

Use ATLANTIC Rayolight OIL

It will give you more satisfaction per gallon, better light per lamp and greater heat per stove. All the impurities that cause smoke, smell and charred wicks are removed. All the qualities that give a clear, mellow light and a steady, even heat are retained.

Perhaps you've thought that kerosene is kerosene and that's all there was to it. There's a lot more to it. You should see our expert chemists testing and experimenting to produce the highest refined kerosene in the world. And they have succeeded. That's why it is called Rayolight Oil—to distinguish it from ordinary kerosenes.

Besides heat and light, Rayolight Oil has many other uses in every home, such as cleaning bathtubs and windows, polishing furniture, etc. Hundreds of thrifty housewives have told us their experiences with Rayolight Oil and we have put all these helpful suggestions in an attractive, illustrated booklet for the use of our customers. A copy will gladly be sent upon request.

The next time you need kerosene look for the store with the sign: "Atlantic Rayolight Oil for Sale Here." Then ask for it by name. The dealer won't charge you a cent more than for the inferior, nameless kinds.

Highest Price on Record.

Fat hogs sold at Johnnie Conrad's sale last Saturday at $18 32 a hundred, and pork available for immediate delivery brought fifty dollars a barrel in Chicago, last Friday, the highest price on record. The topmost figures during the Civil War when gold was at a big premium, was $43. This sounds good to people that have hogs to sell, but it means that Hoover will not have any trouble getting editors to observe meatless days in their families.

Tripped on Grapevine.

On November 16, a young man named Kirk, of East Waterford, went out hunting. Failing to return in the evening his parents became alarmed, and each day following a search was made without success until the 23rd when his body was found in an old field about two miles west of Waterford, where it was seen he had tripped on a grape vine and when he fell his gun had fell so as to be discharged, the load entering his left side penetrating the heart and coming out at the right side.

The young man had a squirrel on one shoulder and a hawk lying just a little from one hand. The leaves had also been set on fire by the discharge of the gun and the clothes were all burned from his body.

Clothing Suggestions.

Because of the shortage of wool, the enormous demand for cotton in the manufacture of war munitions and the scarcity of factory labor, the present day clothing problem is a serious one. As a result careful thought and attention are required on the homekeeper in dealing with this question.

There has been an enormous waste in clothing in this country in the past. The chief reasons for this are the frequent changes the unwise selection of materials and garments, the dependence upon a poor quality of ready-made garments and the improper care of clothing.

In order to reduce this waste to a minimum the points to keep in mind, according to Miss Jane Newcomb, assistant in home economics extension at the Pennsylvania State College, are:

First—Avoid extremes in fashion; Second—Learn to know quality and its economic value; Third—Learn to recognize standard materials and their reliability; Fourth—Make undergarments and do other simple sewing at home; Fifth—Take good care of all clothing.

Clothes should be studied as an individual problem. One should know what is suitable from the hygienic, artistic and economic standpoint and then buy from the standpoint of quality, real style and suitability rather than from the standpoint of mere fashion.

The Horrors of War

Those who have not experienced the horrors of war only know of its terrors by "hear-say" but even then it's bad enough.

But terrible as death on the battlefield may be, it has no more terrors than some other things, a life of grinding, pinching poverty, for instance. Death amidst the roar and crash of battle is frightful but death is at least mercifully the end. But to live and struggle on from day to day in poverty, possibly under a load of debt, but little hope, just struggling along wearing the life away by inches, that takes courage and is enough to try the stoutest heart. The way to avoid this is by systematic saving. Our bank will do its best to save you from a fate worse than the horrors of war.

Acres for 1918.

Estimates from crop reporters in all the counties of the State that the Pennsylvania farmer has increased the acreage sown to wheat slightly less than five per cent. over the acreage represented in the 1917 harvest and that the rye acreage has been increased but 1.4 per cent. over this year.

The farmers of this State had been asked by the National Government to increase the wheat acreage 14 per cent. and the rye acreage 25 per cent. but labor and weather conditions have practically made it impossible for the farmers to respond. In many sections of the State corn remained uncut until late in November and in most instances these fields would have been sown to wheat if the soil could have been prepared.

It has been practically impossible for the farmers to get wheat and rye fields in shape on account of the shortage of farm labor and the unsettled weather conditions of October in many sections of the State. In some of the central and northern counties there were only a few days during the month that there was no rain or snow. The farmers are disposed to increase their crops to the greatest extent but it has been a physical impossibility.

The wheat acreage increase is 68,484 acres and the rye increase 3,790 acres. A small proportion of this ground may be plowed under in the spring if there is any severe winter freezing that seriously damages the wheat and rye which is in the ground. The increases in acreage run from one to one hundred per cent., but in the large wheat growing counties the increase has been slightly over four per cent.

State Agricultural Notes.

It is estimated that the total alfalfa crop for the State during the past season was 133,849 tons, an average of 5.8 tons being cut to an acre.

Records show that there are 28,500 silos in use on farms of Pennsylvania, an increase of about 5,500 over last year. Tioga, Susquehanna and Bradford counties lead with the largest number of silos but farmers in other sections of the State are rapidly adopting silage methods.

Despite the large wheat acreage Lancaster county farmers have found it possible to make an increase of 4 per cent. or approximately 6,800 acres for next year's crop.

The average production of tobacco to the acre was 13565 pounds as compared with 13400 pounds last year.

Estimates show that about 75 per cent. of a normal grape crop was grown in the State during the year.

The average weight of wheat per bushel for the year was 59.5 pounds, while the average weight of oats was 31.6 pounds, over a pound heavier than last year and above the ten year average.

The average yield of honey per colony was 33 pounds as compared with 54 pounds last year.
