

Pictures of World Events for News Readers

In This Department Our Readers in Fulton County and Elsewhere May Journey Around the World With the Camera on the Trail of History Making Happenings.

WINTER SPORTS NORTH AND SOUTH

These contrasted photographs show, above, one of the crews in the annual bob-sled race that attracts Long Island society folk to Huntington each February, and, below, four happy bathers at Palm Beach, Fla., on one of the floating mattresses that the folk there are using in the surf.

FAMOUS OLD CASTLE RUINED BY EARTHQUAKE

All that was left of the famous Torlonia castle at Avezzano after its massive walls had been shaken down by the recent earthquake in Italy. It was built in 1490.

MAINE MEMORIAL AT ARLINGTON

Memorial to the officers and men who were lost with the battleship Maine in Havana harbor, erected in the National cemetery at Arlington and dedicated on February 15. It is in the form of a fighting mast and turret, and on the panels of the latter are engraved the names of the victims.

GEN. SIR HENRY RUNDLE

Gen. Sir Henry Maceod Rundle, who is in command of Great Britain's Fifth army corps, was born in 1855, and in his 30 years of military service has distinguished himself in many campaigns. After his name he may write K. C. B., G. C. V. C., K. C. M. G., C. M. G., and D. S. O.

Scotch Humor.

An old Scotch woman who had made a great deal of money by selling whisky was visited when on her death bed by her minister.
"And so, Molly," said the minister, "you tell me that you have all this money."
"Indeed, minister, I have," replied Molly.
"And you tell me, too," continued the minister, "that you made all this money by filling the noggin?"
"Na, na, minister," said the dying woman. "I dinna tell ye that. I made the maist of it by not filling the noggin."

STARTLING POISONING CASE IN NEW YORK STATE

View of the Odd Fellows' Home for the Aged at Yonkers, N. Y., eight helpless inmates of which are alleged to have been poisoned by orderlies to get them out of the way; and, on the left, Frank J. Fuchs, president of the home.

B.LUECHER ON FIRE AND SINKING IN THE NORTH SEA

German armored cruiser Bluecher, which was destroyed by the British in the recent North sea battle, photographed just before she turned over and went down by the stern. The crew were singing patriotic songs as the vessel sank. Many of them were rescued by the English.

FRENCH CREEPING INTO THEIR TRENCHES

CORPORAL HOLMES, V. C.

Corporal Holmes, V. C., who was given a great civic welcome the other day when he returned to London from a field hospital in France, won the Victoria Cross by saving a British gun under incessant artillery fire from the Germans, and by other equally brave deeds on the battlefield.

The Status of the Case.

"Some of these theorists say war is a tonic for the race."
"That may be, but if you ask the British, I'll bet they tell you it is Tonic."

DECLARED HEIR TO BRITISH FORTUNE

By a decision just rendered by the probate court of London, England, the great battle for the Slingsby fortune has been decided at last in favor of Teddy Slingsby, the four-year-old subject of this photograph. The decision in effect declares him to be legitimate son of Charles Raymond Slingsby, though two brothers of the former lieutenant of the royal navy who settled in San Francisco and married Miss Dorothy Cutler Morgan have claimed otherwise. Little Teddy becomes heir to an income of $50,000 per year.

Temperance

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

WE CAN AND WE WILL.

"A few years ago I was up in the interior of China," says Bishop Samuel P. Spreng of the Evangelical church. "It was about three years after they had determined to do away with the opium traffic. The opium traffic is as great a curse, or was as great a curse in China, as the liquor traffic has ever been here, and the government determined to put that traffic away within ten years. That was in 1906. Three years later in the interior cities you could not find an opium den except hidden away in the back alleys, in the little places, just where they have to look for the blind tigers and places of that kind here. By the time the ten years are up that traffic will be blotted out among those four hundred millions of people, and they did that, they undertook that, in spite of the fact, or in view of the fact, that nearly 26 per cent of their revenues came from the opium traffic. They let the revenue go and looked for other sources of revenue that are honorable and honest and clean, to carry on their government and let the opium traffic go. And I say if the most conservative, the bulkiest, the biggest people on the face of the earth can put away the opium traffic inside of ten years, we Americans ought to be ashamed of ourselves if we cannot put down the liquor traffic. And we are going to do it, we are able to do it, we are not going to say that we cannot if we will. We can and we will, God helping us."

POOR ADVERTISEMENT.

"Our town offers especially strong inducements to men with growing families who want to raise their children in the atmosphere of the saloon; no town offers better opportunities for educating the youth in the habit of drinking; we boast of ten saloons, one on almost every corner."

"No one ever saw an advertisement like that and never will," says the Kansas City Star. "There is not a town in the world that bases its prosperity on the number of its rum shops. Villages, towns and cities advertise their good points, not their bad points. They have this and that opportunity for employment. The climate is more or less wonderful. The transportation facilities are told of. Good neighbors are a valuable asset. The town has so many churches and so many schools. If it is without saloons, that good point is made much of as an appeal to men and women with families to come there. But if it has saloons there is never a word about it! That is hidden, covered up."

MUST BE TRANSFORMED.

"Our trade cannot afford to longer oppose an aroused public sentiment," says Bonfort's Wine and Spirit Circular. "It would be like Belgium standing alone against the German empire." And the editor says that in order to defend the trade successfully liquor leaders "must make war on those things that breed opposition—must demand whatever changes are necessary to adapt our affairs to the demands of public sentiment." The W. C. T. U., through its mouthpiece, the Union Signal, informs "the trade" that it is a change in nature, not in method, which public sentiment is demanding, and reminds the liquor interests of the declaration of Mr. McDonough, former president of the National Liquor League, to wit: "This talk of reforming the saloon sounds well in the form of a resolution, but it is all rot." The change necessary to adapt the wine and spirits trade to the demands of public sentiment is nothing less than a transmutation.

CHALLENGE OF PATRIOTISM.

This is the challenge of patriotism—America needs every man at his best, and it is written in the plan of God for the ages that America shall not fail.

Are the progress armies of the great republic less patriotic than the armies of Europe? The armies of Europe have banished intoxicants.

Is America less patriotic than China? China has banished opium.
Is America less patriotic than Russia? Russia has banished vodka.
Is America less patriotic than France? France has banished absinthe.—Daniel A. Palling.

WANTED BY THE SALOON!

One hundred boys for new customers. Most of our old customers are rapidly dropping out.

Ten committed suicide last week. Twenty are in jail; eight are in the chain-gang.

Fifteen were sent to the poorhouse; one was hanged.

Three were sent to the insane asylum.

Most of the balance are not worth fooling with—they have no money.

We must have new customers—fresh, young blood.

BETTER USE FOR LIQUOR MONEY.

"The liquor bill would pay for 50,000,000 bales of cotton at ten cents a pound—about equivalent to four years' production for the entire South," asserted Senator Morris Sheppard in a speech delivered at Little Rock, Ark. "It would pay for 125,000,000 tons of cotton seed at $20. It would pay for all the corn the entire nation raises in two years, at the rate of a dollar a bushel. It would pay for all the cattle and hogs Arkansas can raise in two decades."

COWL OVER THEIR HEADS.

Those people who take alcohol in the mistaken assumption that they are taking a nightcap, are not only taking a drug which is akin to narcotics, and which produces an artificial slumber, but they are really putting a cowl over their heads and intellects.—Dr. T. B. Hyslop.

AID TO ARMIES.

A field marshal has declared that the spread of temperance in the army is equal to the embodiment of a new battalion.
