which save them for all time. Unless he has traced a matter to the edrock of certainty, a report with Mr. Sonneck is never complete, and a call

He went as far as the mouth of the Patuxent and was not permitted to return lest the in-tended attack on Baltimore should be dis-closed. He was therefore brought up the bay to the mouth of the Patapsco, where the flag vessel was kept under the guns of a frigate, and he was compelled to wit-ness the bombardment of Fort McHenry.

He watched the flag of the fort through the whole day with an anxiety that can better be felt than de-scribed, until the night prevented him from seeing it. In the night he watched the bomb shells and at early dawn his eye was again greeted by the proudly waving flag of his country.

flag of his country. The tune is that of "Anacreon of Heaven," originally an English club song, popular among the younger set of Baltimore at the time Key wrote the stanzas,

"Hall Columbia" is a pure product of American soll in regard to both words and music, and was written in 1798 by Joseph Hopkins, a prominent jurist, who lived from 1770 to 1842. The poet himself explains the circumstances which led to the writing of the words as follows:

"Hail Columbia" was written in the was thought to be inevitable. Congress was thought to be inevitable. Congress was then in session in Philadelphia, de-bating upon that important subject, and bating upon that important subject, and acts of hostility had actually taken place. The contest between England and France was raging, and the people of the United States were divided into parties for one side or the other, some thinking that pol-icy and duty required us to espouse the cause of republican France, as she was called, while others were for connecting themselves with England. . . The theater was then open in our city. A young man belonging to it, whose talent was high as a singer, was about to take a benefit. I had known him when he was at school on the bookcase at his side, and all heavily interleaved with penned and penciled annotations which bring evi-dence down to the very minute. Mr.

to Lowell Mason. Mr. Mason, with whom I was on terms of friendship, one day turned them over to me, knowing that I was in the habit of reading German works, saying, "Here, I can't read these, but they contain good music, which I should be glad to use. Turn over the leaves and if you find anything particu-larly good, give me a translation or imi-tation of it, or write a wholly original song-anything, so I can use it." Accordingly, one leisure afternoon, I was looking over the books and fell in with the tune of "God Save the King," and at once took up my pen and wrote the plece in question. It was struck out at a sitting without the slightest idea that it would ever attain the popularity it has It would ever attain the popularity it has since enjoyed. The first time it was pub-licly sung was at a children's celebration of American Independence at the Park Street church, Boston, I think, July 4, 1832. If I had anticipated the future of it, doubtless I would have taken more pains with it. Such as it is, I am glad to have contributed this mite to the cause of American freedon

Mr. Sonneck had this to say regarding the use of an English tune to the words of "America :"

"The main objection raised against 'America' has been the union of the words with that foreign air of cosmopolitan usage, 'God Save the King.' Yet there is this difference, which should never be overlooked: If the Danes or the Prussians use 'God Save the King' they have deliberately borrowed it from the British. Not so with us. 'God Save the King' was, before 1776, as much our national anthem as that of the motherland. Being a British air, it belonged to the British colonists just as much as it did to the on him as he was, namely their own Messiah and the Savior of men. The change this would produce in their lives and in their attitude towards him is very obvious. Repentance means the same in your case or mine. It means believing on Jesus Christ as he is presented in the Bible, and conforming our lives there-

(2) The Second Step is Remission of Sins, "that your sins may be blotted out," the sins even of these murderers of his Son whom he had raised from the dead, if now they would believe on and accept him as such. And this same promise holds good for us, no matter what our guilt is. "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow, though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." "Blotted out" is the translation of a Greek word which means so much! Xenophon and Demosthenes use it in the sense of "expunging" a thing. Aeschylus employs it in the sense of "extinguish," Herodotus to "plaster over" an object, and others to wipe out as with a sponge or a cloth. Judicially considered in the sight of God, there is no more trace of your sins the moment they are covered by the blood of Christ. And that is the moment when in repentance you receive him as your Savior by faith. That is what Peter means in his first epistle, where he speaks of the "abundant mercy" of God.

(3) The Third Step is Refreshing, "that so there may come seasons of refreshing from the presence of the Lord." It suggests agriculture, There is first the plowing up of the ground and sowing of the seed, that is repentance. Then there is germination and the coming up of the blade, then the car then the full earn in the car

Almost everyone knows how the stirring words rushed from the heart and hand of Francis Scott Key on the early morning of September 14, 1814, when the English were bombarding Fort Mc-Henry. Fewer, perhaps, know that he jotted down the first rough draft of the song on the back of a letter as he sailed up the Patapsco on one of the enemy's vessels that early morning, when he saw "through the dawn's early light that our flag was still there." He completed this draft upon the Sonneck found a much more difficult

Wading through an immense amount of historical data made a clean copy of those jottings, and some controversy upon the subject, he has brought out facts which he would only put forth after the most careful process of sifting and deduction.

On the morning after his arrival in "Until recently," he said, "the muslcal origin of 'Hall Columbia' was as Baltimore Key took his poem to his friend and relative, Judge Joseph Hopobscure as its literary history was per Nicholson, for his critical opinion clear." song, it is still a national air and second only to 'Dixle' in patriotic popularity. For 150 years 'Yankee Doodle' has appealed to our people, and the tune shows no sign of passing into oblivion.

Many words have been spent in discussing the origin of the title of this song, and at least sixteen separate and distinct derivations of the words have been seriously set before the public. The earliest dated reference to the tune appears in the first American ballad opera, "The Disappointment." Philadelphia, 1767. It was played in America as early as 1768, for in the Journal of Transactions in Boston, September 28, 1768, we read: "The fieet was brought to anchor near Castle William; that evening there was throwing of skyrockets, and those passing in boats observed great rejoicing and that the Yankee Doodle song was the capital plece in the band of music."

The earliest appearance in print of 'Yankee Doodle" in Europe has been traced to James Aird's "A Selection of Scotch, English, Irish and Foreign Airs," published in Glasgow about 1780, Mr. Sonneck asserts that "Yankee Doodle" did not appear in print in America until Benjamin Carr's "Federal Overture," a medley of patriotic songs, including "Yankee Doodle," and composed in 1794, was published, "Adapted for the planoforte," by B. Carr, New York, in January, 1795. Since then some interesting and now rare renderings of the piece have been papers, it spread from Baltimore to tains no mysterious history. It was issued.

that is the blotting out of sin, and the entrance of the sinner upon a new life. But following this there must be the refreshing showers of rain to keep everything green, and to bring the life to its complete and beautiful fruition.

And so in the spiritual life, God who begins the good work in us continues it. After we are saved and forgiven. he does not leave us to ourselves, but provides for our growth in grace and in his knowledge. Times of refreshing are sent from his presence. On the day of Pentecost such a refreshing came when the disciples were filled with the Holy Spirit. Later on they were filled again. The same spirit came on them of Samaria, upon Cornelius and his household, and upon the young Christians at Ephesus. The history of true revivals in all the centuries has been a fulfiliment of this promise. They have been times of refreshing to men's souls. Every sincere Christian of long experience can look back over the years and count the times when God has seemed to open the windows of heaven to him and poured out blessings on his soul. It is for such a time of refreshing we plend every time we sing that familiar verse,

Come, Holy Spirit, heavenly dove, With all thy quickening powers; Kindle a flame of sacred love In these cold hearts of ours, Oh, for such a time of refreshing to come now in the heart of every Christian thus addressed! What treasure on earth is comparable with such a fresh breath from heaven!

(4) Finally, There is Reward, "that he may send the Christ who hath been appointed for you, even Jesus." The coming of Jesu Again is a certain event of the future, and how near it is none of us can know. To the wicked and unbelieving it is a time of wrath and of fear, but to them who have come to God through him, it is the time of their salvation in the fullest sense: It is the time of resurrection if they have died, and dead or alive when he comes, it is the time of their glorification with him. It is the time of their reward, for then will he set up his kingdom. This is what the apostle refers to when he speaks of "the times of restoration of all things whereof God spake by the mouth of his holy prophets."

If you have repented, if you have turned to God in Christ, then this is the prospect of hope and joy that is before you. Is it not worth while walting for, and serving for, and suffering for if need be, till the day dawn and the day star arise in your heart? Oh, who that has never done so will be persuaded today, thus to turn to God? Who will be moved by the tender pleadings of his mercy towards us in Jesus Christ?
