my wife."
