After Eight Years.

McConnellsburg Testimony Remains Unshaken. Time is the test of truth. Here is a McConnellsburg story that has stood the test of time. It is a story with a point which will come straight home to many of us.

Miss Susan Peightel, McConnellsburg, says: I was in poor health for some time and I believe that weak kidneys caused the trouble. I suffered greatly from nerve pains in my back, which often darted into my head. I often became dizzy and had chills. I was losing strength daily in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Trout's Drug Store, brought me quick relief. (Statement given November 5, 1907.)

Over Six Years Later, Miss Peightel said: "Whenever I need a backache or kidney medicine, I use Doan's Kidney Pills. They relieve me."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Peightel has twice publicly recommended. Foster Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Do They Never Stop to Think?

Do the German people never stop to think? They have been led to by their military despots from the start. They were told that Germany was forced into war to protect itself from its enemies. The fiction is kept up. They have never been permitted to learn the truth.

And yet they must be singularly dense if they are not beginning to catch a glimmer of the truth. Surely the United States did not go to war for the sake of aggression. Certainly country after country has not broken relations with Germany with any intention of seizing upon its territory. Even a "boche"—a wooden head—of the lowest degree of intelligence ought to be able to comprehend that.

What, then, is the matter? Why is it that Germany finds herself without friends? What is wrong? Do the German people never ask themselves these questions? When they do, and when they insist upon true answers, they will discover that they have been plunged into warfare, not for defensive purposes, but because of the wicked ambitions of their rulers to dominate not only Europe, but the United States and the world. They will realize that they have been made the tools of monsters of cruelty and of criminality. If, when they absorb the facts of the situation, they do not resent the deception and demand that an end be put to autocracy, they will indeed be hopeless. The sooner they can produce a government that can be trusted, the sooner will peace come to them and to all the rest of us.

CLEAN FOOD ESSENTIAL FOR HEALTH.

Little Talks on Health and Hygiene by Samuel G. Dixon, M. D., LL. D., Commissioner of Health.

Wild animals eat their food raw, either while fresh or after it has become tender with age. This latter habit is one of the weasels'. They kill quite liberally of their prey when the opportunity offers and then allow it almost to decay before they feed upon it. Primitive man hunted and devoured his food much like the lower animals.

Later in the history of man he learned to make fire and cook his food, and it is now quite evident from what we find in the Indian mounds that it became the custom, for instance, of the American Indians to have great clam bakes on the Atlantic Coast. Sometimes in these mounds we find bones of deer, showing that they had more than a kind of foodstuff.

As relics of a still later age, we find in the mounds various little implements that were evidently used for handling and serving the food.

This begins to approach conditions in the present state of civilization that we now find in the large centers of population. Thousands of people make their sole livelihood preparing food for the table and taking care of the dishes and the serving of the food, from the small boarding houses to the enormous hotels.

In these places the health of those thus employed has not had any police supervision and yet we have known that communicable diseases have been on the rapid increase and horrible diseases have been passed from one person to another until they have become a great menace to the health, happiness and efficiency of our people.

The State of Pennsylvania, fortunately, in 1915 succeeded in passing a law that requires those in charge of restaurants, boarding houses, hotels, etc., to look after the health of their people. The law handles it in this way, that it holds the proprietor of those places for employing people who have these dangerous diseases that can be communicated to their customers through the foodstuff itself, or through the dishes, forks, knives, spoons, etc. Cooks and waiters cannot, under our new law, pursue their occupations without satisfying those they propose to serve that they are clean from these diseases the law is trying to prevent being thus spread. The moment this new law was signed by the Governor, a large number of waiters left their places in the Pullman coaches on the railroad and from the great railroad restaurants, as well as from the large and active hotels.

This became well known and the newspapers and journals endeavored to spread this news that the people might wake up to what had existed and what the new law proposed to protect them from.

When the bill asking for this law was introduced in the General Assembly some of the great railroad companies that have large restaurants at their termini appreciated that it was a great sanitary measure and before the bill became a law they adopted its good points in the management of their great eating centers throughout the United States.

This law, like other new laws that mean to bring about a great change in public policies, has to be sanely enforced, and the old system of preparing food and washing of dishes in hotels and restaurants must not be too suddenly destroyed. The time, fortunately, is here when the public has become educated and the people are demanding that the spirit of this good law be carried out. Some hotels advertise on their letterhead paper that the law is enforced in their establishments.

As the great cities grow the ways of living change. There become fewer private homes and more places where people live collectively and depend upon central places for eating. Therefore this law is becoming more and more important in regard to these centers, that they may not spread dangerous, yes, deadly, disease through a community.
