Brace Up!

Do you feel old before your time? Is your back bent and stiff? Do you suffer urinary disorders? Don't despair—profit by McConnellsburg experiences. McConnellsburg people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's a McConnellsburg resident's statement.

F. M. Taylor, civil engineer, McConnellsburg, says: "I suffered from severe pains in my back and loins. I had weak kidneys, their action being unregular. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me great relief. I always take them with me when I go out of town, because if I catch cold, I get a slight attack of the trouble. When this occurs, I can always depend on Doan's Kidney Pills for relief."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Taylor uses. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

An Autumn Sunday in America.

The fall is here. The keen air nips shrewdly. The frost is often on the pumpkin and the corn. The main work of the year is done. The crops have been harvested.

Everywhere there is peace and prosperity and happiness. Men and women are leading their normal lives.

It might have been very different. A little slip at Washington, a little giving way to anger or emotion, and—

The countryside would present a different story. Many of the broad, fat acres would be untilled. On others the crops would be spoiling in the fields unless the old men and the crippled and the women and children made effort to harvest them. No sounds of rifle shots and no boom of cannon would be heard in the man-departed land, but the war feeling would be there just the same.

For the young men, the young, strong, industrious men, who are the pride and hope of the state, would be far away. Maybe in the deserts of Mexico. Maybe in the sodden ditches of Flanders. Some of them would be rotting where they fell. Some would be armless and legless, and some would be suffering the eternal night of the blind. And everywhere in this land there would be gray haired men silently mourning for their sons and wives weeping for their husbands and little boys and girls pitifully inquiring why daddy did not come back home.—(Published by request.)

Rye Flour Cuts Bread Cost.

With the price of wheat flour soaring almost daily, the house wife is vitally concerned with any suggestions for lowering the cost of the "staff of life." To answer occasional inquiries for methods of utilizing rye flour, Miss Pearl MacDonald, in charge of home economics extension at the Pennsylvania State College, has prepared several recipes.

The following recipe for rye bread is simple and inexpensive:

- 2 cups liquid (half water and half milk)
- 2 tablespoons fat (lard or butter)
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- One fourth to 1 yeast cake dissolved in one fourth cup lukewarm water
- 3 to 4 cups rye flour.

Enough wheat flour to knead in to dough

Soak liquid, add fat, sugar and salt; when lukewarm, add dissolved yeast and enough flour to make a dough. Knead till smooth and elastic. When slightly more than doubled in bulk, make into loaves. When light, bake from 50 minutes to one hour.

A combination of rye and wheat flour gives a lighter and more desirable loaf than one made with rye flour alone.

Read Ads and Save Money.

Never was there a time in the history of this country when the people were as constant and inveterate readers of newspapers as they are today, and this is especially so in the matter of newspaper advertising. People who a few years ago would hardly look at an advertisement now digest every word of it, and they do it with a purpose. The human mind is broadening and expanding, and becoming more liberal. It demands food, and particularly that class of food that conserves the financial interest of the reader. This demand is satisfied in perusal of newspaper advertisements provided quick action is taken to grasp the money-saving opportunities offered. The well worded advertisement appeals directly to every well balanced mind. It points the way to economy. And the wise business man advertises accordingly.

NEW USE FOR SUBMARINE.

An American inventor has found a new use for the busy submarine in the gathering of shellfish from the sea bottom. The apparatus most generally in use at present consists of a dredge fitted with a rake and a mesh bag, which trails along the seabed and gathers in oysters and other shellfish. The weakness of the system lies in the fact that it crushes and kills many oysters and soft-shelled clams. The oyster-gathering submarine dives to the bottom, rakes up the oysters by a special device and automatically washes them and shoots them through pipes into the cargo room. The process has been likened to the reaping of a field of grain swath by swath.

LITERAL INFORMATION.

"Do you suffer much with the heat in summer?"

"Well, much more, as a rule, than I do at any other time."

HIS USE.

"What are all those bull terriers on that vessel for?"

"I guess they need 'em for the dog watches."

IN ONE WAY.

"Is automobiling a paying business?"

"It ought to be. It certainly does raise the dust."

THE WORM TURNS.

"How much are your four-dollar shoes?" asked the smart one.

"Two dollars a foot," replied the salesman wearily.—Judge.

CABLEGRAM LED TO ARREST

British Authorities Suspicious When Traveling Man Sent Message That They Did Not Understand.

How an American salesman with a German name, selling flour with a contraband brand in the Dutch East Indies, landed in a British jail at Singapore under suspicion of being a German agent, was related by Paul T. Carroll, who returned recently from a six months' tour of the Orient, states the San Francisco Chronicle.

"In Java I met Chester Fritz, a salesman for a flour mill, who was selling a brand known as 'Big Gun,' with a huge cannon on each sack to attract the native eye," he said. "Fritz booked an order for 1,000 sacks at Batavia. When he got to Singapore he cabled his firm as follows: 'Ship 1,000 Big Guns to Batavia.'"

"Fritz was arrested by the British about ten seconds after filing that cable, and was put in jail on suspicion of being a German agent.

"After two days of arguing and protesting, he persuaded the authorities to give him a chance to prove his innocence, which he did by finding a merchant who had some of the flour in stock. Fritz was released but he changed his cable to read 'sacks of flour' instead of 'Big Guns.'"

SORE AT WASTE OF MONEY

Old Skinflint Felt He Had a Kick Coming, and Proceeded to Register It Accordingly.

Being economical is an excellent virtue, but old Skinflint had practiced this quality to such an extent that with him it had become almost a vice. His wife was sometimes driven almost to the verge of distraction by his meanness. The climax came when they moved into a new house. When old Skinflint was out, his wife thought she would reparer the walls of the drawing room so as to make it look attractive and pretty. But when Skinflint saw it he nearly had a fit.

"I don't dislike the pattern or the color," he gasped, purple with rage, "but I do object to the way you have put it on. You extravagant woman!" he cried, "how dare you paste it on?"

"Why, how else could I have done it?" meekly answered his wife.

"How else?" he retorted. "You should have tacked it on. You don't suppose we shall always live in this house, do you?"—London Tit-Bits.

THE HARVARD REGIMENT.

The tramp of a thousand men marching in the Harvard regiment answered many a challenge. Have college students, more and more favored by circumstance, become so lost in seeking personal comfort and private success that they have no time for unselfish service? The regiment's regular ranks and its well-ordered marching told of many hours devoted to drill in the midst of busy weeks in winter and spring. From the day of their enlistment to their final review the men have worked conscientiously to serve not themselves but their country. Has Harvard's tradition of restraint, which makes other colleges wonder sometimes at what they call a Harvard indifference, not only curbed but also broken the university spirit? The regiment silenced such questions. Its manly bearing met the test of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood's searching eye; the men's vigorous step and resolute faces gave weakness the lie and scouted indifference. —Boston Transcript.
