Candidates' Announcements.

FOR ASSOCIATE JUDGE.
I hereby announce myself to the voters of Fulton County as a candidate on the Non-Partisan ticket for the office of Associate Judge, subject to the decision of the voters at the Primary Election to be held Tuesday, September 18, 1917.

I pledge myself that if nominated and elected, I will discharge the duties of the office, fearlessly, honestly, and to the very best of my ability. I respectfully solicit the vote and influence of all who deem me worthy of support.

DAVID A. BLACK,

HOW FAR IS KNOBSVILLE?

Not So Far That the Statements of Its Residents Cannot be Verified.

Rather an interesting case has been developed in Knobsville.
Being so near by, it is well worth publishing here. The statement is sincere—the proof convincing:

J. C. Fore, Knobsville, Pa., says: "A severe cold settled in the small of my back. My kidneys troubled me badly at times and the kidney secretions were painful in passage. I was lame and stiff from rheumatic twinges and my limbs and wrists became swollen. I got no relief from the doctor's treatments. Finally, I used Doan's Kidney Pills and after one box, I felt relief. Whenever I take cold now and am troubled by my kidney, Doan's Kidney Pills always help me."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy —get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Fore uses.

stresser, of Saxton, received word that he had taken unto himself a wife, the happy event having taken place on the 10th. The fair-lady was a Miss Bradley of Sax-ton.

CLEAR RIDGE.

"In March the winter's last wild throes are seen, With days of sunlight coming in between,
A strange commingling blast of heat and cold, And howling winds that sweep that barren wold The bleakest month of all the vi-cined year,
But at its close, the bare brown hills appear."

Lloyd Fleming was a County Seat visitor Monday.

John Z. Sipes is having a sale.

THOMPSON.

William Souders has sold his farm on Timber Ridge (the Isaac Souders farm) to Howard Barnhart. Then William Souders purchased from Ira Barnhart the latter's half-interest in the Otho Barnhart farm, which is now owned by William Souders and Koss Barnhart, and they are both going to move onto the farm very soon.

Thomas Wink has bought the J. W. Powers farm near Oakdale schoolhouse, and is moving upon it. J. W. Powers is moving bi-family to Petersburg, W. Va., and is going to carry on blacksmithing at that place.

Russell Peck, son of Candidate for Associate-Judge E. L. Peck, was married on the 8th of March to Miss Providence Cosner, of Petersburg, W. Va., by Justice of the Peace Jacob A. Powell. The "boys" furnished some excellent music for the benefit of the bride and groom on Saturday evening and on Monday evening.

James Shives who owns the Dolly Graves farm had the misfortune to get badly kicked on one of his knees by one of his horses a few days ago. Mrs.
Shives has been on the sick list for quite awhile. Her many friends hope for a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Bethuel Powell are very proud of a fine big boy that recently came to stay in their home.

Measles seem to be taking a fresh start. Millard Stoner has them now.

Card of Thanks.

William Paylor and Mr. and Mrs. Emer S. Hann desire—through the columns of the NEWS to extend thanks to the friends and neighbors who rendered help and sympathy during the sickness and death of the beloved wife and mother, Mrs. Attie Paylor.

J. Karl Baker, of Baker Bros., Bedford, Pa., is registered at the Fulton House. Mr. Baker is in town in the interest of his people who have extensive real estate holdings in Fulton, Bedford and Allegheny counties, Washington, D. C., Norfolk, Va., Palm Beach County, Fla., Cleveland, O., and elsewhere in the West. We understand that one of the boys will spend the summer in Canada and the other in Alaska.

Rev. George Batzell, of Tatesville, Bedford County, is holding a revival meeting at the Brethren church on Pleasant Ridge, and will be likely to continue it ten days or two weeks. All are cordially invited to attend these meetings.

There is an opening in the NEWS office just now for a bright boy or girl to enter to learn the printing business. Permanent employment. Applicant should not be under 16 years of age.

S. Murray Pollock, of Washington, Pa., arrived in the Cove yesterday and will remain until after his sister, Mrs. Morrow Kendall's sale.

Novel Use of Handkerchiefs.

With the Jacobite revolution of 1745 in England Pelham, bethinking himself of an old device which had served the government so well in the most critical period of Anne's reign, caused to be printed on several thousand handkerchiefs portraits of those of the young pretender's adherents who had escaped and were in hiding. These portraits, sent all over the country and hung upon every blank wall, led to the capture and execution of many fugitives.

READJUSTMENT
By ALICE WEBBER.

Ann Morgan was trying to get hold of herself and finding it the hardest proposition she had ever attempted.
It was a struggle to reach out for common sense after the blind unreason of affection, and there was nothing to help except the newness of the life about her. It was as if she had gone back to the very beginning of things. In a way she had. She and her father were living outside a French village in a weather-beaten house across the border from New Brunswick, with a cook stove, two beds, a rough table and a couple of chairs. Her father was like a boy in this environment and did the cooking, while Ann made a determined effort to find a glimmer of light, otherwise called sanity, in the darkness that encompassed her.

When she reached St. Attgan, during the early days of June, she had been too indifferent to care for the quaintness of her surroundings. Her father had been alarmed about her health, and the family physician, unable to discover cause for her illness, had sent her where he knew the air was sweet and pure.

As she sat listless under the shadow of a sugar maple, Ann thought of his words. She had honestly tried to bring herself into touch with the life about her, but health was as yet too far away for her to have any other feeling than one of indifference.

Her life was primitive in the extreme. She was miles from a railroad and the mail came but once a month. She and her father were dependent upon a neighbor, Mr. Chandler, for that and he had brought it for the first time that evening. There were no letters. She had expected none, but the longing of the spirit cannot always be subjected to pride and there were times, like the present, when it seemed as if nothing mattered but the sight of the man she cared for. And she had given him up. The cruelty of it was that she had learned she was but the means to an end, had stumbled upon the knowledge within a week of her wedding day.

In the Corcoran art gallery she had paused beside the entrance to one of the rooms when the murmur of voices caught and held her attention.

"No, I do not love her," she heard.
"Fortunately I am interested in no other woman, else it might go hard with me. Her father is wealthy. She is rich in her own right and I will be able to gratify ambitions hitherto merely dreams." As he finished speaking two men came face to face with Ann and she looked directly into the eyes of the man she had expected to marry.

Pride came to her aid in her effort to adjust herself to her new outlook upon life, but in the end she was bundled off to St. Attgan, and here she met Mr. Chandler, with whom her father found congenial companionship. He had a way of watching her that was disconcerting, and this, in time, made her conscious she was not good to look at. She became oversensitive about her lack of color and one day rummaged through her trunk for her vanity box and was chagrined not to find it.

This incident marked a change. Imperceptibly the outdoor life was making a difference in Ann. She took long walks and would stroll off for hours alone. One evening she did not return. Chandler, with her father, found her on the edge of the river with a twisted ankle and dislocated shoulder. She had slipped from the rock where she had been fishing, she told them later.

When they discovered her Mr. Morgan promptly went to pieces. She was all he had, and if anything happened to her he was of no more use than a baby. Mr. Chandler carried her home with about as much feeling as if she had been a bundle of rags, she thought, in the moment when a glimmer of reason made her try to recover her dignity and slip from his arms. It was then he gave her a little shake and told her to lie still.

Just the merest glunge, but it sent needles of flame all over her, and she knew nothing more until she was on her bed with the two bending over her.

Between them she was made comfortable; yet she was not comfortable in her mind. She could not understand the odd look in Mr. Chandler's eyes when she had first opened her own, and now, after a month of inactivity, she was still puzzled. She had not seen it since. He gave her understanding and pleasant friendship, but that was all.

And she had begun to care. The thought troubled her. Was she lacking in constancy that she could so soon forget one man for another? But as she looked back upon those feverish days, she told herself she had been in love with love. That, she knew, was not the real thing, and she had discovered this, here in the midst of nature—had learned to distinguish between the false and the true, and with all her heart she prayed that the thing that makes life perfect would come to her.

And it came unexpectedly, as so often happens. She was alone, trying for the first time to walk about the house, clinging to whatever offered support, when she heard footsteps. Turning hastily, she saw Mr. Chandler standing in the doorway with arms outstretched. He said no word and she did not speak, but with shining eyes and heightened color she limped straight into them and hid her face against his coat sleeve.

Young women dependent upon their own efforts should give a thought to tomorrow as well as today. The girl alone hasn't anyone to look after her interests, so she must guard them herself. She should keep track of how she spends her salary, and should also join a good benevolent society, so that in the event of an illness or an accident she will be assured of proper medical treatment, and at the same time receive the benefit all such organizations provide.

DELCO-LIGHT
ELECTRICITY FOR EVERY FARM
DELCO-LIGHT IN THE CHURCH DELCO-LIGHT ON THE FARM
DELCO-LIGHT IN THE RURAL STORE DELCO-LIGHT MAKES ELECTRICITY UNIVERSAL
For the first time electric light and power are available to anyone—anywhere.
Heretofore, the benefits of electricity have been confined to those who live in the larger towns and cities.
Now Delco-Light makes electric current universally available.
Delco-Light is today furnishing thousands of farm-houses with brilliant, convenient, safe and economical light.
It is furnishing power to operate pumps, washing machines, churns, cream separators, milking machines, vacuum cleaners, etc.
It is lighting country churches, stores and public halls.
It is furnishing light and power to summer homes and camps, to houseboats and yachts, etc.
It is lighting rural railway stations and construction camps.
It is lighting the camps of United States troops on the Mexican border and is disclosing heretofore undreamed-of beauties in the depths of Mammoth Cave, Kentucky.
Altogether, over 15,000 Delco-Light plants are in operation, and Delco-Light offices are to be found in almost every part of the world.
Delco-Light is a complete electric plant—the engine and dynamo in one compact unit combined with a set of ap-pecially built and wonderfully efficient batteries for the storing of current. The plant is so simple a child can care for it, and so economical that it actually pays for itself in time and labor saved. It operates on either kerosene, gasoline or natural gas.
