To the Merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during Change of Life.

Westbrook, Me. - "I was passing through the Change of Life and had pains in my back and side and was so weak I could hardly do my housework. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has done me a lot of good. I will recommend your medicine to my friends and give you permission to publish my testimonial." - Mrs. LAWRENCE MAR-TIN, 12 King St., Westbrook, Maine, Manston, Wis. - "At the Change of Life I suffered with pains in my back and loins until I could not stand. I also had night-sweats so that the sheets would be wet. I tried other medicine but got no relief. After taking one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to improve and I continued its use for six months. The pains left me, the night-sweats and hot flashes grew less, and in one year I was a different woman. I know I have to thank you for my continued good health ever since." - Mrs. M. J. BROWNELL, Manston, Wis.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled in such cases.

The Garden

Years Have Dealt Lightly With Spot Where Mary Was for a Time Happy With Her Infant Son

ESPAINANCE CONTRACTOR OF THE PROPERTY OF THE P

HE garden at Nazareth covers a hillside slope with flowers. It lies under a sky so pale from oriental heat that its blue is delicately tinted white. This garden, where Mary and the infant Jesus were happy long ago, is now little different-in appearance from what it was in early days. Nature cherishes her own, a jealous mother, and in these quiet hills of Galilee her hand works lovingly. The garden, when the dawn breaks gently, gleams with the jeweled glory of the dew. When twilight falls and the birds which all day long have fluttered in tree and coppice are quiet, and the doves whose busy wings have fluttered whitely in the sunshine seek their nests harmoniously, it is a peace-

So few changes have come to the life of this part of Palestine in 2,000 years that it is not hard to pierce the misty veil of time and realize as in a vision how this garden looked when Mary used to go there with her little Son, a happy mother for whom the future held no fears.

Built on the sides of two hills, the town itself has a charm all its own. made up not alone of pious associations but as well of the beauty of orchards, cultivated fields and gardens As seen from the high road which leads thither from the sea through the wide, fair plain of Esdraelon it is a friendly looking place.

Its houses, red and white, stretch up to the top of the hill from the steep declivity in which the town is placed, and gardens and orchards interspersed add color to the scene, relieving that bleakness of plain walls which look so bare in heat of southern sun.

Though not so large as Jerusalem. smaller even than Bethlehem, the town wears an air of distinction, a cheerful atmosphere of hospitality withal, which wins it a fond place in a weary traveler's regard.

To this quiet city of Galilee Mary came as a bride from the hilltop town of Sepphoris. Tradition tells how young she was, how beautiful her dark and oval face appeared, how tiny were her hands and feet. She had traveled quite a little in her short life. For once a year she went on foot with Anna and Joachim to Carmel, where they owned some land on the outskirts of Galilee. That mountain, which overlooks St. John of Acre, we are told, she loved especially, for there she could scan both sky and sea and watch the clouds like angels' garments trailing delicately across the fields of blue.

From this humble home in Nazareth she fled with her child in her arms, following Joseph to far Egypt, there to live in exile until it was safe once more to return to the land of

How dear in her dreams seemed then to her the mountains of Gilboa, snow capped Hermon, the Kishon's stormy stream, and the fragrant, pathless fields of Esdracton, where a thousand eyes of dalsies stare widely at the oriental sky, where breezes sway the yellow celandines amid the grasses, where tiny violets clothe the hillside modestly with bloom.

Back to their garden at Nazareth came at last the holy family, and in hills between. In other places they the little house adjoining they lived all through the boyhood of Jesus. Just a little beyond the town of Nazareth, about 500 yards from where Mary's house stood, on its borders, and at this later day close to the at Nazareth Church of the Annunciation, is the historic well, approached by a path long and stony, where Mary came for water for her household. Below the fountain is a pool where she washed her garments and household linen.

Today at evening, when coolness has descended from the hills and tempered the heat in the valley roundabout, the women of Nazareth come down the stony pathways from the town to fill their jars with water at this fountain.

ers them almost entirely, coming even over the forehead, hang gracefully in long straight folds.

Mary must have dressed like these women when she came to the flowing well. Her little feet that historytells about with such insistent emphasis were, like theirs, uncovered. Her little hands were strong, like theirs, to lift the heavy amphora high. With flexibility of youth she mounted the rocky slope to where her house stood, Many times, no doubt, she led the infant Jesus with her, holding fast his hand. The pool beneath the fountain, where the women wash their clothes, reflected often her earnest brow.

Today the Easter sun shines on the face of Galilee. The garden of Mary's house is radiant with beauty of the spring. Birds flutter joyously, loyal to the old gray stones. The dull green foliage of olive trees glistens. Great pink lilles waver on long, wandlike stems.

Below the fountain bubbles ceaselessly. Tiny violets and yellow flowers blossom where sacred feet once trod. It is Easter, as in Gethsemane, and the spirit of the Master sheds a blessing on the place.

All over England the sun is supposed to dance early Easter morning. If you complain about no one ever actually seeing it they will tell you in Sussex and other rugged counties that the devil has put too many remind you that it's too early in the foggy England.
