Major Murphy Tells of Deeds of Bravery by Americans on Several Battle Fronts.

MANY GET SPECIAL HONORS

Vast Activities of the Organization Are Described-Field Service Now Has Forty Sections Actually on Duty on the French Front.

Paris.-Deeds of heroic courage by American Red Cross men on several battle fronts have just been described here in a statement by Maj. Grayson P. Murphy, American Red Cross commissioner for Europe. He also gives details of the vast and many-sided acand found seven Smiths there. Six tivities the organization has been cardenied owing anything and the seventh rying on, which now are being multiplied many times.

> Following out its previously nnnounced project, the commission has already established relief and rest stations for the troops at points where they must lie over while in transit from the base receiving camps to the training camps near the front. Owing to the demoralized condition of the French railways, troops are often obliged to spend between 48 and 72 hours in making a journey that could ordinarily be accomplished in 12 hours.

The cars in which they are transported are frequently small French freight cars, into which 30, more often 40, men are crowded. The result has been that cases of measles, mumps, diphtheria and on numerous occasions more serious diseases have broken out among the men. To provide against such an exigency, station dispensaries, each containing ten beds, a doctor and He was aboard the Queen Elizabeth, two nurses, have been opened. AJAX AND ACHILLES

Individual Prowess in This War Counts for as Much as It Did in Days of Ancient Greece.

Individual prowess counts for as much as it did in the days of ancient Greece, Waldemar Kaempffert writes the audience edged his way to the in McClure's. Names will stand out in the history of this war like those of Ajax and Achilles in the epic of Homer. Lieutenants Immelmann and Boelke on the German side have brought down nine and ten adversaries in mortal combat. Their exploits are tinged with a chivalric glamour which seems anything but modern.

When Boelke landed to aid an enemy whom he had wounded he was greeted with the comment: "Since it is Immelmann who beat me, I am satisfied." When the German replied that it was "only Boelke," the interchange of compliments seemed like a parley between Hector and Alax.

The analogy between Homer's battles and twentieth century aerial combats extends even to the vehicles used. What is a flying machine but the aucient war charlot soaring on wings? In many an encounter two man machines still battle for supremacy-one man an observer, the other a pilot. The observer is the fighting hero of old, wielding a machine gun instead of a sword the pilot his faithful charioteer. Carry the analogy still further and consider how much is at stake when battle plane meets battle plane. The fate of an ancient army depended on a prince in his war charlot; the fate of any army corps now hangs on the information gleaned by a victorious flier.
