The Inaugeuration Date.

Congress at its coming session will be asked to change the date of the inauguration of the President from March 4 to the last Thursday of April. The argument for the change is that of the danger of exposure of the President and other public men on a date as early as March 4, when the weather at Washington is so frequently bad.

The whole schedule of election inauguration and meeting of the capital, it seemed natural to o'clock. have an inauguration four months after election. Moving the date ahead would simply lengthen this undesirable extended period.

go through with long and formal of turniture, carpets, stoves, exercise under a cold March wind dishes, &c. Sale begins at 10 in Washington's climate. There o'clock, when terms will be made are two ways to remedy that. One would be to hold these exercises indoors. But it goes contrary to Washington's notion of an inauguration, that it is not so much for giving a new administration an impressive send off, as to supply a public holiday and big out-door spectacle and draw business to Washington.

It would be a logical plan to hold election in September and inaugurate in November or to elect in March and inaugurate in May. But such plans would make a big change in our political customs and the idea of an indoor inauguration seems more practial. Let Washington enjoy all the parades and inaugural balls it can get our 'President to arrange. But let it not expect a lot of elderly men to stand bare headed for long ceremonies in weather that is practically winter.

Waste of Food.

The story of the experience of the Gerard party in traveling from Berlin gives an interesting side light about food. They tell how after the scanty food conditions in Germany the comparatively free use of food in Paris seemed perfect waste. Yet no doubt after the party got home, the use of food in this country seemed far more wasteful than in France. But few people take much pains to conserve such parts of the food supply as come under their own control.

The waste of good food in ho tels and restaurants, when prices are so high and so many people are suffering. People order lavish table d'hote dinners, they demand a dozen dishes and only taste a little of each and all the rest goes to the garbage pail, or is supposed to. Perhaps the cheap restaurants get more than the public realizes.

Of late years the European plan of operating dining rooms has become general. It tends greatly to reduce the amount of food consumed. Once people realize that they have to pay for what they eat, they confine their orders to what they really want. It is the only sound basis for operating an eating room business. Most hotel proprietors would be glad to put it in. It is in quite general use now in city hotels and on railroad trains. It is not yet popular in boarding houses and resort hotels, where a course dinner on the wasteful American plan somehow seems more liberal

In private homes the same spirit prevails to a large extent. We all help ourselves to a mammoth potato when half of it would give all that anybody wants. It is our national temperament, inherited from the day when foods were plentiful and a drug on the market. The public pays for it all, and it makes prices needlessly high.
