Miss Helen Washabaugh entertained a party of friends last Friday evening.

Merrill W. Nace has completed a new granolithic walk from the street to the porch of his residence.

John Woodcock, of Hustontown, ex-mail carrier who went to Pittsburg last April, recently enlisted in the army that will go to the Mexican border.

Edward Slichter, a road supervisor of Franklin county, was arrested one day last week and given a hearing before a magistrate, the charge being that Slichter used profane language in a dispute with a farmer.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Stoner and daughter, Mrs. W. U. Brewer, and Mr. S. D. Stevens—all of Chambersburg—stopped a short time in McConnellsburg, Monday, while on their way to Bedford Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Spangler who removed to Hancock last fall, expect to build a comfortable residence on their lot opposite the Merrill W. Nace home on north Second street, and next fall, they will become McConnellsburg citizens again.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Heiges, of Lancaster, visited the latter's foster-mother, Mrs. Mary Clevenger, in this place, last Sunday and Monday. They were accompanied by their two daughters Dorothy and Maravina, and Mr. David Malloy. Mr. Heiges is building a fine new residence for self and family in Lancaster.

Mr. James Woodal, Jr., near Fort Loudon, had the misfortune to run a nail in one of his feet last week. Last Sunday his brother-in-law D. A. Washabaugh accompanied by Mr. Washabaugh's son David, Thomas Oliver and son Scott, W. H. Woodall and son Frank, and Mrs. Elmer Gress and baby, went over to see him.

A lot of filthy-looking Gypsies passed through McConnellsburg last Saturday, in automobiles. If the State law was enforced, we would be rid of the pests instantly. The law plainly states that a fee of fifty dollars is required of Gypsies for each time they camp in the State. These nomads are of no manner of use to the country. They produce nothing, and we personally know that they are a terror to farmers wives.

Hogs. The June 28th issue of "The Weekly News Letter" throws so much light on the question of hog raising that we "boiled down" the long article headed "Hog Raising in the East," as follows:

Eastern farmers will continue to look upon hogs as they do chickens—merely a side line—until they wake up to the necessity of providing forage crops to reduce cost, for these crops will not spring up of themselves, but wheat, oats, rye, vetch, peas, beans rape, and many things besides clover and timothy in the rotation crops, must be sown all along through the growing season, to provide summer, late fall, and early spring pasture.

With bountiful harvests in sight, we will guarantee no harm in the reading of such chapters as the 65th Psalm.
