GERMAN SHELLS BURSTING OVER FRENCH POSITION

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood

This remarkable picture of bursting German shells was made just at the moment when they were falling on a farm in the Argonne district used by the French as a rendezvous. The shells were directed at the French soldiers, who are seen working. None of the French soldiers who were present while the rain of shells fell on them were hurt.

WAR'S TRAGEDY FOR THE NONCOMBATANT

CAME TO BORROW A BILLION FOR ALLIES

TAKING WOUNDED ABOARD

Representatives of England and France, who came to the United States for the purpose of negotiating a loan of a billion dollars for the allies, are shown in this illustration. J. P. Morgan (1), as financial agent of the British government, acted as their host. The others are: (2) Sir Edward Holden of the London City and Midland bank; (3) Sir Henry Babbington Smith; (4) Lord Reading, lord chief justice of Great Britain and head of the commission; (5) Octave Homburg of the French foreign office; (6) Basil B. Blackett of the British treasury; (7) Ernest Mallet, regent of the Bank of France.

Russian Barbers Act as Surgeons.

Russian barbers with about six weeks' medical training are with the czar's army in great numbers as full-blooded surgeons, according to reports of wounded German soldiers who have just returned from the front. These soldiers, many of whom bear evidence of improper amputations, also complain of poor sanitary conditions in Russian hospitals, but praise the Russian woman nurses as being kind and considerate.

Lavender Repels Mosquitoes.

Noted in this evening's issue a formula for repelling mosquitoes. A simpler and more effective repellent is oil of lavender, sprayed through an atomizer on parts exposed. This oil is more efficient than citronella, ammonia, camphor, tar and a hundred other "straws" that "skeeter" victims have clutched at. It has been found tried in New Jersey and not found wanting, so what more can one ask for?—(Letter to New York Globe.)

This photograph, taken at the Dardanelles, shows a British soldier, wounded in the arm, being lowered aboard a hospital launch in what is known as a "bosun's chair," which is swung out by means of a crane.

Would Help Some.

It is a small English country town, and one of the members of the special war relief committee is also proprietor of a drapery "emporium." To him came for advice and assistance a poor woman who had just "heard the worst" about her man at the front. Would the separation allowance be paid still? Or would the war office make a special grant? "I can't say definitely what the war office will do in your particular case," was the judicious verdict, "but, personally, I shall be glad to—ah—to supply you with mourning from my establishment at a wholesale price."

A Hopeless Case.

"Do you see that strong, healthy looking man over there?" "I was just admiring his physique." "The doctors gave him up years ago." "You surprise me." "Yes, they found they couldn't get anything out of him."

POLISH JEWS FLEEING TO THE AUSTRIAN LINES

UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

A scene on one of the roads leading out of Lublin in Russian Poland, showing poor Jewish children and their mothers and old Jewish men fleeing from their homes, which the Russians in retreating had destroyed to prevent the Germans from finding quarters in them. They are carrying all they have been able to save, and trudging along, tired and worn out, towards the Austrian lines, where they sought safety and protection. Two Austrian soldiers are passing cheering remarks to the refugees.

BROWNSVILLE, CENTER OF BORDER TROUBLE

General view of Brownsville, Tex., which is immediately across the Rio Grande from Matamoros, Mexico, and is the most important point in the present troubles with Mexican bandits. In the left background are seen the tents of the American troops.

MADE INVISIBLE AT NIGHT

Of all the strange inventions which this war has brought out, none is stranger than the uniform which is shown in the picture. At night, in the darkness of the trenches, the officers don these phantom uniforms and walk about in the open to inspect the lines. This they can do without fear on account of the dress which makes them practically invisible because of the black material of which it is made. Two holes through which the wearer can see and another hole through which he can breathe are cut into the hood.

Mammoth Had Eaten Moss.

Ferdinand Camus reports to the French Academy of Sciences that in the stomach of a mammoth discovered in an almost perfect state of preservation in the ice of the Lialkof islands and presented to the Museum of Natural History in Paris he found moss. This he was able to identify as three species that "thrive flourish everywhere in the Arctic and Antarctic regions."

WILL HELP ORPHANED SERBIANS

Miss Dora Grutch (right) of Serbia and her secretary, Miss Eva Reed of Oregon, as they were about to sail from New York for the purpose of opening the Frothingham Home for Serbian Children orphaned by the war. The institution, which will be American in character, is the gift of John W. Frothingham of New York and his sister Elizabeth, and of five Serbians whose names are withheld.

SCOTTISH RITE TEMPLE COMPLETED

The Scottish Rite temple at Washington, which has been in course of construction for three years, is now completed and ready for the dedication ceremonies which will be held early in October. The building, which cost $1,500,000 and is one of the finest of its kind in the world, will be the headquarters of the southern jurisdiction of Scottish Rite Masonry, embracing the territory south of the Mason-Dixon line and all west of the Mississippi. The temple is located on Sixteenth street, the capital's finest boulevard.

Goodness in a Dungeon

TEXT—He was there in the prison. But the Lord was with Joseph.—Gen. 39:29, 31.

Joseph's prison was made gloomy by physical discomfort; by the mystery of his suffering, although an innocent man; and by the fact that after his kindness to the chief butler the latter forgot him. Yet there was light in the prison and that in several directions. Prisoners of the Lord

To begin with, the text tells us that "the Lord was with Joseph." As we express it sometimes in singing one of our hymns:

Prisons would palaces prove
If Jesus would dwell with me there.
Paul was enabled to write the epistle to the Philippians with its keyword, "Rejoice," from the Roman prison. John Bunyan in his "den" at Bedford saw Immanuel's land and the Delectable mountains. Madam Guyon said the Lord had shut her up in prison like a bird, with nothing to do but sing.

Again, the Lord gave Joseph favor in the sight of the keeper of the prison (Gen. 39:21). The hearts of kings are in the hand of God and his afflicted people may be certain that God is not at a loss when he wishes to relieve them. Stories more fascinating than fiction could be written from the lives of Christians who have been given favor in the sight of the great ones of earth.

The Lord kept Joseph unselfish. Most of us would have felt justified in nursing our troubles, but this man had "a heart at leisure from itself, to soothe and sympathize." One morning Joseph noticed that his fellow prisoners, the butler and baker, looked sad. He immediately inquired the cause and proceeded to help them to the best of his ability. After all, the best way to bear one's burdens is to help bear the burdens of others. Moreover, although Joseph little realized it, his interest in these prisoners marked a crisis in his life; as a result of it he finally came to the throne of Egypt, but he was ready for the crisis only because he was daily caring for the interests of others. How little we know of the crises which every day will bring forth, and how we need to walk habitually so as to please God if we are to meet these crises adequately!

It is evident that the Lord preserved the faith of Joseph. We recall his own dreams when in his father's house, and the assurance they gave him that he would come to a place of elevation over his father and brethren; but here he was in the dungeon and he would have seemed justified had he lost faith in dreams. Yet that this was not the case is evident from his interpretation of the dreams of the butler and baker, and his confidence that God would bring them to pass. Psalm 105:19 (R. V.) tells us that "until the time that his word came to pass, the word of the Lord tried him."

The Lord kept Joseph unretaliating. When speaking with the chief butler he said, "I have done nothing that they should put me into the dungeon" (Gen. 40:15). Not a word does he utter concerning that wicked woman, Potiphar's wife, who had designed his ruin. How slow even Christians are to learn that they need to do no unkind thing in order to fulfill the plans of God! "He shall bring forth thy righteousness as the light and thy judgment as the noonday."

Hoping in God. Altogether, God was training Joseph to hope in himself alone and to obey him in any event. Doubtless his hopes of deliverance were high when the chief butler left the prison, yet two long years passed before deliverance came. By the grace of God Joseph was kept from growing rebellious, but persisted in the way of duty. When God finds a man who will plod on, delighting to do his will under all circumstances, he will quickly set him in a large place and put a scepter in his hand. Joseph was in training for a throne and so are all true followers of Christ.

What a misfortune if the chief butler had remembered Joseph according to his promise! Joseph might have been delivered from the prison and sent away a free man out of the land, but scarcely more than this. How his story encourages us to trust and not be afraid!

The Christian's Easy Chair. An aged Christian woman living in deep poverty was asked how she bore her troubles. She said when they became especially heavy she sat in her easy chair and rocked them away. The visitor looked about for this wonderful chair, but saw no trace of it, until finally the happy saint explained that it was Romans 8:28, "All things work together for good to them that love God."

Love. Love is the highest gift of God: humble, gentle, patient love; all visions, revelations, manifestations whatever are little things compared to love.—John Wesley.
