Allen Walker, Huntingdon county, is spending a few weeks in the home of his cousin, Mrs. W. H. Cutshall, in Dublin township. He and Mr. Gutshall spent last Friday in this place. Mr. Walker is a Democrat, but is of the opinion that it would save money if the Democrats would get out no more candidates for office since by hook or crook, the other fellows gain their ends anyhow. As to Mr. Gutshall, he holds the record for being the best clog and jig dancer in his township, notwithstanding his 200-and-then-some pounds weight.

C. V. S. N. S. Notes.

Our Varsity Basket ball Team badly defeated Harrisburg Technical High School Team here last Saturday evening by the score of 39-21. Barnhart and Grove, our forwards, starred for Normal. The visiting team played very good ball but our forwards out guessed them and had them on the defensive during the whole game.

S. A. Martin, D. D., former principal of this School, paid us a visit, last Saturday evening. Dr. Martin is now teaching at Lafayette.

All the students are patiently awaiting the arrival of Thursday, December 17th, as this is the day when examinations are over and they leave to take their Christmas vacation of three weeks. The winter term begins Monday January 4th.

We, the present Fulton county students wish all the Alumni and former students of our county a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

That Wicked Lantern.

It has not been forgotten that the kicking over of a lantern started the great Chicago fire That is not the last and only fire caused by a lantern, and persons who have occasion to use them about barns, cannot exercise too great care. The explosion of a lantern on Tuesday morning of last week, started a fire that completely destroyed a large barn near Boiling Springs, Cumberland county, on a farm tenanted by John Swartz. Most of the live stock, and much of the contents of the barn were destroyed.

For Winter Spraying.

A new but determined and extensive fruit grower of Bedford county, Pa., wrote to State Zoologist H. A. Surface, Harrisburg, asking for information as to just how to proceed to make a satisfactory lime sulfur solution by boiling it in a kettle. He made specific inquiry as to how the materials should be put together and boiled. Thousands of fruit-growers will within the next few weeks or months need the information given in the reply of Professor Surface, which is as follows:

"I can assure you that one kettle is sufficient for making lime-sulfur solution all right. I send you some of my printed directions on making it. You should bear in mind that we have gradually grown in our knowledge of the subject from the time when we advocated the old formula of seventeen pounds of sulfur and twenty-two of lime to fifty gallons of water, into the present modern formula of the concentrated home-made or commercial storable solution calling for two pounds of powdered or pulverized sulfur to be boiled with each pound of quick lime in a gallon of water, for about three quarters of an hour, and the liquid is then to be taken off and stored in a barrel to be diluted and used when wanted.

"I put the material together by putting in a little water. Stir the sulfur with water to make a mush. Put in the lime and pour this sulfur mash on top of it at once. Then stir while the lime is slaking. After the slaking is done add more water, and stir it up from the bottom and let it boil. If there is someone at hand it is all right to stir it occasionally, but I have boiled it many times without stirring it after the lime slaked. Do not boil one hour, as it is liable to give it too much sediment. Boil three quarters of an hour. Overboiling results in a lot of thick muddy sediment, which comes from a chemical change in the sulfur that throws it out of solution, and consequently weakens the solution and causes trouble by making too much sediment. Put the red liquid into barrels and keep it as long as you wish, and when ready to use dilute with six or seven times its bulk of water."

CHERRY GROVE.

Miss Velma Horton, of Broad Top City is visiting her aunt Mrs. Howard Nonemaker, at this place Dallas Star, of Three Springs, goes very often to see his friend Myrtle Swartz, a very pleasant little girl of this place. Mr. Ray Hess, our school teacher, is getting along nicely with his school. Wedding bells are likely to ring soon in this neighborhood.
