Outdoor Vegetable Pit.

Several small pits are better than one large pit for the home storng of vegetables, says the Natonal War Garden Commission of Washington. In the coldest sections of the country, however, pits are not recommended because they cannot be made iros

Make pits holding about a bushel and include an assortment of vegetables in each one so that a complete supply for a few weeks may be taken out at one time. It is somewhat troublesome to open and close a large pit to secure an occassional supply of vegetables. Plan to divide up your root crops into lots to last a certain length of time and put one porton of each vegetable in each small pit, then when needed empty the pit and store the vegetables in a cool place for daily

To make one of these pits level off a space of ground three or four feet square and spread a few inches of waste hay, straw or leaves over it. Place the vegetables on this in a cone shape and cover with a few inches of the same material. Throw several inches of earth over this and as the weather becomes colder add more earth and then cover with straw, mature, waste hav or cornstalks. The winter temperature will determine the thickness of the earth and other covering, but be sure to have enough to keep out the frost.

A large pit is made like a small one, says the bulletin except that the strawa few inches across the top is not covered with earth Build up the peak with extra straw to keep out the frost. This small porton of straw thus forms a ventilating flue for the pit. Lay a board over it and weight it down with a stone, or nail two short boards together at right angles to make a trough to invert over the peak of the pit. Throw some earth over this cap to hold it in place.

Dig a little trench around the pit and extend it far enough away to provide good drainage. do not allow standing water near rom the I bliadelphia Inquirer An Armistice is frequently a ruse of an enemy sorely pressed to gain time.

It was unquestionably the idea of Berlin that if it could obtain a breathing spell, no matter if its forces were ob iged to evacuate conquered territory, it would still be in a position to defend itself from within its own borders and argue and harangue over peace terms.

That idea has been pretty well shattered.

The mad scheme for world domination has gone a glimmering down the corridors of disappointed hopes and of wild, wicked and insane ambitions. must end the war in what would surrender. The troops in Paris to lay down their arms-to surrender. The immediate payment of $40,000,000. These terms were only preliminary to peace. The Germans demanded one billion dollars by way of indemnity. They marched through the streets of Paris. At Versailles the wicked old King of Prussia was crowned Emperor of Germany. VOTE FOR JUSTICE FOX

Do not overlook the NON-PARTISAN column on the official ballot at the election, Tuesday, November 5th, 1918.

It is SEPARATE from the PARTY column, contains the names of all candidates for Judge of the SUPREME COURT and requires a SEPARATE mark.

Make YOUR vote count for the good of the state by casting it for

Edward J. Fox

of Northampton County

Judge Fox is a PRESENT member of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania by appointment and is a candidate to SUCCEED himself.

He had been a successful practicing lawyer for thirty-eight years when called to the supreme bench on June 18, 1918, to fill the vacancy created by the death of the late Hon. S. Leslie Mestrezat.

His appointment has been generally COMMENDED by the bench, bar and newspapers of the state.

We believe that CAPABLE judges should be kept on the bench, therefore we urge the RETENTION of Judge Fox.

TWO vacancies are to be filled at the November election, but under the law each voter may vote for only ONE.

We hope YOUR one will be for the present incumbent, Judge Fox.

One half of this is due to cold or starva-So in laying down the terms of winter by packing to keep them warm or by cellar wintering and see that each co'ony has at least thirty pounds of honey for

If the bees are to be wintered out of doors, pack them. This is due to building a box around the bives. From one to four hives can be put in one case. If four are in one case, face two hives to the east and two west These cases must be six inches larger than the combined hives and fill this space with planer shavings, dry leaves, chaff or chopped straw. One foot of packing on top of the hives is better than six inches. Be sure that the roof is tight so that no water gets on the packing because if the packing becomes wet it does not insulate the hives

Have tunnels of good size from the hive entrauce to the outside of the packing case so that the bees can get out whenever the weather permits. Be sure that each colony has sufficient stores. Light honey is better than dark for winter stores, but buckwheat honey is good. Honey from low growing plants is better than nectar taken from trees, because it con-

Honey dew however of anysort must not be left in the hives, as it is not good for the bees. It will probably cause the death of the colony before spring.

If there are any colonies which do not have enough stores and lioney cannot be provided, use granulated sugar as a substitute. Make a heavy syrup of granu lated sugar at the rate of one pint of sugar to a little less than a pint of water. Use warm water, it will dissolve quicker and take up more sugar.

SUM IS NOT A LARGE ONE

"Some people have the im pression that $50 000,000 is an enormous sum. They have not stopped to consider it in the ligh of present day expenditures of the Federal government. It is costing $18,000,000,000 a year or about $50 000,000 a day to keep the machinery moving. It must be remembered that Pennsylvanua is contributing one tenth of the cost of the government, so that every 10 days the people of this state are tossing $5,000,000 into the Federal hopper. With this in mind, the $50,000,000 bond issue scattered over a term of years is not much of an obligation for Pennsylvania to assume."
