The Inauguration Date.

Congress at its coming session will be asked to change the date of the inauguration of the President from March 4 to the last Thursday of April. The argument for the change is that of the danger of exposure of the President and other public men on a date as early as March 4, when the weather at Washington is so frequently bad.

The whole schedule of election inauguration and meeting of Congress is out of date and fitted to the colonial age before the days of railroads. In those times when it took so long for news to travel, and public men to get to the capital, it seemed natural to have an inauguration four months after election. Moving the date ahead would simply lengthen this undesirable extended period.

Our public men ought not to go through with long and formal exercise under a cold March wind in Washington's climate. There are two ways to remedy that. One would be to hold these exercises indoors. But it goes contrary to Washington's notion of an inauguration, that it is not so much for giving a new administration an impressive send off, as to supply a public holiday and big out-door spectacle and draw business to Washington.

It would be a logical plan to hold election in September and inaugurate in November or to elect in March and inaugurate in May. But such plans would make a big change in our political customs and the idea of an indoor inauguration seems more practical. Let Washington enjoy all the parades and inaugural balls it can get our President to arrange. But let it not expect a lot of elderly men to stand bare headed for long ceremonies in weather that is practically winter.

Waste of food.

The story of the experience of the Gerard party in traveling from Berlin gives an interesting side light about food. They tell how after the scanty food conditions in Germany an interesting side light about food. They tell how after the scanty food conditions in Germany a comparatively free use of food in Paris seemed perfect waste. Yet no doubt after the party got home, the use of food in this country seemed far more wasteful than in France. But few people take much pains to conserve such parts of the food supply as come under their own control.

The waste of good food in hotels and restaurants, when prices are so high and so many people are suffering. People order lavish table d'hote dinners, they demand a dozen dishes and only taste a little of each and all the rest goes to the garbage pail, or is supposed to. Perhaps the cheap restaurants get more than the public realizes.

Of late years the European plan of operating dining rooms has become general. It tends greatly to reduce the amount of food consumed. Once people realize that they have to pay for what they eat, they confine their orders to what they really want. It is the only sound basis for operating an eating room business. Most hotel proprietors would be glad to put it in. It is in quite general use now in city hotels and on railroad trains. It is not yet popular in boarding houses and resort hotels, where a course dinner on the wasteful American plan somehow seems more liberal.

In private homes the same spirit prevails to a large extent. We all help ourselves to a mammoth potato when half of it would give all that anybody wants. It is our national temperament, inherited from the day when foods were plentiful and a drug on the market. The public pays for it all, and it makes prices needlessly high.

RAILROAD SITUATION IS NOW LARGELY UP TO CONGRESS

Must Share Responsibility In Future Development.

ROBERT S. LOVETT'S VIEWS

"Unification of Regulation Is Essential." A Complete, Harmonious, Consistent and Related System Needed—Federal Incorporation of Railroads by General Law Favored.

Washington, March 26.—Responsibility for the railway development of the country, for providing necessary transportation facilities to care for the growing business and population of the country, now rests largely with congress and not entirely with the railroad managers. This was the statement of Judge Robert S. Lovett, chairman of the executive committee of the Union Pacific system, to the Newlands joint congressional committee when that body resumed its inquiry into the subject of railroad regulation this week.

In making this statement of the changed conditions of the railroad situation Judge Lovett undoubtedly had in mind the decision of the supreme court on the Adamson law, handed down last week, which establishes the right of the federal government to fix railroad wages and to prevent strikes. This decision is regarded by railroad men and lawyers as marking an epoch in the development of transportation in the United States.

"We have our share of responsibility," said Judge Lovett, "but it rests primarily on congress. When the government regulates the rates and the financial administration of the railroads, the borrowing of money and the issuance of securities it relieves the railroad officers of the responsibility of providing and developing transportation systems, except within the limits of the revenue that can be realized from such rates and under such restrictions. "For a country such as ours, for a people situated as we are, to blunder along with a series of unrelated, inconsistent, conflicting statutes enacted by different states without relation to each other, instead of providing a complete and carefully studied and prepared system of regulation for a business that is so vital to the life of the nation, is worse than folly."

He summed up the present problems and difficulties of the railroads as follows:
First.—The multiplicity of regulations by the several states with respect to the issue of securities, involving delays and conflicting state policies generally dangerous and possibly disastrous.

Second.—The state regulation of rates in such a manner as to unduly reduce revenues, to discriminate in favor of localities and shippers within its own borders as against localities and shippers in other states and to disturb and disarrange the structure of interstate rates.

Third.—The inability of the Interstate Commerce Commission, wherever the commissioners may be, to perform the vast duties devolving upon it under existing laws, resulting in delay—which should never occur in commercial matters—and compelling the commissioners to accept the conclusions of their employees as final in deciding matters of great importance to the commercial and railroad interests of the country.

Fourth.—The practical legality that has been accorded conspiracies to tie up and suspend the operation of the railroads of the country by strikes and violence and the absence of any law to compel the settlement of such disputes by arbitration or other judicial means, as all other issues between citizens in civilized states are to be settled.

Fifth.—The phenomenal increase in the taxation of railroads in recent years.

Sixth.—The cumulative effect of these conditions upon the investing public, to which railroad companies must look for the capital necessary to continue development.

"We believe that the unification of regulation is essential," said Judge Lovett, "and that with the rapid increase of state commissions in recent years congress will in time be compelled to exercise its power in the premises. To unify regulation there should be a complete, harmonious, consistent and related system. We believe the best, if not the only practical plan, is the federal incorporation of railroads by general law, which will make incorporation thereafter compulsory, thus imposing on all railroad companies throughout the United States the same corporate powers and restrictions with respect to their financial operations and the same duties

Well, last week we told you we had agency for Dr. Hess's Stock Remedies—Disinfectants, Pan-a-acea for chickens, and the rest of his remedies. We have heard of people who were not getting an egg a day, then after using a package or more, are now getting 8, 10, and 12 eggs a day. Isn't this paying? And hogs, sheep, and cattle—equally good results.

Shoes Shoes

As you all know, shoes are advancing in price but we are glad to say that we are still able to sell a great many shoes at old prices. As long as we have them at the old prices we will sell this way, so we think it will be to your advantage to buy early.

Wire and Wire Nails.

We bought a carload of wire and wire nails last October which did not reach us until the 10th of January; and it was lucky that we did buy early, for the wholesale price has made several advances since that time. We are now offering wire fence to you at prices we would have to pay, if we were buying now. As long as this lot lasts you will get it at January prices.

and conditions to the public and the government, so that every investor will know precisely what every railroad corporation may and may not lawfully do."
Judge Lovett contended that the solution of these problems and difficulties rested with congress. He told the committee that under the constitution the authority of the federal government is paramount, that congress has the power to legislate for a centralized control of railroads under federal charters and that it only remains for that body to exercise that power.
Dale Garland moved from the Cyrus Wagner farm in Todd township yesterday to the Patterson Brothers farm. His brothers Floyd and Bruce, near Mercersburg came over to help him.
