Are There Private Armies?
It is illegal to have an army of your own, but the law winks at private armies in one or two cases.
The duke of Atholl had—for they have now gone to the great war—a private army of 200 men, and has often provided guards of honor for King George from their ranks. In fact, Queen Victoria once reviewed this private army. The duke of Atholl's private army is for its size the finest body of soldiers in the world, all over six feet in height, sturdy Scotsmen picked from the fittest of the fit.
The duke of Fife also kept a private army which numbered a hundred men, who were armed with huge pikes exactly as the soldiers were armed centuries ago.
The Stuart Archers and the Farquharson Clansmen are two other private armies of which Scotland can boast. The marquises of Donegal, too, have for hundreds of years kept a private army.—Pearson's.

Severe Training.
"What I admire about Billthers is his quiet self-possession."
"He acquired that in the last few years."
"In what way?"
"By sitting in the audience while his wife made speeches on woman suffrage."

CRUISER THAT CUT THE TURKISH CABLES

One of the brilliant feats of the allied fleet in the Dardanelles was the cutting of the cables between the forts on the European and Asiatic sides. This was accomplished by the British light cruiser Amethyst, though she was subjected to a terrific fire and was struck by a number of shells.

SALLY PARNES, BUTCHER

When New York city recently opened its great cosmopolitan market there was an innovation that was pleasing to the woman shoppers especially. This was the placing of Sally Parnes, a skilled butcher, in one of the big meat booths to see that the housewives got just what they wanted.

Faith in the Seed Catalogue.
I never lose my faith in the annual seed catalogue in spite of divers and sundry disappointments. With new zeal every year I read of those wonderful strawberries, one of which would fill a tumbler, and the ever-bearing raspberries that are in fruit from June to December, and of the mammoth squashes which only a Hercules can lift. And I am very sure to try some of them, and get any amount of fun out of my anticipations of similar results.
No matter if the realization falls far short of the picture in the gorgeous catalogue; I lay the results to my poorer soil, or lack of skill in cultivation, and have just as much confidence in the novelties which next spring's catalogue exploits as the "very largest, richest, juiciest, most melting (always a favorite word) fruit in the world."
I would not lose my faith in the seed and fruit catalogues for all the squashes and raspberries that grow.—Francis E. Clark, in Countryside Magazine.

Misplaced Pity.
Mrs. Anna Steinauer, Boston's policewoman, said, the other day:
"My duties afford me shocking revelations. I am astonished at the number of Boston women who smoke. And as for the men of Boston—well!"
The fair policewoman smiled grimly and added:
"How many, many a Boston wife brushes in the morning the billiard chalk from her husband's coat-sleeves and thinks, with tears in her eyes, of the overtime the poor boy puts in nearly every evening at his dreary desk by the whitewashed wall!"

VINCENT ASTOR GETS A HYDROPLANE

Vincent Astor (right) about to try out a new $14,000 hydroplane built for him at Marblehead, Mass. The flying boat has a speed of from 45 to 70 miles an hour, and is equipped with a roomy cabin for three persons.

Colgero Gerric, twenty-one, charged with the slaying of S. Piliato, was found guilty of murder in the second degree at Scranton.

David Strouse, aged forty-nine years, an ironworker, committed suicide at his home in Pottstown.

May Reconsider Local Option.
Harrisburg.—Further consideration of local option in the present Legislature is now considered probable, notwithstanding the Brumbaugh-Williams local option bill was defeated earlier in the session by an overwhelming majority. A resolution providing for the appointment of a commission to investigate the advisability of passing such a bill has been prepared.
