Wm. Wink and son John, of Licking Creek township were in town Friday. William does not come often.

Among the shoppers in town Saturday were Watson Schooley and wife, of Licking Creek township, Mrs. Bennett Mellott and son, of Needmore, and Mrs. D. R. Mellott and son, of Sipes Mills.

HIDES.—Frank B. Sipes pays the highest market price for beef hides at their butcher shop in McConnellsburg, also highest price paid for calf skins sheepskins and tallow.

Paul Harper, one of the paying tellers of the Pittsburgh Trust Company, and William M. Patterson, of the same city, have been spending the past week at the home of the latter's parents, Hon. and Mrs. D. H. Patterson at Webster Mills.

William Wilds, of Fort Littleton, returned to this place last week to work for his uncle; S. B. Woollett. "Billy" was here during the spring months and planted several truck patches. He then went home to harvest. Billy found that things had grown while he was away—some of them too much.

Henry Stamp, of Texas, is "hoofing" it from that state to Philadelphia. After having worked for Floyd Daniels, in Licking Creek township for two weeks, Stamp started on another stretch of his tramp last Friday, passing through here about noon. He carried a complete camp outfit, including a small tent.

Charles Mosser, near Upton, visited his cousin, Dr. J. W. Mosser several days this week. Charles accompanied his brother George and Mr. Shatzer to this place Friday, with a herd of eighty-four cattle which were offered for sale at the Earl Morton place west of town Saturday. Several of the herd "played out" on the way over Cove mountain, but they followed several hours after the main herd arrived.

Dane owls beat Webster Mills snakes, for the former bite, but so far, the latter have confined their attention to mice instead of to human beings and poultry. The latest from Dane is that O. C. Wible had five half-grown turkeys killed by an owl, and Allen Brant had a turkey and a chicken killed one night last week. Not the least aggravating feature about it is that the large flocks of turkeys refuse to come home to roost since the invasion of their former night quarters. If snakes and owls are not "farmers' friends", they are proving to be printers' friends, since they furnish so many items for publication.

Last Friday evening at five o'clock J. N. Sipes stepped into Sheriff Harris' Ford and gave the signal to start for the depot at Mercersburg. Jim blew the whistle rang the bell, opened the throttle and in fifty-five minutes made as majestic a turn and stop alongside the C. V. platform as a professional driver. When the 6:05 pulled into Mercersburg Mr. Sipes received his daughter, Mrs. J. V. Wilhelm and her children Virginia, Mary Magdalene, and Joseph Paul, of Homestead, Pa. Placing them in the waiting car, the signal was again given to start, and at seven o'clock the passengers "disembarked" in front of the Sipes residence. The visitors will spend the summer here until school opens in the fall. Crossing Cove Mountain with a load of women and children places Jim in the full fledged driver's class.

Ayr's Harvest Home Picnic.

BY REV. R. E. PETERMAN

Would you like to hear the story of the Royal Harvest Feast? Would you listen if I'd tell you? Would you care for't in the least? Would it make your heart beat faster? Would it throw dull care away, If the story of the picnic In your ears were told to-day? Would you ask me who has told me Of this great and happy day When the farmer and his family Having housed away the bay, Having put the wheat in safety, Having finished with the harvest, Then decided for a play To be gay, just for a day? I would tell you I would say; 'Tis the story of the Oak Tree, The red squirrel, and the Jay, As they tell it to the children Of the woodland here to day. 'Tis the story of the farm life In the shady grove; a day Spent in laughing, singing, talking, In the happiest sort of way. 'Tis the story of the children Who are here to work and play In this world of joy and sadness, Sing and dance and love and play To make life a little sweeter To wipe away the tear To put hope instead of fear Into hearts that know the bitter Pangs of sorrow and delay Caused by raging money madness. 'Till the youthful looks are gray 'Tis the story of the children. Would you like to know still further Of whom it is we sing this lay? I would tell you I would say; 'Tis the land of Tuscaroras, The Alleghenies and the Fultons Where many families, tribes and nations Come together for the day, From Northland, Southland, Westland, Eastland, By ones and twos and scores and hundreds With baskets filled for self and others Dressed in regular picnic array. 'Tis in the land of Kendalls and Johnstons, Pattersons, Nelsons, Mellotts and Coopers, Comerers and Otts and others galore, To mention them all would be to bore You perhaps today when the Picnic is o'er. A thing which I surely would wish not to do Since this story is intended for me and for you. From the hills and the valleys They came driving and walking, From the Cabin and the mansion From the lot and the farm, As true sisters and brothers Of just one great family, To think of life's sunshine And do none any harm. They have come from the land Of the clip-a-clip-a-clip Of the mower laying the grass upon the ground; And from the gather, gather, gather, Of the One-Horse-Rake, Which today doesn't give fourth and sound. From the scatter, scatter, scatter, Of the Big-Horse-Tedder, And from the land of the groaning Hay-fork Where the one holds the lines And the other carries water Till the time for the beans and pork From the land of the binder With his brer-rer-rer-rer-rer, As he binds the golden grain into sheaves: From the land of the whir-rer-rer-rer-rer-machine Where the chuck-a-chuck-a-chuck Of the engine pulls with pluck To make the grain stalks soft and clean. Picnic days like unto these Hasten back sweet memories Of the good old days when our grandfathers used to live; Who among us living here, Would truly like to say "Oh, dear, Oh, let me go back to the good old days and live?" So comrades, friends, and all, Let us raise a mighty call For Thanksgiving that we're living now to day; And that the past has gone And forever it is gone With its hardships and its sores to yesterday.

GRACEY.

Harvest is over; next, comes threshing. Quite a number of our people attended the Bush Meeting at Hustontown last Sunday. Miss Ada Gracey, of Mount Union, is visiting relatives in this community. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Fraker spent last Tuesday in the home of their son in law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse B. Heefner. Fred Lamberson will be the teacher in the Gracey school this winter, and Ruth Strait, the Waterfall. Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Melroy and daughter Esther and son Paul were guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Heefner a few days the first of the week. Mr. Melroy was on the Hustontown charge ten years ago, but is now at Dudley. Miss Mary Price, of Mount Union, visited friends in this neighborhood last week. Miss Viola McClain is spending a couple of weeks at her home. Mr. and Mrs. Jesse B. Heefner entertained some of their friends last Saturday evening by an ice cream supper. Those present were S. S. Strait, Scott Wolf, David Strait, Mary Wolf, Ruth Strait, and John Knepper. The time was spent very pleasantly, and there was an abundance of ice cream, cake, candy, apples and pears.

Albert King's splendid new dwelling house is nearing completion. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Rinehart are visiting relatives in Illinois and other places in the Middle West.

School Thanks School.

The Green Hill M. E. Sunday School hereby publicly thanks the Sideling Hill Christian school for invitation to attend the picnic at the latter's church last Saturday. All had a good time. A note which accompanied the above card says there were almost as many people at this picnic as attend the Soldiers' Reunion, and that it was a treat to be there. Well, if every thing was as nice as the peck of ripe apples that came with the note, from W. E. Bair's family, then it was fine. Thanks, friends.
