Made Own Tombstone; Dies Working on Coffin—Hotel Wrecked; Suspects Held—Slatington Mills Resume Work—Teacher Fights Madman.

Miss Grace Jones, of Washington, teacher of a country school near there, risked her life when Robert Dreamer, a young man of the neighborhood, said to be demented, rushed into the school-room, waving a corn cutter above his head, and declared he was going to kill the teacher and every pupil in the room. The girl, after a bad half-hour, succeeded in forcing Dreamer from the room and locking the door upon him. As the teacher risked her life in the struggle with the youth the forty pupils in the room huddled in the corners and hid under desks.

Miss Ann McClure, of Felton, near Chester, routed a colored assailant after a desperate fight, stabbing him three times with a hatpin. The man sprang upon her along the roadway on Eagle street, above Ninth, on the outskirts of Chester. Miss McClure jabbed him in the face with the hatpin. He cursed and grappled with her again, seizing her wrists. Wrenching herself from his grasp she stabbed him twice in the body with the pin. The colored man then fled.

Women for the first time in the history of the Protestant Episcopal Church were recognized on one of the eight boards of that denomination when the synod of the third province, in session in Pittsburgh, decided that the Provincial Board of Social Service shall hereafter be composed of one bishop, four presbyters, four laymen and two women.

Charles Chimel, landlord of a hotel at Exchange, was in a rear room at his place of business when the building was wrecked by dynamite, said to have been discharged by Joseph Parkewich and Frank Warsack, enemies of the hotel man. The suspects were subsequently arrested.

The Slatington Foundry and Machine Shops, started work after being idle for the past year. The Slatington rolling mills started up again after several months of idleness and are employing many hands. The Post & Sheldon silk mill resumed operation Monday.

Andrew Crossley, a veteran wagon-maker, of Bloomsburg, who several years ago made his own tombstone and expected to make his own coffin, only to be interrupted in the work by sickness, died at the age of eighty-two years.

Shooting a pheasant, Edward Houtz, aged eighteen, shot his playmate, Charles Shover, while hunting near Millin. Houtz declares that he did not see his friend concealed in the bushes near the bird. The shot which entered Shover's face may prove fatal.

Mayor Stratton of Reading issued an order prohibiting the soliciting on the streets of funds for Christmas dinners for the poor by persons disguised as Santa Claus. It was found that last year the solicitors got fifty per cent. of the proceeds.

Jacob Haussman, of Glen Carbon, was found unconscious near Buckley Station. He died five minutes after being found. A severe wound at the base of his skull led the police to believe that he had been murderously assaulted.

Aaron Selfert, seventy-seven years old, was the plaintiff in a suit in court in Reading against Sarah Trate, seventy-five years, a sister, to recover damages for alleged violation of contract.

George Endy, aged forty, employed as a battery runner at the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Co.'s No. 14 colliery, Tamaqua, was caught by a rush of coal in a chute and instantly killed. His neck was broken.

The Board of Managers of the Chester Hospital received a donation of $100 from William W. MacMarlane, vice-president of the American Dyewood Extract Company.

Harry Walters, thirteen years old, died at Milton from the effects of a fall he suffered when he stumbled two weeks ago. Spinal meningitis developed from the accident.

While endeavoring to secure coal from a moving train at Coalport, for a little but which he had built, Stephen Utrata, aged fifteen years, was thrown under the train and killed.

It cost Jacob Smith, Democratic Representative-elect from Carbon county, $306 to be elected, according to his expense accounts filed in the office of the Clerk of Courts.

In court at Bellefonte, six Germans, two Austrians, a Pole and an Italian applied for American citizenship. Four of the Germans, one Austrian and the Pole were granted naturalization papers. They all were anxious to get their papers so as to avoid being recalled for military duty.

Fred Nansteel, accompanied by three companions, killed a five-pronged deer at Tobyhanna. It was killed fifteen miles from the nearest house and had to be carried home by the hunters.

FRENCH SAVE BRAVE FOEMAN

Colonel Spares Life of Airman Who Slew Three of His Assailants.

Paris, France.—An example of the good sportsmanship among the French was shown in a letter written by a German aviator to his parents. Flying high over the French trenches, the German pilot was killed and the aviator was severely wounded. The aviator, however, succeeded in bringing his machine safe to earth within the French lines.

He was immediately attacked on all sides, but throwing himself under the wing of his machine for concealment, he succeeded in killing three of his assailants before his revolver was empty. When he ceased firing the soldiers rushed up to bayonet him, but their colonel stopped them, saying, "Don't kill him; he is a brave man and a worthy enemy!" Thus the aviator's life was spared.

SPIKED PITS AND BARBED WIRE

A piece of ground, dotted with pits with spikes in them and crossed with barbed wire entanglements, prepared by the Belgians to impede the advance of the Germans, gives some idea of the fields over which the troops are expected to charge.
