LATEST WAR NEWS.

Allies Still Pushing Forward With Determination. Germans Losing Heavily in Men and Munition. American Army Growing in Strength Daily.

AIRPLANES DOING SPLENDID WORK.

There has been little change in the war situation during the past week with the exception that the drive which has been on since the 23th of July is proceeding unchecked, and the Allies have gained many square miles of territory and many thousands of prisoners.

It must not be assumed, however, that the war is over, or that 1918 will see its close. We may reasonably expect that after the Germans have withdrawn to a point favorable for a stand, that they will concentrate their forces with a view of checking the advance of their enemies. Every day means a strengthening of the allied forces. Up to this time the United States has sent almost a million and a half of troops to France; this too, without the loss of practically any, in transportation. This fact, in itself, is marvelous. It is a great disappointment to the Germans. They felt sure that their submarines would send to the bottom of the ocean every ship load of soldiers the United States might attempt to send over.

Germany is just beginning to feel the strong arm of the United States. While we have sent 1,500,000 men to France, we have in our home training camps more than 2,500,000 men, which we are sending across just as fast as vessels can be had for their transportation. In addition, Secretary Baker proposes to provide 2,000,000 more, which will aggregate an American army of six million men—a momentum that will crush out any opposition put up by the enemy.

The total German losses from the beginning of the war to the end of July, 1918, are understood to be six millions, according to the morning papers.

The figures include 1,400,000 killed up to the beginning of the German offensive of last March. From March 27 to June 17 the Germans are said to have lost 120,000 killed alone.

Casualties in the United States overseas forces, announced by the War and Navy Departments during the week ending Tuesday numbered 1355, compared with 4916 for the previous week. Total casualties announced number 21,467. Total army's casualties number 18,707; the Marine Corps' lists total 2,760.

Total deaths, including the killed in action, deaths from wounds, disease, accident and other causes since the United States forces landed in France numbered 8133, including 291 soldiers lost at sea. Of that number 7296 were of the army and 837 of the Marines Corps.

The wounded to date number 11,615, of which 9785 are of the army and 1830 of the Marine Corps.

Men missing in action and prisoners in the hands of the enemy number 1719, of which 1626 are of the army and 93 of the Marine Corps.

The summary of the army casualty lists follows:
Killed in action, 3869; died of wounds, 1189; died of disease, 1556; died of accident and other causes, 682; wounded in action, 9785; missing in action including prisoners, 1626; total to date, 18,707.

The summary of the Marine Corps lists follows: Death, 837; wounded, 1830; missing in action, 88; in hands of enemy, 5; total, 2760.

Red Cross Work Amazing.

The following excerpt is from a letter sent by Frederic R. Couderc, well-known lawyer of New York City, to Paul Fuller, Jr., Director of the Bureau of War Trade Intelligence:

"The Red Cross is doing amazing work. Yesterday evening I visited with James A. Kingsbury, formerly New York Charity Commissioner, the Red Cross establishments for receiving refugees at the Gare du Nord and Gare de l'Est. Large numbers of these people were arriving hourly and were being admirably fed, clothed and cared for from the smallest babies up to the very old people. The sight was one never to be forgotten, and the histories of the various refugees were of pathetic interest.

"One very old couple, who had four sons at the front, one of whom had been killed and two wounded, who left Compiègne in a pony car in the middle of the night. The pony had been killed on the road by a passing automobile, and they had to remain until daylight where they were. Finally they were able to reach the station and got a refugee train. None of these people was crying or complaining, but accepted life loss of all with stoic calm. It was singularly impressive, and I doubt whether such a thing would have been possible in any other country.

"Tell every one you see of the work the Red Cross is doing for suffering humanity in France. You could not exaggerate its extent and the devotion of its agents, try as you might.

Two Types of Girls.

"One of the keenest problems that has come to me recently and one which needs the attention of all people is that of the closer relationship of town and country people," says Mrs. Eugene G. Bean, adviser on home and community interests for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

"I was at a farm home the other day where the town girls were their father's hired men, mowing away the rye under a hot barn roof, while the girls in the nearby town sat on their porches as I went past later in the afternoon, crocheting yokes and reading novels. The mother of the farm girls told me that when her two girls started in the High School with those town girls in the fall that they looked with disdain on her girls' tanned necks and faces and calloused hands. Her oldest daughter because of a desire to be as nice as the town girls, think they are, and because of her frailness had left the farm home and worked in an office in town.

"Now judge for yourself which girls should demand the most respect from thinking people—the girls who were helping to feed the nations or the girls who were only feeding their own selfish recreation? Your answer is forthcoming, but our special duty is to breed among our town people a respect for the right type of girl.

"The same condition is true among our town and country women. There is a sad lack of appreciation of the rural women. It is often thought that she is to be pitied with a kind of pity that we have for dumb animals, when in reality she needs appreciation for the great part she is playing just now to make the world safe for democracy."
