STYLE

"Style" as defined by this store is far from being an indefinite term used to give a seeming importance to empty generalisms.

On the contrary, "style" is a word that is very definite, meaning when applied to fashions garments that in line, in color, in draping, in trimming, have been "checked up" and verified as correctly and faultlessly following the "master samples" originally designed by those who create the "styles."

The fashion sections of our store are full of such masterly copies and adaptations of New York, Chicago and Paris Fashions.

The little fellow reached for a pencil and a piece of paper and got down to business, holding his pencil with all the preciseness of an old fashioned schoolmaster, and writing with the earnestness of his grandfather the late "Jim" Downes.
