During an ice gorge on the Susquehanna river below Harrisburg, last winter, thousands of tons of ice were buried in an old canal. Many hundreds of tons still remain. The finding of buried ice along that river in mid-summer is no novelty.

After having spent two weeks in the home of her mother, Mrs. Keziah Johnston, Mrs. R. C. McCutchen returned to her home in Zanesville, Ohio, last Tuesday. For several weeks, Mrs. Johnston has been in poor health and has been quite feeble; but we are glad to report that she is better.

Roy Kendall, of Big Cove, was exhibiting a set of spoon moulds in town last Saturday evening. They are relics of the time when pewter was largely used in the manufacture of kitchen utensils. Pewter is a composition of lead and zinc, and spoons were made by melting the pewter and pouring into the moulds, same as we would mould bullets.

We are indebted to Mr. A. A. Shearer for a new subscription. Mr. Shearer hails from Shirleysburg, and is making his home temporarily with Mr. Morrow Kendall, of Ayer township, and Mr. Shearer is sending the NEWS to his old friend O. S. Copenhagen, at Shirleysburg in order to keep him posted on the progress of the railroad.

An old soldier at Hustontown writes "The down-pour of rain on Sunday did not prevent Rev. Benson from coming to the U. B. church to deliver an appropriate sermon to a few old Veterans in honor of departed soldiers who gave the best part of their lives to the defense of their country and their flag. The sermon also contained some good advice to the living."

Mr. A. W. Deshong, of Andover, and his daughter, Mrs. Will Mellott, were in town Monday doing some shopping. Abram had a flock of 45 nice big fat hens in which he took much pride. Now he has 26. Somebody, or somebody else, came upon his premises while he was sleeping and stole 19. Abram may make it warm for somebody, if things work out as he expects.

Some miscreant broke into Isaiah Sipes' cellar one night last week and helped himself to a lot of nice-canned sausage and canned spare-ribs that Mrs. Sipes was saving as a surprise to the harvest hands. Isaiah doesn't think much of that kind of a job, and he has provided himself with a double-barreled shotgun and a basketful of shells, and the fellow who goes fooling around there after night had better look a "leettle oud."

We have heard from many little bird colonies in town and out of town. Several citizens of McConnellsburg put up many wren boxes this spring, and all but one of these snug little homes are "rented." Wren boxes differ from other bird boxes in that the entrance is but three quarters of an inch in diameter, and for this reason, English sparrows and other bird enemies cannot enter. The wrens are paying rent by giving daily matinees to the delight of their human friends.

For the first time in many years, H. E. Miller, of Burnt Cabins, paid a visit to McConnellsburg. Mr. Miller occupies his time by contracting to get out logs during winter time, and making roads in the summer time. He is foreman of section No. 193, under State road work in Dublin township. He said that all work was stopped by the State on May 25th. Much of the work in that township consists of surfacing roads with a fine quality of very hard, black slate found in that section.

Miss Cartes K. Swartz, of Washington, D. C., Field Secretary of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church lectured in the local M. E. church Saturday evening and Sunday evening. Miss Swartz is a lady of more than ordinary intellectual ability. Only they who heard the lectures know how much those persons missed who did not hear them. When a speaker of that kind comes into our town, arrangements should be made that every one should have an opportunity to be present.

Memorial Day Services.

A veteran remarked in our hearing last Saturday, that it invariably rains on Decoration Day not always hard, but some rain. Since May 30th fell on Sunday this year, the Decoration services were held here and at Union Cemetery on Saturday, and hard rain during the forenoon made it impossible for as many to attend as has been customary on former occasions. At about two o'clock in the afternoon, nine veterans marched silently to their seats in the Auditorium. For some reason, our Band was not present, and the music of the day consisted of singing by a choir of eighteen school girls, who opened the services by a song. Rev. A. S. Luring followed by prayer. Other songs by the choir followed. Kittie Harris recited Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

Hon. John P. Sipes made the address of the day. In well chosen phrases he outlined the causes of the wars in which this nation has taken part. Mr. Sipes kept close to the American sentiment of peace; but he also voiced another American sentiment when he said that there are times and occasions when war is necessary. He prophesied that if another occasion for war should become unavoidable during the present European crisis, fully 5,000, 000 American citizens would rise as one man and offer their service to preserve the integrity of the United States.

If people did not turn out to fill the audience chamber, they sent flowers, and at the close of the exercises the great bank of blooms that was displayed on the rostrum was taken up by young people who followed the old soldiers to the cemeteries in town and every soldier's grave had a tribute of respect paid it in the form of a wreath or large bunch of choice blossoms.

At Union Cemetery, rain in the forenoon prevented the carrying out of a program. Hon. D. H. Patterson offered prayer and Florence Bain recited "The Flag of '64." All soldier graves were then decorated, sufficient flowers having been sent for this purpose.

Five Minutes for Memories.

In parts of the State, and in some other states, it has been customary for the people to spend five minutes at noon on Memorial Day, by standing perfectly still, with uncovered heads, while bells are tolled in honor of deceased soldiers. The five minutes were observed in McConnellsburg by the vigorous ringing of several church bells. We are of the opinion that a mistake was made when the bells were rung in that manner. The slow, solemn striking of the bell at regular intervals, would have been in accord with the idea of tolling a bell in honor of the dead.

Railroad News.

Between thirty and forty men are at work cutting brush and clearing the right-of-way. Five carloads of machinery for grading have been shipped, we are told, and two cars have arrived and been unloaded at Fort Loudon. The other three cars will no doubt, have arrived by the time this reaches our readers. A very small portion of the right-of-way on this side of the mountain remains to be secured; but this may all be cleared up in a few days.

Citizens' Mass Meeting.

Under the auspices of the recently formed Civic League, of which an account appears elsewhere in this paper, a mass meeting for men and women will be held in the Court House Friday evening of this week at 7:30. Children under twelve years not admitted. Speeches by town people and others. Everybody welcome. Bring a small collection for expenses.

Cove Cattle Improving.

Last week we reported that an unknown disease had appeared among cattle in woods pasture in Ayer township, and that several had died. Last evening, we called up several of these farmers on the phone and they reported that William Cutchall had lost two more; but all others including the sick ones in Mr. Cutchall's herd were getting well, or have entirely recovered. Mr. Cutchall lost the last two after having removed them from the Cove pasture to his home west of Scrub Ridge. A few days ago, D. F. Trout of Tod township noticed that two of his cattle were sick and showing symptoms similar to those down the Cove; but they are recovering nicely.

The theory has been pretty well established that the cattle suffered from tannic poison due to having eaten too freely of oak leaves and twigs. Tannic acid is obtained from the juices of oaks, willows, and other trees, and it is a severe astringent; the congested condition of the entrails of the animal opened indicated the presence of something like that.

Scalp Bounty Thieves Sentenced.

Thirteen self-confessed bounty swindlers of Wilcox, Elk County, arrested several weeks ago, were sentenced May 28th by Judge H. A. Hall. Eleven men received sentences of from one to two years in the Western Penitentiary. Thomas Nichols and Edward Lehman received suspended sentences of two years on account of their age.

Most of the men have wives and children, but Judge Hall declared that their crime was a serious one, taking false oaths and defrauding several counties of public funds. It developed that a justice of the peace of Elk County, who is said to have been the leader of the gang which defrauded many counties in this section of the State in the last four years, has disappeared.
