Let Them Alone.

In a view of the German outrages of which wild Indians would be ashamed, it might be well to refuse to buy from the German peddlers that are said to be traveling over the country. It has been alleged that poisoned toilet articles are being sold by them. In one instance germs of leprosy are said to have been found on court plaster, on others the germs of lockjaw. Ground glass on bandages intended for the Red Cross was found in one instance not connected with peddling. But better let strange peddlers of toilet articles alone.

That Bad Back.

Do you have a dull, steady ache in the small of the back—sharp, stabbing twinges stopping or lifting—distressing urinary disorders? For bad back and weakened kidneys McConnellsburg residents recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read this McConnellsburg man's statement.

L. A. Youse, retired butcher, McConnellsburg, says: "About three years ago my back ached badly and it hurt me to stoop or lift. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Trout's Drug Store, soon gave me relief. I gladly endorse them."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Youse uses Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

WEST DUBLIN.

Martin Laidig and family attended a picnic at Newbery in Though Creek Valley, Huntingdon county on Saturday. William Sprowl, of Wells Tannery and Albert Edwards, formerly of Hiram now of Dudley, helped to furnish music for the picnic.

A number of our people attended Campmeeting at Walnut Grove last Sunday, as a consequence the Sunday School at Fairview and Laidig were small.

Ross King and wife of Hustontown, and Lucy Wittor of Hollidaysburg spent a little while in this vicinity last Sunday afternoon.

The Fairview Sunday School intend to picnic in the grove near Fairview church on Saturday August 18th. There is a program of addresses and music for both forenoon and afternoon. Let the time be made as pleasant as possible for both young and old.

Van Bivens and son, of Knobsville passed through this vicinity last Sunday on their way to Kearney where they have employment at the coke ovens.

Modifying the Army Regulations.

The War Department's modification of the regulations regarding the physical requirements of the men for the new army is sensible and reasonable. It is perfectly obvious that many men who are fit for service have been rejected because of minor defects which do not in the least impair their fighting ability. Hence we have some reductions as to height and weight, and also changes concerning the condition of the teeth. This last feature is a good thing, because those who are going in the army expect to be called upon to fight the Germans, not eat them.

General Crowder sends a letter to the Governors in which he makes it clear that too many persons are claiming exemption on the ground of having dependents. He says that the controlling necessity is to raise an army, and that any such percentage of exemptions as reports of claims would indicate would nullify the law and prevent the raising of the needed army. He feels that there are many hundreds of unfounded claims in the totals that have been published and he calls upon the local boards not to consider claims that are not absolutely necessary.

This is the common sense view. It is only fair to say that the newness of the business had handicapped many of the local boards, and that as the law is more clearly defined there will be a tightening of the lines, and as the examinations proceed there will be less difficulty in obtaining the number and the character of the men required.

Drainage Wealth.

Scientists tell us that a few thousands, a few million or a few billion years ago—details are of no importance—the mouth of the Mississippi was at Cairo, Illinois and that all of the great alluvial plains stretching almost a thousand miles to the delta are the result of material carried down by the rivers and deposited as the current slackened. On the same basis a few million or billion years from now the delta of the Mississippi will be on the verge of Yucatan and the Gulf of Mexico will be a lake.

It is not contended here and now that the States of the upper Missouri and Mississippi, the Ohio, Allegheny and Youghieghen have any claim on the South because the latter has soil which was once their own. It is a fact which might not be made a basis for legal recovery.

But the fact that drainage canals are being dug through all of the delta country with results of a financial advantage means something. Land once worth a dollar an acre is now worth $140 after being drained, and the best of long staple cotton is being raised where once only mosquitoes lived. The South is waking up to a realization that it must do much of its own engineering. It is a pity that it thinks only of cotton. If there is anything in the laws of economics as applied, Mississippi should be richer than Pennsylvania and Louisiana ought to be able to buy Massachusetts at a summer resort.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Organization of Roman Army.

The Roman army was divided into legions, the number of which varied. Each was under six tribunes or "chief captians," who commanded by turns. The legion was subdivided into ten cohorts, the cohort three maniples, and the maniples into centuries. The century originally contained 100 men as the form implies, but subsequently from 50 to 100 men according to the strength of the legion.
