TOWN OF GORIZIA RESTING PLACE OF ROYALTY.

Among Many Others, It Contains the Tombs of Charles X and "Henry V" of France-Known as "Austrian Nice."

Mentioned almost daily in the war dispatches from the Italo-Austrian front, the litt'e town of Gorizia has gained considerable prominence of late.

Besides being the center of impor tant military operations, Gorizia is of interest because of its historic asso cifitions. Lying between Venice and Trieste, not far from the Adriatic, Gorizia has a population of about 20.000

The town has been an Austrian pos session for more than five centuries and its pleasant climate has earned it the name of "the Austrian Nice."

In the outskirts on a hill is a Franciscan monastery, the road to which is marked by the 14-station way of the cross. From the esplanade in front of the monastery church an extensive view of the surrounding country is obtained.

Below spreads the town, with the ancient chateau of the counts of Go rizia and the Villa Boeckmann, once the winter residence of the count de Chambord, towering over the less pretentious houses. A little further off one can trace the capricious course of the Isonzo river, the bed of which is said to the the burial place of Atilla, the Hun chieftain.

In the distance lies the Carno lime stone plateau, sheltering the magnifi cent castles of Duino, belonging to the house of Hohenlowe, and Miramar. which used to be the favorite real dence of Archduke Maximilian, later emperor of Mexico.

The horizon is bounded by Trieste, a chain of snow-covered Alp peaks. the Venetian plain and the Adriatic.

In the little chapel of St. Louis, it the right wing of the Franciscan church, the bodies of King Charles X of France, the duke and duchess d'Angouleme and the duchess of Parma had their resting place until 1883. when they were removed to a large vault under the high altar.

In this vault there are six sarcoph agi, three on each side of a marble crucifix, raised on a high pedestal Charles X has the duke d'Angouleme on his right and the duchess on his left.

In the other group the sarcophagus of King Henry V (the count de Cham bord) has been placed between those of the countess de Chambord and the duchess of Parma.

On a black marble slab behind the sarcophagus of the count de Cham bord is the following inscription: "Here rests the high born and very excellent Prince Henry, fifth of the name, by the grace of God king of France and Navarre. Born in Paris September 29, 1820. Died at Frohs dorf August 24, 1883."

Over his tomb is raised an immense white banner emblazoned with the royal fleur de lis, in compliance with the order given by the count in his manifesto of July 5, 1871, where he expressed a wish "that the standard over his tomb."

The deacon and his wife grew old and their six children all married, excepting Rhoda, the youngest, who stayed at home to take care of them. The four sons were prosperous, and the older daughter had married a very rich man and lived one hundred or more miles away. Two sons had become farmers and lived quite near One was a merchant in a large town perhaps lifty miles distant. The fourth one was a minister, settled in the same town with the merchant brother To the infinite disgust of Deacon Phipps, all of these sons, excepting the minister, owned automobiles, and Thomas, the merchant, actually sported three or four. When his father found this out, he came almost to the point of breaking off relations with Thomas, In the old days, the family had used to gather on the day before Thanksgiving, and the large, airy chambers of the ample Phipps home stead could accommodate them all Now the children and the grandchildren had increased in number until such gatherings were no longer possiblo. The uncles and aunts had died or had become infirm. There had been some pretty lonely Thanksgivings at the hospitable Phipps farm. It was during the week before the great day that Deacon Phipps was sitting before the open fire in his big comfortable sittingroom, and pondering over this melancholy fact.

"Tain't right," he grumbled to his gentle wife, who sat knitting beside him. "'Tain't right to have families scowled, but as he heard, first the sweet Gabriel horn, and then the rough roar of the Klaxon, his face relaxed a little. Who were in the car? It was not the family of son John. Surely it was Thomas and his minister brother, with several members of their families, and Mrs. Phipps fairly cried with joy as she saw them.

'There is another load just behind us," they shouted, as they drew up before the door.

"Another load!" There were half a dozen loads before the final toll was. taken and when two strong, big Phipps sons lifted out from one of the Aunt Betty, who could not have

You can trust him, and now you and mother can heat a big soapstone and climb into your limousine and come and see us all, and we expect you to do it. Now what do you say to that, father?"

What could the old man say? He turned red, stammered, looked at his wife, who was smiling signincantly, and then had the grace to Sudan, Mauritius, Seychelles, Ascen accept and thank his children for their munificent gift.

TRACED TO ENGLISH CUSTOM

Another Account of the Origin of Thanksgiving Day as It is Now Celebrated.

Thanksgiving day, as we know it, had its origin in the custom of kings of England in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries to proclaim a day of national thanksgiving for some great victory or some other blessing of heaven.

The first American Thanksgiving day was July 20, 1775. The second was Friday, May 17, 1776. The third was December 11, also in 1776, which thus had two Thanksgivings. Washington issued his first Thanksgiving procta mation to his army, from Valley Forge. in 1777. In those days the date was prescribed by a committee of the coptinental congress. In 1778 the chap lains of congress drew up the procla mation. There were no national Thanksgiving days from the presidency of Madison to that of Lincoln, but Thanks giving day had been an institution in New England since the middle of the seventeenth century and quite eclipsed Christmas. Governor Jay tried unsuccushioned limousines poor, lame old cossfully to establish it in New York, and Governor Clinton succeeded. In the western states that were settled annual feast.

It was through the persistent efforts of Mrs. Sarab Josepha Hale, a New Hampshire widow living in Philadelgraudchildren was there!
