"WHY KILL THE GOOSE ?"

A cartoon issued by the publicity department of the liquor traffickers is entitled, "Why Kill the Goose?" says Prof. John A. Nichols in the Union Signal. It represents a fat goose, labelled, "Internal Revenue," Its three eggs are very conspicuous, but an ax marked, "Prohibition," is in dangerous proximity to its neck. Well, there are many reasons why the goose should be killed. In the first place, the cost of feeding it is too great. What would you think of a farmer that kept a flock of geese at a cost ten times greater mer will yield about 20 bushels per than the amount realized from the eggs produced? If, when his attention had been called to the matter, he tried to defend his position by telling you how much he obtained from the sale of the eggs, and spoke of it as a profitable transaction, you would at once consider him a fit subject for some kind of mental treatment. For many years Uncle Sam has been that kind of farmer. But skillful mental treatment, in the form of scientific and economic facts, having been administered to him for some time, he is beginning to show signs of sanity, and we hope ere long this expensive and dangerous goose will no longer find pasture on Uncle Sam's farm.

PROHIBITION PROHIBITING. From The State, daily newspaper of Columbia, in dry South Carolina, comes this testimony : "For weeks the city has been thronged, especially at night, with workingmen, many of them white and hundreds of them negroes, but there is little or no evidence of disorder and practically none of drunkenness in the streets.

"With the country engaged in war and with the nerves of the people at high tension, with money abundant, with soldiers better paid than ever before, with wages high and with an immense transient population, the Columbia of 1917 presents such a contrast to the Columbia of the Spanish-American war that those who remember that time could hardly believe it to be possible if they did not see it before their eyes.

"What the future of the whisky traffic shall be it is not worth while to discuss, but it is the simple truth that prohibition is prohibiting and the old argument to the contrary, so long relied on by the whisky dealers, is, for the present at least, discredited. Whoever says that prohibition will not prohibit is heard with derision."

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D. D. Dean of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT-He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our ini-quities; the chastisement of our peace was upon Him, and with His stripes we are healed,-Isalah 53:5.

1. This 53d chapter of Isaiah is one of the most wonderful in the Bible. Someone has called it "the very jewel of the Scriptures," It has convinced and converted to Jesus Christ many sceptics, not merely by the harmony between its prophetic words and their literal fulfillment in the history of Christ, but because of the very conception itself which it contains of his character and sufferings.

John Wilmot, Earl of Rochester, was days ago. It yielded 4,800 bushels and he sold it at $2.05 per bushel, giving one of the most brilliant and licentious nobles of the dissolute court of breaking, seeding, seed, cutting and Charles II, but he was laid aside by a threshing, $1,920. His profit was fatal disease. $3,120 after paying for his land and

In the hope of breaking the monotony of the sick room he began the rending of books, and happened one with a "paid for in full" improved day to pick up the Greek translation of the Old Testament. His eyes fell on this chapter which he read carefully several times,

"Where did this man, Isaiah, obtain a conception as this?" he exclaimed. Putting aside the question of the reality of the career he describes, how did he or how could any human being, unaided by the divine, come to the knowledge of such a character?

parts of the United States to investigate these 100% profit reports. No Thus he pondered, and the problem better season of the year could be would not be driven from his mind selected by anyone desiring to better until he himself was driven to admit their condition and wishing to give the divine inspiration of the book and to accept the Lord Jesus as his Savior. Threshing is now completed and the Bishop Burnet who knew him well, testifies that if ever there were a case grain being marketed. But the fact which convinced him is the same that must convince any man who will devote to it the same consideration. As some one has poetically said, mortal man could as well create a sunbeam as he could create the conception of such an one as Christ, without the assistance of the Holy Spirit. п.

This chapter furnishes one of the clearest evidences of the vicarious nature of Christ's sufferings,-in other words, that he died in our stead. In its few verses there are no less than 11 asseverations of this truth: "He bore our griefs;" "he carried our sorsows;" "he was wounded for our transgressions;" "he was bruised for our iniquities;" "the chastisement of our

PIANO SALES INCREASE.

According to traveling representatives of Eastern plano manufacturing converns who have recently been in San Francisco, says the Musical Times, plano sales in the western states that have joined the dry ranks show marked increase. They report that business in Colorado, Arizona, Washington and Oregon was never better and that retailers, many of whom opposed prohibition, are now heartily in favor of the change. More pianos are being sold, it is asserted, initial payments are larger, collections are much better and fewer instruments are returned.

IN THE CITY OF SEATTLE.

The prohibitory law of the state of Washington went into effect January 1, 1916. Of buildings occupied the last day of 1915 by 211 saloons, ten are now occupied by drug stores, haberdasheries, women's specialty shops and the like; 56 by cigar, candy and soft drink places; 14 by groceries and meat markets; six by confectionery stores; 19 by cafes, bakeries and the like; 20 vacant for repairs, or because building is too poor for business.

We read in Roman history of Regulus who had been delivered to the Carthaginians as a hostage. Subsequently he was sent back to Rome to persuade the senate to a certain course under a pledge that if they would not comply he would return to Carthage and yield up his life. The story is that he himself advised the senate not to comply with the conditions of the Carthaginians and then voluntarily returned to Carthage and suffered death under torture. In fact his sufferings and death were substituted for the vengeance the Carthagiaians would have taken upon Rome itself if they could have done so. Thus we perceive that the idea of substitution is not unknown to history. Why then should finite man presume to question the ways of God in such a case, instead of submissively receiving and confidently reposing upon the great fact of the substitution of his only begotten Son in the place of a guilty race? - 111.

The language of this chapter is pecullar in that though it was composed more than 700 years before Christ, yet so much of it concerning him is written in the past tense. The prophet seems to have had a vision of the retrospection in which his nation would engage when, after their acceptance of Jesus as their Messiah and Savior in the latter days, they will consider his earthly history and reflect upon the part they had taken in his rejection.

Some of you have read Charles Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities," and recall Sydney Carton. The man who so heroically surrendered his life to the guillotine in order that the life of Charles Darney might be spared to his wife and child.

Up until that time the associates of Sydney Carton had not regarded him very highly. He was slovenly in dress, dissolute in habits, aimless in life, But as he stands on the platform before the leering crowd, awaiting the signal for the ax to fall upon his head, there draws across his mind a vision of the sanctuary made for him in the hearts of Charles and Lucy Darney and he sees their children and children's children, making annual pilgrimages to that spot and their tears as they recount the story of his sacrifice.

It is much like that that Isaiah pictures contrite Israel. They are looking back upon him whom they pierced. "Ah," say they, "we hid our faces from him." We did .esteem him stricken, smitten of God and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities!"

It is an experience with which every converted man be he Jew or Gentile, must have some acquaintance. And he who claims to be washed from his sins in the Redeemer's blood and yet feels no blame for his rejection and crucifixion, has yet to learn the meaning of that passage which speaks of our crucifying him afresh and putting him to an open shame.

Rome correspondent.

The head of the house, Prince Ludovic Chigi, who last year was appointed marshal of the Holy church and the guard of the Conclave and, therefore, rules the Vatican during the interim between the death of a pope and the election of a new one, recently disposed of the Chigi palace to the Italian government. It is stated that by this sale he was put in a position to buy back the Villa Farnesina, erected in 1509-11 by the Papal banker, Agostino Chigi, and notable because of its frescoes by Raphael.

The palace will be restored and refurnished as it was when first occupied by the Chigi family, an auction sale having been held recently to rid the palace of the furniture left there by the king of Naples.

The return of the Chigis is considered remarkable since it is proverbial in Rome that when once a family leaves its home it leaves forever.

No Other Place Would Do.

A dentist, who had been made nervous by frequent burglaries in his vicinity, was somewhat startled recently by having a man come regularly at the same hour every evening and sit on his doorstep. He finally suggested that, if it would be all the same to htm, he would be pleased to have him divide his attention and sit on some neighbor's doorstep for a while.

"But it wouldn't be the same." shouted the visitor," nor anything like it. You are a dentist, and I have an aching tooth that I haven't the cour age to have pulled out. I come here every afternoon trying to make up my mind to have it out, and as soon as I come in sight of your house it stops aching, but when I sit on your doorstep, and the confounded thing knows it can be pulled out if it gives me trouble, I have some rest."
