CARRANZA NOW MEXICO'S RULER

Enters the Capital Amid Cheers of His Followers.

PROMISES PEOPLE NEW ERA

Hundreds Of Schoolchildren Dressed in White, Each Carrying a Mexican Flag, Sing a Hymn Written For Occasion.

Mexico City.—General Venustiano Carranza, the supreme chief of the Mexican Revolution and Provisional President of the republic, entered the capital at noon. He was given an enthusiastic reception by the crowds on the streets.

It is estimated that more than 150,000 persons crowded the line of march of the new President and his followers, which extended from the village of Atzacotalco to the National Palace, a distance of six miles. There was not the slightest disorder as General Carranza and his staff passed through the cheering crowds, which showered them with flowers and confetti and from which came cries of "Long live Carranza; long live the Constitutional government."

Troops Form At Dawn.

At dawn the Constitutionalist troops began forming at close intervals in a double line along the entire distance over which the victorious Constitutional leader was to pass. Back of the troops were ranged the lighters, and every roof and balcony also held spectators.

It was near noon when General Carranza, mounted on a superb horse and accompanied by his staff and the generals of Northwest, the Central and Northeast divisions of the Constitutionalist army, left Atzacotalco; escorted by a squadron of cavalry and the Fourth Sonora battalion of infantry, which acted as the guard of honor. On reaching the city limits the column was met by the Mayor and the City Council of the capital, who delivered to General Carranza the keys of the city.

After this ceremony the cavalcade proceeded to the historic Chapultepec Castle, where two batteries of artillery fired a salute in honor of the new chief executive. Here the parade turned down the beautiful Paseo de la Reforma avenue, which was designed by the unfortunate Empress Carlotta and which leads from the castle to the National Palace.

Union and Liberty.

Along this section of the line of march were grouped hundreds of children dressed in white, each carrying a bouquet and a Mexican flag. As Carranza passed they sang a hymn written for the occasion, entitled, "Union and Liberty."

When the procession reached the National Theater it halted in order that the Chief Executive might receive at the hands of a delegation of workmen the flag which President Madero dropped at that very spot on the fateful ninth of February, 1913, the date of the Huerta-Diaz uprising.

A few moments after he entered, President Carranza appeared on the balcony under the liberty bell and addressed the crowd, promising a new era of real constitutional government.
