Temperance Notes

AS HEALTH OFFICERS SEE IT.
Dr. Haven Emerson, health commissioner of New York city:

"It is, as I conceive it, the duty of departments of health to teach, teach, teach, persuade, demonstrate, exhibit, exhort, prove that alcohol as a beverage or in patent medicines is a menace to personal and community health. It is a common source of sickness and death, is blocking the path of preventive medicine and is a menace to the physical and social development of the nation."

Health Commissioner Ford of Cleveland, O.:

"Teaching the effects of alcohol is a public health function. There is nothing more important than this question."

Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary Indiana state board of health:

"We know that alcoholic liquor is a vile and evil thing. It is a horrible thing from an economic and social point of view; it is always and everywhere injurious from the physical standpoint. Every drop is a poison. Its use is always injurious, and if I had the power I would close every public saloon as a public dope shop."

Dr. John Dill Robertson, health commissioner of Chicago:

"In the city of Chicago, where the death rate is approximately 100 a day, it is safe to say that at least 25 per cent of these deaths are caused directly or indirectly by alcohol. Alcohol produces acute inflammation of the stomach, hemorrhage of the pancreas, heart disease, cancer of the stomach, Bright's disease, fatty liver, hardened liver, inflammation of the nerves, epilepsy, hardening of the arteries and a multitude of other afflictions of the body. These are known medical facts. It is not only a causative factor in the diseases and afflictions mentioned, but it invades the mental man and produces insanity."

The New Jersey Health Officers' association passed a resolution recommending that campaigns of publicity be inaugurated by the state and local departments of health for the purpose of informing the public of the dangers attending the use of alcoholic beverages.

The Vermont state board of health is planning an anti-alcohol crusade similar to that of New York city.

Other city and state health boards are also incorporating anti-alcohol work as a regular part of health department programs.

DOES IT?
"Beer promotes efficiency," says the advertisement of a certain brewing company. Someone replies as follows:

"If you were about to have a dangerous surgical operation performed, would you prefer to have the surgeon take a few glasses of beer just before the operation, to 'promote efficiency'?"

"If you were about to take a trip on a railroad, would you prefer to have the engineer and the telegraph operators and the switchmen along the line take a few beers while you were on your way, to 'promote efficiency'?"

"If you are a business man, do you prefer to have your employees 'ruck the can' occasionally, to 'promote efficiency'?"

"Remember, you can get just as drunk on beer as you can on whisky."

BOTTLES SCARCE.
A chemist in Chicago, who is experimenting with a formula for making catchup and other preparations in tablet form, explained to a friend that this change was all "because of prohibition."

"Second-hand bottles are used to a great extent by manufacturers of many of these products," said the chemist, "and the spread of prohibition is making it almost impossible to secure bottles for this purpose."

NO REAL OBSTACLE.
Sumptuary legislation? Yes. Curtailment of the citizen's personal prerogative? Yes. We used to halt at this rock, too. And it is still there. But how easy it is to go around it—and find out what is on the other side. How much more is on the other side than on the side which, only, we have seen up to now.—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle (oldest newspaper in the South, which has taken its stand for national prohibition).

PERSONAL RIGHTS CHAMPION.
Obedient to the conservation ideal, society steadily declines to tolerate humanity's waste of itself in sensuality. This aligns against the drinker and the liquor maker and vender to-day persons and institutions that a generation ago were also stout champions of "personal rights."—Christian Science Monitor.

DRINKERS NOT WANTED.
"If we could, we would keep no man in our employ who drank at all. Sober men are safer and the better always. The total abstainer is decidedly better than the one who drinks even moderately."—The Buckeye Rolling Mill Company, Steubenville, O.

VIOLATES LAW.
Champion of Fair Play:
"There is not a licensed saloon keeper in the state who does not lay himself liable to prosecution a dozen times a day."

WORKS BOTH WAYS.
Denford's Wine and Spirit Circular:
"I have heard a distiller and importer say that he would fight to the last ditch any attempt to establish a saloon in the neighborhood in which he resides. If the people engaged in the business feel this way about it, they cannot find fault with others offering the same objection."

OUTLAWS SALOONS.
Skagway, Alaska, by a vote of 100 to 153, outlawed its saloons at a June election.

COLLAPSE OF GREAT SPAN OF BRIDGE AT QUEBEC

Above, the new bridge across the St. Lawrence at Quebec, showing the immense central span in position for raising. Below, the scene at the moment of collapse, showing the mass of steel plunging into the river. A number of lives were lost, and the financial loss was very large.

WRECK OF UNITED STATES CRUISER MEMPHIS

This remarkable picture shows the United States cruiser Memphis pounding on the rocks off Santo Domingo. More than 20 lives were lost and the cruiser was a complete loss. This picture was taken just as the Memphis was driven upon the rocks.

GREAT WAR CHIEFS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE

Left to right: Aristide Briand, French premier; General Joffre; General de Castelnau, chief of the French general staff; Lloyd-George, Great Britain's minister of war; M. Thomas, French minister of munitions, and General Roques, French minister of war.

This gathering of the greatest of France's war chiefs and Lloyd-George, Britain's minister of war, is one of the most notable conferences that have taken place since the beginning of the great war.

AFTER FATAL RIOTS IN HANKOW, CHINA

Fatal riots occurred recently in Hankow, and were suppressed by the foreign residents, aided by United States marines. The photograph shows Chinese searching in the ruins of their homes for valuables that might have been overlooked by the looters.

IN MOURNING TO WAR'S END

Mme. Eugenie Fonarova, noted Russian beauty and concert singer, attired in mourning garb. She has just arrived in New York and brought with her a new war style in clothes, being dressed in black from head to foot. The Grand Duchess Tatiana, eldest daughter of the czar, and a number of court ladies of Petrograd adopted this style and took oath never to wear anything but black until Russia was victorious over Germany. Mme. Fonarova was present when the plan was made and since then has dressed in mourning.

Tool-Making Peoples.

Are Anglo-Saxons conceited about their pre-eminence in matters of machinery? A book, "English and American Tool Builders," by Prof. J. W. Roe of Yale, answers the question thus: "Practically all the creative work in tool building has been done in England and America. . . . The French have shown an aptitude for refinements and ingenious novelties. . . . The Swiss are clever artisans, but have excelled in personal skill. . . . Germany has developed splendid mechanics, but the principal machine tools had taken shape before 1870, when the empire began. The history of English and American tool building, therefore, covers substantially the entire history of the art."

RALPH ALBERT BLAKELOCK

Ralph Albert Blakelock, the famous landscape artist, who for 17 years has been confined in an insane asylum. Many prominent people believe that Blakelock is now entirely sane. Through the persistent efforts of Mrs. Van Rensselaer Adams and others he has been granted a six months' furlow of freedom in which to prove his sanity. Blakelock says that he will paint his way back to freedom, despite his seventy years.

Phew! A Close Shave.

The brother of a former prosecuting attorney of Marion county recently visited the state prison at Michigan City. After arriving at the penitentiary, he asked the warden where he should go to get shaved, and he was invited into the prison barber shop. He stepped into one of the chairs and while the barber inmate was drawing a keen-edged razor across his throat the barber whispered to him: "Don't you know me? Your brother sent me up here." After he had stepped out of the chair, nicely shaved, the visitor felt much more comfortable.—Indianapolis News.

CAPITAL LANDMARK HAS NARROW ESCAPE

One of Washington's historic spots was endangered a few days ago when a building inspector discovered that Kiehl Sutherland, an old plantation dandy, was conducting a restaurant with only a push-cart license. This inspector reported to headquarters and a health department inspector became interested. The latter reported to headquarters that the restaurant was insanitary, and trouble began. Sutherland had built the shack piecemeal over a period of more than ten years, and his stand had become popular with railroad hands and many other laborers who enjoyed not only the food, but the quaint sayings on the wall and signboards as well. Sutherland interested a great many influential friends in the effort to save his shack, the fighting having extended to the district commissioners.

FUNERAL OF VICTIMS OF MEMPHIS WRECK

This photograph shows the beginning of the military funeral accorded the victims of the wreck of the United States cruiser Memphis in Santo Domingo bay. The procession started from the Solace, naval hospital ship, which docked in Washington at the nearest point to Arlington cemetery. The band from the Dolphin, the vessel used by the secretary of the navy, and five of the nine coffins with their cannon caissons are shown. Four of the bodies were claimed by relatives.

PERSHING ON INSPECTION TRIP

General Pershing is as active as any member of the American force in Mexico. The photograph shows him on an inspection trip accompanied by members of his staff. Near the place where the party is crossing, American engineers had constructed a bridge, but a sudden rise in the river turned the stream into a rushing torrent which, when the photograph was taken, had not altogether subsided.

MAY SOON ASCEND THRONES

Crown Prince George of Greece (left) and Crown Prince Boris of Bulgaria, both of whom may become kings before long. There have been reports that the king of Greece had abdicated and that Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria would be deposed by the people.
