It cost Paul Sellers just $16.40 to exceed the speed limit and run his car in Chambersburg last Saturday with the muffler cut-out open. Isn't our Borough treasury getting a little low?

Many localities in foreign countries are "speeding up" on the farms by using tractors night and day—as many as three 8-hour shifts of workmen taking turns at keeping the farm machinery going.

Don't forget that M. M. Bender on East Market Street still has on hand extension tables, bedsteads, springs—in fact you can get from him any kind of furniture you may need and save money.

Mrs. Catherine Connelly called at the NEWS office Tuesday morning and gave us the money to send the paper to a new subscriber. Mrs. Connelly says outworn are "playing hob" with the corn over in her neighborhood.

Perhaps the 50 to 100 per cent. rise in cost of fire insurance will help greatly in reducing the use of fireworks on The Fourth of July. Let a "safe and sane" Fourth be had, no matter what the source of influence that secured it.

Horse manure is a favorite breeding place for flies. Common acid phosphate used liberally is said to kill the eggs, and we all know that the phosphate preserves and increases the good qualities of the manure and is, therefore, not lost.

Lewis Clark, who lives at Barre, Mass., in sending the money to advance his subscription, says he just couldn't do without the NEWS. It's just like getting a letter from home every week. He has now been away from his Fulton county home seven years.

Miss Samantha Mellott, daughter of Hon. and Mrs. Geo. B. Mellott, of McConnellsburg is one of nine girls who went to work in the offices of the Cumberland Valley railroad company on Tuesday morning of last week. These girls are being trained to take the places of men who will go into service in the army or elsewhere.

W. Theo. Wittman, our farmers institute poultry expert, says that turkeys hatched and raised by chicken mothers will die out in two or three generations, or will amount to little. He says that in the long run, the turkeys that are hatched by turkey hens and never fed from the day they are hatched, are the foundation of flocks that do not weaken and die out.

Walter Reid Sloan the efficient manager for the Western Union Telegraph Company, in this county, spent the time from Friday morning until Monday evening in Bedford superintending the change of location of the Bedford office, which now occupies part of the old stone building opposite the Bedford house, used as headquarters for General Washington while in that town during the Whiskey Insurrection in Western Pennsylvania.

We would not feel that we had "done our bit" if we fail to keep on calling attention to the possibilities of a big demand for dried fruits and vegetables this fall. A truck load of fruit can be reduced in weight by drying so that it can be taken to market in a buggy. When the warmed air is made to circulate properly through the wooden driers we recently described, fruit may be cured in from two and one-half to five hours—dependent upon the kind of fruit or vegetable.

Beans As Cheap Food Crops.

Beans are highly nutritious and palatable, and they keep well. Naturally the demand for them increases during a time of war. The indications are that the farmer can now afford to grow an increased area of beans and that the home gardener will do well to include them in his planting.

While beans produce quite well on soil low in fertility, especially in nitrogen, they respond as profitable as grain crops to good soil. Generally speaking, soils which will produce good crops of corn will also produce good crops of beans.

Beans should be sown in rows twenty-eight to thirty inches apart, one and one-half to two inches deep and three to five inches apart in the row. It planting is done on a large scale, a special bean planter is used. Many growers use an ordinary grain drill, stopping certain tubes so that the rows will be the desired distance apart. A corn planter provided with special bean plates may be used. For a small area any ordinary grain seeder is satisfactory.

There are four distinct types of field beans: Pea, Medium, Marrow and Kidney. The Navy bean, which is of the pea type, is the most popular as well as the easiest variety to grow. It is hardy, early-maturing, productive and will do fairly well on poor soil.

The Red Kidney and Yellow Eye are popular on the market, but do best on soil high in fertility. This year, on account of the great scarcity of seed it may be desirable to plant any good variety that is available.

Field beans are especially adapted to the home garden, not only because they are comparatively easy to grow, but also because they yield well and adapt themselves to drying. Dried beans can be stored for winter use.

Since beans are very susceptible to frost it is not best to plant until danger of frost is past and conditions are favorable for quick germination and rapid growth. In general, do not plant much earlier than May 20 nor later than July 1.

Write to the agricultural extension department, Pennsylvania State College, for methods of drying these and other vegetables and fruits.

Farmers Live Longest.

Bookkeepers and office assistants die youngest and farmers die oldest according to a bureau of labor statistics report just issued, based on an analysis of deaths recorded by a life insurance company between 1911 and 1913. The average age of death among bookkeepers and clerks was 36 years and among farmers 58 years.

Buckwheat Wanted.

Among the things called for by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture to help offset a possible food shortage is buckwheat. This is a Fulton county staple and there is plenty of time to sow it.

MICHELIN

Notice the curve in which Michelin Tubes Naturally Hang

INSTEAD of being simply a piece of straight tubing cemented at the ends, the Michelin Tube is formed on a circular mandrel in the shape of the inside of the casing. Thus when inflated it is neither stretched on its outside nor compressed on its inside. This perfect fit gives the Michelin Tube greater durability and practically eliminates danger of pinching the tube.
