Feed the Fighters! Win the War!!

Harvest the Crops - Save the Yields

On the battle fields of France and Flanders, the United States boys and the Canadian boys are fighting side by side to win for the World the freedom that Prus-sianism would destroy. While doing this they must be fed and every ounce of muscle that can be requisitioned must go into use to save this year's crop. A short harvest period requires the combined forces of the two countries in team work, such as the soldier boys in France and Flanders are demonstrating.

The Combined Fighters in France and Flanders and the Combined Harvesters in America WILL Bring the Allied Victory Hearer.

A reciprocal arrangement for the use of farm workers has been perfected between the Depart-ment of the Interior of Canada and the Departments of Labor and Agriculture of the United States, under which it is proposed to permit the harvesters that are now engaged in the wheat fields of Okla-boma, Kansas, Jowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota and Wisconsin to move over into Canada, with the privilege of later returning to the United States, when the crops in the United States have been conserved, and help to save the enormous crops in Canada which by that time will be ready for harvesting.

THREE MANAGERS WHO FAVOR PECULIAR PLAY.

Bill Donovan of the Yankees, Jack Barry of the world's champion Red Sox and Hugh Bezdek, the new manager of the Pirates, are frequent users of the squeeze play. In the first few games of the season the Red Sox conquered the Yankees twice by using this method of scoring. Since then Donovan has worked the squeeze play often and has won a number of close battles with it. Bezdek signals for the squeeze play nearly every time a runner reaches third with only one or none out.

statutes have been his song in the house of his pilgrimage. He pictures himself as a pilgrim and sojourner, in a strange land and far from home, but finding his solace and delight in the conception from that of most men. God's law to them is not the sweetener of life. On the contrary, life would do well enough if God could be left out of it. His law is the skeleton at the feast and to forget God is their dally pursuit. Some, however, advance from the place where God's law is their dread to the place where they observe it as their duty. We suspect this is the attitude of many Christians. Well, the Lord is very tender and of great mercy; he will not break the bruised reed nor quench the smoking flax. But how disappointed he must be! What husband would tolerate a wife who only engaged to "do her duty" in return for his love? We are supposed to live "to the prnise of the glory of his grace," as Ephesians tells us, and not merely "do our duty." We sing:

O Thou of God and man the Son! Thes will I cherish, Thes will I honor, Thee, my soul's glory, joy and crown,

The Psalmist would show us a more excellent way, in which dread and duty give place to delight and the statutes become songs. A few considerations will show the reasonableness wickedness. Daniel was cash First of all, God's laws are the expression of his lovely nature. Things are not right because God wills them, but God wills them because they are right. They express himself. The saintly Bishop Ninde of the Methodist church was once observed by a friend with a peculiarly lovely expression on his face. The friend asked what day in batting practice he was struck thoughts they were which were reflect in the short ribs by a ball coming at ed thus in the Bishop's face, "I was thinking of God," was the reply. The glory of this God is expressed in his statutes and if we keep them we shall he like him and the beauty of the Lord our God shall be upon us. Again, law is after all' not such a harsh thing. We should not desire a lawless country. Every creature finds liberty in obeying the law of its being and so shall we. A fish lives happily only so long as it stays in the water, with all its limitations, and we shall be happy only in the will of God, One has said, "The principles of mathematics determine beauty and the laws, of geometry are at the basis of music; but just as the artist transfigures the stern laws into picture and sonata, so in knowledge, love, patience and sacrifice the austere precepts of duty pass into that beauty of holiness of which all other beauty is only the shadow." The statutes have become songs.

Stealing third on a pitcher without the twirler delivering the ball was the odd stunt at a game between the Crescent Athletic club team of Brooklyn, N. Y., and an organization of colleginns this year.

The funny part of the play was that the baserunner probably didn't intend to steal right then at all. In the course of the pitcher's elaborate windup, the ball slipped through his fingers and bobbed over his shoulder, landing about fifteen feet behind landing about fifteen feet behind him.

The runner was off like a shot. The second baseman and the pitcher both went after the ball, the latter getting there first. The runner reached third long before the ball did. The pitcher's team-mates were slightly incensed over the

God's Rule Over All.

Once again, God's statutes are in agreement with all his laws, He who upon Sinal uttered his will toward men, sits upon the throne of the universe and issues his mandates to all things animate and inanimate. "The Lord hath prepared his throne in the heavens and his kingdom ruleth over all. Bless the Lord, we his angels, that excel in strength, that do his commandments, hearkening unto the voice of his word. Bless we the Lord, all ye hosts, ye ministers of his that do his pleasure." The angels not only do his commandments but hearken for the whispers of his pleasure. The starry armies of heaven are marshaled under his captaincy. Things in earth and waters under the earth receive the law at his mouth. Science recognizes more and more that not from many sources but from one must come the laws ruling in the sphere of physical things. Well, the statutes for a human life came from him who rules everywhere, and they must harmonize with his rule elsewhere. So, we are lifted to the blessed vision of the man who does the will of God as dwelling in such a pivotal place that all things work together for his good ! Just as a mother's love makes a service a delight which to others is a dread or a mere duty, so if we love God, his statutes will become songs.
