The Dead Town. Did you ever go into a town and, have it strike you suddenly that the town was dead? Have you ever had a town described to you as a "dead" town? Have you ever stopped to analyze just what is meant by these words "dead town?" In the last analysis they mean just one thing—and that is that the merchants of the town don't advertise. A dead town has certain positive aspects of demise which are as bald as a piece of crepe hanging on the door of a private house. The stores seem to be merely existing. Their shelves are covered with apparently unsalable goods. The storekeepers seem to be vying with each other to see which will win the first prize as the town grouch. If you talked with them they knocked the town, they knocked business, they knocked the mail order house. They were continually complaining that other people did business and made money but that they didn't seem to be able to sell anything. They guessed it was the town. Yes, that was it,—the town. If you asked that merchant if he advertised, he would have looked at you with amazement. What was the use of advertising when business is so bad? People who had money to spend, he would tell you were sending it to the mail order houses. No, he would say he didn't advertise? He wouldn't throw good money after bad. On the other hand, go into a live town and what will you see? The merchants have attractive displays in their stores. The daily and weekly newspapers are filled up with big announcements of special sales or low priced goods. They are not afraid of the mail order houses because they have the same means to reach the people—advertising that makes the mail order house great. The merchants have their local association for mutual help, and behind the association the local newspaper is pushing-pushing pushing. Everybody is working and everybody is happy and is boosting. If you want a live town get behind the newspaper and the newspaper will do the rest. Forget the timeworn arguments that the paper is a dead one. The paper is alive enough if the people are alive. The surest test of a live town is a live newspaper, and a newspaper can't be alive unless the town boosters do their share.

G. H. Thomas, 25 years old, driver for the Hagerstown-Clear-spring-Hancock jitney bus line, committed suicide in a bathroom above the Danielton restaurant in Hancock, by cutting his throat and slashing his arm with a razor. On Tuesday of last week Sherman Amick of Wells Tannery and William Colledge, of Rays Cove, butchered six runty pigs at the Reichley Brothers Camp in Oregon for H. H. Minnick who keeps the camp boarding house. The pigs just cleaned up 1458 pounds. Henry says these people certainly know how to go after fat pigs. Educational Meetings. The fifth local institute of Taylor district was held at Hustontown last Friday evening. The meeting was called to order by the teacher, W. G. Wink. Subjects discussed were; Arithmetical, how taught to all grades. How do you teach beginners to read and spell? The literary program was well rendered by the school. The school-room was tastefully decorated with evergreen which added much beauty to its appearance. The subjects were well discussed by the teachers present, W. H. Ranck, W. G. Wink, Ruth Lyon, Ethel Sipes, Olitipa Keebaugh, Lillian Laidig, and Alice Cutchall of Taylor, and Glenn Laidig, Erma Gress and Lillian Stinson, of Dublin. Co. Supt. Thomas gave some very instructive hints upon what makes a practical education, and Arithmetic. We feel more than grateful to those teachers from other townships, also to Prof. Thomas for his help and solicit their future help any convenient time. Institute adjourned to meet on Dec. 31st at Laidig School. Topics will be announced at a later date. Alice Cutchall, Secy.
